They Sang,
We Really Fly,
To Discourage Reds,
The Gorilla's Thumb.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MRS. NAIDU, GANDHI'S SUCCESSOR as leader, goes to jail for nine months.

Two hundred thousand Hindus marched on the British fort area at Bombay yesterday. You would call that serious.

But 400 policemen stopped the 200,000. The latter sat down on the ground and sang songs.

Irishmen wouldn't do that.

THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, having sailed 4,000 miles to Brazil in 60 hours, started last night for Rio de Janeiro. Those who have spent three weeks on the same trip know what it means to reduce the time to 60 hours.

A heavier-than-air flier starting from Connecticut for Buenos Aires, hopes to make the trip in 60 hours, 7,500 miles. Flying is really coming.

CONGRESS VOTES, 210 to 18, an inquiry into "Red activities." This means the effort of "Red Russia" to change the government of the United States by persuading the "toilers to arise in their might and throw off their chains."

Throwing off your chains would be all right, but throwing off your automobile, radio, vacuum cleaner, talking machine and other accessories of the modern worker would make life dull.

IF CONGRESS WILL use its brains and the nation's resources to keep competent workers busy, it need not worry about any imported Russian "Red program."

If it doesn't keep American workers busy, it may have a Red program, homemade, more dangerous than anything ever devised.

SCIENTISTS ARE interested in the thumb of the gorilla, not much bigger than that of a human baby. It is an insignificant little thing attached to the gorilla's huge hand, and it proves that thinking has developed the human thumb. Lack of thinking by the gorilla explains his thumb being so small. It is used only as a hook to put over branches of trees. Man uses his thumb for ten thousand different purposes in connection with all four of his fingers, and all his tools.

DR. OSBORN AND DR. M'GREGOR, both as learned as Aristotle and Archimedes combined, do not agree on the meaning of gorilla thumbs. Dr. Osborn says it proves that man has no ape ancestry.

Dr. McGregor says "nothing of the kind."

What it certainly proves is that the gorilla doesn't know how to think, except in a very primitive way. But that does not disprove the ancestor theory. Many have ancestors who did not know how to think, and many of us haven't learned yet.

IF YOU ARE SINCERE and wait long enough your value is recognized.

Italy yesterday crowned with flowers the statue of Savonarola, honoring the rebellious monk of Florence. He was burned alive. He advocated destruction of all works of art in a campaign against luxury.

Joan of Arc was also burned alive, and religion had much to do with her burning. Now, honored everywhere, she is included among the saints.

A GOLD STAR MOTHER, aged 91 years, starts for Europe to visit the grave of her stepson, disdaining the offer of a nurse, perhaps because she comes from California, where you don't grow old.

She told the young officer who welcomed her to New York to show her the whole city before she went on the ship. He did.

She goes abroad for three reasons: to see her stepson's grave, to see Paris before she dies, and, said she, "to see if those French vintages are as good as they say."

That statement about the French vintages will be offensive to our authorities. The lady has sailed, or steps might have been taken to leave her at home.

PROHIBITIONISTS will find comfort in the Pennsylvania election. Recent wet and dry polls seemed to indicate that the whole country is wet and longing for beer. Gifford Pinchot ran for governor of Pennsylvania as an ardent dry and won. There is a difference between straw votes and real votes.

THE LITERARY DIGEST wet-dry poll discovers that 43 states are moderately wet, five dripping wet, five bone dry.

To repeal the prohibition amendment would require the votes of 36 states. If the attempt is ever made it will be seen that of those 43 "moist" states, half will vote against repeal.

NEW YORK INVESTIGATES the shooting of an important building contractor, shot by racketeers in the building trade.

And New Jersey, nearby, wonders about a very respectable looking corpse, neatly laid out by the side of a road. That corpse is supposed to represent a beer quarrel.

M'GOVERN HITS 'SECRET COUNT'

BRIDE, AUTO DISAPPEAR IN ROAD

Both Gone, Husband Reports, After Car Breaks Down; State Police Join Search

State police from Greensburg, and police from half a dozen communities today were searching the hills in the vicinity of East McKeesport for Mrs. G. C. Kirk, 24, of Carnation, Wash., a bride of five weeks, who, with a supposedly disabled auto, disappeared from the Lincoln Highway, half a mile from East McKeesport, early last night. The car, bearing a Washington license plate E-613-04, has not been found.

G. C. Kirk, 24, her husband, the son of G. C. Kirk, an official of the Carnation Milk Products Company, condensed milk manufacturers of Seattle, spent the night in frantic search with the police. Early today he came to Pittsburgh and enlisted special agencies in the search.

ON WEDDING TOUR

The couple, according to Kirk, was married in Seattle, April 16, and immediately started on a wedding trip to the southern states, then followed the eastern seaboard north to Philadelphia. They left that city early yesterday for Pittsburgh, intending to visit here and then go to Niagara Falls. They planned to be in Seattle about the middle of June.

As they neared East McKeesport their automobile broke down, and Kirk said he left his bride in the car while he went into the town to get a tow. While there he met Samuel Wolf, Jr., an undertaker, of 304 Electric avenue. Wolf volunteered to accompany him to the stranded car and bring Mrs. Kirk to his home.

GRAF, SPEEDING FOR RIO, GOES OVER BAHIA

Covers 385 Miles of Trip Along South American Coast in Eight Hours

BULLETIN.

BAHIA, Brazil, May 24.—(AP.)—The Graf Zeppelin, en route from Pernambuco to Rio de Janeiro, passed over this city at 8:15 a. m. (7:15 a. m. Pittsburgh time). It took the Graf just eight hours to travel the 384 miles from Pernambuco.

EXCLUSIVE

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND, Radio Dispatch.

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, en route to Rio de Janeiro, May 24.—The Graf Zeppelin was roaring southward toward the Brazilian capital early today.

At 11:37 p. m. (10:37 p. m. Pittsburgh time) last night, Dr. Hugo Eckener gave the command that released the huge dirigible from its red and white steel mooring mast at Jequaia air field, Recife, and the veteran of the air tilted its nose skyward.

Although it was 11:37 p. m. when the drag lines were cast loose, the official starting time entered in the Zeppelin's log book was 11:52 p. m. This was the time that the Graf was finally well clear of the mooring mast and actually on its way from Recife toward Rio de Janeiro.

TWO MEN BURNED

Two members of the Zeppelin's crew were slightly burned in a small gasoline fire prior to the take-off. They were treated aboard the ship by Dr. Jeronimo Megias, King Alfonso of Spain's physician, and reported not serious.

"We don't know just what the weather is south of here, but we shall find out for ourselves."

BLUE LAW FOES VICTORIOUS IN PHILA. POLL

Eighty Per Cent of Voters In Pittsburgh Tally Favor Repeal of Old Statutes

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 24.—The final vote was counted today in the city-wide poll of Blue Law sentiment conducted in this city by the Philadelphia Record.

The count shows 289,268 ballots were received.

This represents a return of 48.4 per cent of the 597,617 ballots sent to the registered voters of Philadelphia.

The votes show a ratio of approximately 5.6 to 1 for the repeal of the law.

REPEAL ADVOCATED

Four-fifths of the registered voters of Pittsburgh taking part in the Blue Law poll of Pittsburgh by the Sun-Telegraph continue to advocate repeal of the ancient statutes prescribing Sunday observance in Pennsylvania. Voters casting ballots in the poll to date number 22,126, divided in sentiment as follows:

For the Blue Laws	2,895
For modification	1,589
For repeal	17,636

These totals represent 80 per cent for repeal, 13 per cent for continuance of the laws and 7 per cent for modification. The ratio of voters favoring repeal compared to voters supporting the Blue Laws is 6.1-to-1.

WOMEN ACTIVE

The division of the totals between men and women is as follows:

For the Blue Laws, 1,591 men and 1,304 women; for modification, 953 men and 636 women; for repeal, 11,890 men and 5,746 women.

London Naval Treaty Insults Intelligence Of American People

With the verdict of the General Board of the Navy that the London Naval Treaty is "unjust to the United States," the next commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, Admiral Chase, and the president of the Naval War College, Admiral Pringle, are in complete and emphatic agreement.

The one as a witness before the Committee on Foreign Relations, and the other as a witness before the Committee on Naval Affairs, sustained at every point the findings of the General Board against the treaty as given to these committees on behalf of the board by its chairman, Admiral Bristol, and by Admiral Jones, President Coolidge's delegate to the Geneva Conference.

In the opinion of Admiral Chase and Admiral Pringle the London Treaty—

Abandons the original and consistent American contention that "limitation should be by tonnage in categories, and that within the limits of the tonnage and such other limits as may have been laid down, each country should be free to construct such ships as it sees fit in view of its own circumstances, needs and interests."

Deprives the United States of the right to build the sort of cruiser ships within the cruiser category "best suited to our own defense needs and necessities"—

Fails to give the United States cruiser parity with the British—

Abandons the 5-3 ratio with Japan and greatly increases the relative strength of the Japanese Navy to the grave disadvantage of the United States.

Scraps the established naval policy of the United States previously approved by both the President and the Congress.

As regards cruisers that policy is—

"In order to support the fleet and protect our commerce, to replace all old cruisers with modern cruisers of 10,000 tons displacement carrying eight-inch guns, in addition to build cruisers at a rate that will maintain effective cruiser tonnage in conformity with the capital ship ratios as established by the Washington treaty limiting naval armament."

It now appears that the London Naval Treaty was negotiated in utter disregard of the advice of Admiral Jones, who accompanied the American delegation and by reason of his previous command of the fleet, presidency of the General Board and participation in the Geneva conference as President Coolidge's delegate, was the ablest naval adviser for the delegation that the Navy could provide.

It was negotiated in utter violation of the unanimous and unconditional recommendations of the General Board of the Navy, our highest and most independent naval authority.

It was negotiated in utter disregard of the advice of the president of the Naval War College, who accompanied the delegation as a naval expert but was allowed to appear before the delegation only once.

It was negotiated in utter disregard of the advice of the next commander-in-chief of the United States fleet upon whom would devolve the burden of supreme command afloat should trouble come during the next few years.

It was negotiated in utter disregard of the preponderant opinion of our highest naval authorities.

A treaty thus negotiated is an insult to the intelligence of the American people and a disgrace to the administration that submitted it to the Senate.

FORCE AIDING PINCHOT EJECTED

Tabulators Take Records to Locked Room; Sullivan Continues Ballot Fight

Further court action accompanied by continued charges and disputes, still clouded Tuesday's primary election in Allegheny County today as the official return board resumed its count of the ballots.

1—Pinchot forces fought to restrain what they termed a "secret count" by employes of the County Commissioners' office in a locker room, invisible to passersby.

2—Alderman Luke Sullivan was prepared to ask the court to recommend a custodian for Sixth Ward ballot boxes, stored in the Penn Avenue Police Station, which he refused to surrender to the recount board yesterday on orders of the County Commissioners.

Pinchot leaders today presented a petition in court asking for a mandamus on the County Commissioners to compel them to grant Pinchot representatives on the returning board the same access to the room in which tabulations are being made on the governorship fight as accorded other clerks.

The move is part of the plan of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, field marshal of Pinchot's campaign, to prevent tampering with vote returns that might reduce Pinchot's apparent lead of about 14,000 in Allegheny County.

RECORDS REMOVED

After the return board members left the court room where the count was being made yesterday, Gilbert Cloonan, chief of the election bureau of the County Commissioners' office, and eight of his clerks removed the vote records to the adjoining judge's chambers to "compute and tabulate."

Occupants of the court room are visible from the corridors and adjacent buildings, but those in the judge's chambers are not.

Gollmar said Cloonan asked four Pinchot checkers employed on the return board upon McGovern's recommendation, to leave the room as Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong had forbidden any person being present to disturb the adding machine experts.

ORDERS CHECKERS TO GO

When McGovern protested, Cloonan said he would have the Pinchot checkers put out. County Detective B. F. Kunning, who was present, ordered the Pinchot checkers to leave. Mrs. Henry Chalfant Miller, Mrs. Frank Boyle

Step-Mother Guilty in Burning

ERIE, Pa., May 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Edna Mumbulo, charged with having caused the death of her 11-year-old step-daughter, Hilda, by pouring flaming gasoline on her clothing, was convicted of murder in the second degree early today.

The case went to the jury late last night.

The state contended the woman caused the death of the child in order to obtain a legacy left her by her mother.

Judge W. E. Hirt announced that he would call Mrs. Mumbulo for sentence Monday.

Ralph Mumbulo, the husband, who is charged jointly with his wife in the crime, appeared more affected by the verdict than did Edna.

OFFICIAL COUNT HELPS PINCHOT

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—(AP.)—With the official count of the vote cast in last Tuesday's primary under way in all counties, charges of fraud in the contest between Gifford Pinchot and Francis Shunk Brown for the Republican gubernatorial nomination have been made by supporters of both candidates.

Official figures from four of the 67 counties added 246 votes to Pinchot's unofficial plurality, giving him a lead of 14,770, with 11 districts unreported. Returns from 8,690 of the 8,701 election districts in the state, including the official counts from Bucks, Schuylkill, Elk and Monroe counties, gave Pinchot a total of 632,824 and Brown 681,054.

A legal move has been made by Brown supporters to prevent cer-

Pilot Leaps, Parachute Hits Wire

CLEVELAND, May 24.—(AP.)—Pilot Samuel J. Samson, of the night air mail, barely escaped with his life in a parachute jump early today after staying aboard to the last possible minute tossing the mail over the side.

Samson, flying from Cleveland to New York, encountered motor trouble while over Bedford, 13 miles southeast of here. He saved most of the mail by throwing it overboard, but left himself scant time to leap to safety. As he neared the ground, his parachute was grazed by a high tension wire.

The plane crashed a mile away and was destroyed, but residents saved what was left of the mail from the flames.

Two years ago, while flying the Cleveland-Chicago route, Samson made a similar jump.

HOOVER SWINGS CLUB ON PACT

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(U.S.)—President Hoover swung a club over the Senate yesterday by announcing he would call a special session immediately following adjournment if the Senate failed to act on the London naval treaty during the regular session.

Coming at the height of opposition to the treaty during the Senate hearings, the President's threat was interpreted here today as a drive to force senators into line in the face of the heavy bombardment of the pact from the high command of the Navy.

It came at a time when senators, weary from a session of more than a year, are anxious to hurry home for their political campaigns. It was regarded as warning senators they could not get away until the treaty is acted upon.

President Hoover's curt announcement followed within a few hours the emphatic warning of Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, leading treaty foe, against the administration's effort to jam through the treaty.

Dorothy Dwan Marries Oil Man

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—(AP.)—Dorothy Dwan, screen actress, and Phillip N. Boggs, Jr., of Beverly Hills, were married here yesterday. Mrs. Boggs is the widow of Larry Semon, film comedian. She retired from pictures a year ago. Boggs is the son of the vice president of the Union Oil Company and is an employe of the same organization.

Westmoreland's Two Cities Show Gains

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 24.—Westmoreland County's only two cities, Greensburg and Monessen, both show gains in population in the last 10 years, 1930 census figures made public here show.

Greensburg shows a gain of 1,354 in the last 10 years, its population being 16,387. Monessen's population is 20,260, or a gain of 2,061 in 10 years.

W. O. Partridge, Sculptor, Dies

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP.)—William Ordway Partridge, 69, noted American sculptor, who was an exhibitor in the Paris salon at the age of 20, died here Thursday. Among his principal works are a statue of Shakespeare, in Lincoln Park, Chicago; Pocahontas, at Jamestown, Va.; Nathan Hale, at St. Paul, Minn., and a baptismal font in the Episcopal Cathedral at Washington.

Shots Halt Man In Store Wrecking

Blaming Frank Jamick, store proprietor of Duncan avenue, for his domestic troubles, Lawrence O'Donnell, of 5608 Duncan avenue, walked into the store of the former and proceeded to wreck it, police reported today. When Constable Frank Carricato attempted to arrest him, he is alleged to have fought the officer and attempted flight. He was halted after several shots were fired by police. He was held for a hearing.

FOE DECLARES CANNON VICTORY BLOW TO PROHIBITION

BISHOP GETS CHAIRMAN JOB AGAIN

Re-Election as Temperance Board Chief Is Another In Series of Triumphs

DALLAS, Tex., May 24 (AP.) — G. T. Fitzhugh, of Memphis, Tenn., one of the leaders in the fight on Bishop James Cannon, Jr., in the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, told the Associated Press last night by telephone from Memphis that Cannon's re-election as chairman of the board of temperance and social service was a terrific blow to prohibition.

Fitzhugh said Cannon's re-election as chairman of the board was "expected when the convention returned him as a member of the board."

He said he was compelled to return to Memphis by airplane to attend to business and was not "running away."

DELEGATES IN ACCORD

Adjournment of the quadrennial general conference of the church was expected today with delegates for the most part in mild accord on an adopted prohibition pronouncement and other controversial subjects.

The conference last night ratified a temperance report, refused a referendum on the question of giving women equal rights in the ministry, and authorized a referendum on the creation of a judicial council a supreme court of Southern Methodism.

Re-election of Bishop Cannon as chairman of the board was the latest of a series of victories for the bishop. He previously had been cleared of undue political activity concentrated of charges of stock gambling after appearing for his securities transactions and re-elected to the board over bitter opposition.

DANIELS MOVES ADOPTION

Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, N. C., a member of the anti-Cannon group, last night moved that the temperance report be adopted, although he previously had threatened to oppose certain portions of it. The report specifically indorsed the "leadership and work of our board of temperance and social service."

Daniels commented:

"Although there are two or three paragraphs in my committee report which I cannot indorse, the reports as a whole truly represents the spirit of our church."

HAYS TERMINAL URGED ON CITY

City Council was urged yesterday by James Rae, president of the Chamber of Commerce, to acquire and develop the Hays site for a municipally-owned river and rail shipping exchange terminal. He emphasized that by this he did not wish to interfere with the improvements of the Manchester site. He said in part:

"Action by Council to equip this magnificent Hays site by no means should interfere with the improvement of what is known as the Manchester site, for the approved judgment of business men appears to be that while the Hays site is needed for heavy manufactures representing carload shipments, the Manchester terminal will be needed just as much for lighter commodities and will serve trucking freight and wholesale jobbing shipments.

"If Pittsburgh is to take advantage of the wider markets opened up to its products by the completed canalization of the Ohio River, our river-rail terminal program must be prosecuted vigorously, and without any unnecessary delay."

Fall Fights Tax on Money From Sinclair, Doheny

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(AP.)—Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior under President Harding and central figure in the oil scandals of that administration, has carried to the Board of Tax Appeals a government suit to collect $235,325 allegedly due in taxes and penalties on sums of money paid to him by Harry F. Sinclair and Edward L. Doheny.

Fall and the government are at odds on a contention of the Internal Revenue Bureau that $100,000 received from Doheny and $303,000 received from Sinclair by Fall, his son-in-law, [illegible] T. Everhart, and the Tres-Ritos Land and Cattle Company were to be regarded as Fall's taxable personal income.

Alleging these transactions were connected with Fall's award of leases on the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills naval petroleum reserves to Sinclair and Doheny companies the government brought criminal actions against all three.

Fall was convicted of bribery on the basis of the $100,000 received from Doheny, although the latter was acquitted of the same charge.

Testimony was introduced in the trials to show Sinclair paid Everhart $233,000 in Liberty bonds for a third interest in the cattle company, advanced $35,000 more to the company and gave Fall an additional $35,000 in bonds and cash.

Fall contended $25,000 of the last amount was a loan and $10,000 was for financing a trip to Russia on which he was to act as counsel for the Sinclair Exploration Company. He contended the $100,000 transaction between himself and Doheny was loan.

Graf 'Roaring Down to Rio'

I came aboard shortly before the take-off.

On the ground the night was sticky, and there was a warm, light breeze blowing from the south.

Fritz Hammer, who is the head of the Condor Air Line from Pernambuco to Rio, is the only new passenger to come with us.

Dr. Eckener said that since there are no mooring facilities at Rio he would let the atmospheric conditions determine whether we would make a brief landing there. He expects that we shall be back to Pernambuco by Monday.

VOYAGE THROUGH STARS

Before us there loomed a 1,200-mile voyage through a tropical night brilliant with stars—an experience that none of us will forget.

As the Zeppelin rose from the field the searchlights tore the night apart, pointing silver fingers of light toward our goal to the southward. They gleamed along the silver sides of the giant ship as she slowly sidled into the air.

Above the rising crescendo of the motors came the cheers of the excited Brazilians who Thursday night gave us so rousing a welcome. For a few minutes the passengers could follow the surging roar of their farewell demonstration, but soon, as the motors gathered speed, we were again beyond the world—alone in the stillness of the humid night.

Thirty minutes after the Graf started skyward, we are passing above the last twinkling lights of the city.

Shortly after the take-off, Dr. Eckener declared that he expected to make the run to Rio in 18 hours. Whether we will make a brief side trip to Sao Paulo before returning to Recife, has not been definitely settled.

PASSENGERS REPORT

Preparations before our midnight flight came off smoothly. The passengers had been apprised well beforehand of the starting time and by 11:20 all of them had motored to the field from their hotels and boarded the ship.

Dr. Eckener was on the field at 10:50 p. m. He was accompanied by the German consul at Recife. When the vast crowd that had gathered to watch the departure caught a glimpse of the grizzled commander there was a tumultuous demonstration.

So great was the press about him that Dr. Eckener had difficulty in making his way to the mooring mast.

Refueling of the dirigible was finished shortly after dusk. Several thousand quarts additional of mineral water were placed aboard and fresh vegetables and meat added to the larder. By the time Dr. Eckener arrived on the field everything was ready for the start.

The Graf's immense spherical hull, 763 feet long and 100 feet thick, has been exposed all day to the blistering tropical sun, and the gas cells have become considerably expanded by the warm gas. Consequently, the final filling was not made until after sundown, when the cooler temperature shrunk the gas again.

GASOLINE AMPLE

The Graf has taken on 5,000 cubic yards of fuel gas, but no gasoline, as we arrived here with five tons still in the ship.

The policing of Jequia Field by the Brazilian military and police could not be better.

Not to be outdone by Spanish official courtesy at Seville, the Brazilian customs and immigration officials did not even ask the passengers sleeping at the Central Hotel for passports or baggage Thursday night.

All day people streamed in autos, street cars and afoot, to the landing field, despite the hot sun. Thousands were on the field, waiting hours before the hopoff, while officers and the crew of the Zeppelin made ready their charge.

Our arrival at Rio depends considerably on whether headwinds are encountered. Should the Graf not arrive at Rio until midnight tonight Dr. Eckener may continue on to Sao Paolo, the center of Brazil South American German colony, numbering 1,500,000 people, who have deluged him with requests to let them see the Zeppelin.

There is considerable feeling among the Germanic element at Rio and Sao Paolo because Dr. Eckener moored at Recife instead of Rio, to which he has answered that there are no mooring facilities at the latter city.

Dr. Eckener and Capt. Lehmann were entertained at luncheon by members of the German colony at Recife, who also presented the Storm King with a gold medallion to commemorate the first visit of an airship to South America.

Graf's Passengers Find 'Winter' Sizzles

By LADY DRUMMOND HAY

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, EN ROUTE TO RIO DE JANEIRO, May 24.—Zeppelin passengers from six countries sweltered under a tropical sun while the Graf was being fed with hydrogen and fuel to carry us another 2,400 miles to Rio de Janeiro and return.

It was very hot last night, and not a few of us recalled the deliciously cool Zeppelin cabins when we were from 600 to 1,500 feet above the Atlantic Ocean.

CONSOLED BY "WINTER"

We were consoled by the very courteous and friendly Recifanos that this is "winter" here. But that really was not much consolation.

Most of the passengers went sight-seeing despite the terrific heat. Dr. Badt went to beautiful Olinda Beach, which stretches for miles outside the city, and took a swim in the surf.

But most amazing of all was—he found the bathing houses closed because it was winter here. Oh, these local seasons!

Dr. Eckener, Capt. Lehmann, Capt. Flemming and Capt. Von Schiller were entertained by the German colony.

PAY OFFICIAL CALLS

Prince Alfonso and Col. Herrera, resplendent in white tropical uniforms, with all their decorations, paid their official calls. George Crouse and his sister, Mrs. Durston, went driving with some of the others.

Zeppelin enthusiasm in Recife reminds me of that in Tokio last summer on the world flight. Our amazing night landing, culminating the epochal Europe to South America flight, fired the imagination of all Brazil.

Rio Eagerly Awaiting Arrival of 'Storm King'

RIO De Janeiro, May 24.—(INS.)—This gay metropolis of South America—rival of Buenos Aires and Havana, for the cognomen of "Paris of the Western Hemisphere"—made ready today in a spectacular fashion for the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, who has become a national hero in Brazil, had announced an 18-hour cruising time to reach Rio from Pernambuco. It is due here before 5:30 p. m. (4:30 p. m., Pittsburgh time).

Landing facilities for the airship formed the greatest collective problem. There is no mooring mast and a group of several hundred soldiers were on duty at the Campo dos Affonsos to help moor the Zeppelin, according to plans projected, to motor trucks.

Three passengers who hoped to embark for Lakehurst, N. J., here were advised by a telegram from Dr. Eckener from Pernambuco that they had better proceed by plane to that city rather than risk the possibility of no actual landing at Rio. The prospective northbound passengers were W. B. Leeds, J. D. Durrell, of the National City Bank, and Valentine Boucas, of Brazil.

CARRIERS BACK RATES DESPITE JOB SLUMP

Deny Hurting Industries By Raise in Face of Business Sent Elsewhere

Coincident with the laying off of several hundred men at the Butler plant of the Pressed Steel Car Company and the transfer of orders for part of that company's production to the Hammond, Ind., plant due to increases in short haul freight rates on steel in this district, the railroads yesterday filed answers to complaints against the new rates with the Public Service Commission.

The answers denied that the increased rates will subject local industries to disadvantages in competing with other industrial districts. The answers demanded proof of the charges made by the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and 40 companies in the Pittsburgh district that their competitive position will be harmed by the rates placed into effect on short hauls of steel on May 20. Many of these rates more than doubled the cost of moving steel from mills to finishing plants in the vicinity of Pittsburgh.

FOUR LINES INVOLVED

The answers were filed by the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad.

All the answers were substantially the same. They stated that the increased short haul rates were placed into effect in line with the general revision of steel rates to a mileage basis ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission. All quoted a portion of the commission report as follows:

"It is obvious, however, that a general revision of the rate structure along the broad lines herein prescribed can successfully accomplish its purpose only if the rates within the several states are at the same time subjected to such revision as may be necessary to bring them into full harmony with the interstate rates prescribed. In fact, as previously stated, representatives of the state commissions were invited to co-operate in these proceedings and the conclusions herein have been reached after conferences with representatives from a number of the interested state commissions.

FINDINGS DELAYED

"Under the circumstances, no specific finding or order with regard to the intrastate rates within Ohio, or within any of the states included in the scope of this investigation will be entered at this time."

Local traffic managers charged in their complaints to the Public Service Commission that Pittsburgh was not being placed on an equal basis with other districts since switching limits at other points, within which the increased rates do not apply, are greater in the Pittsburgh district.

tification of all returns from 372 districts in Luzerne County, where Pinchot was credited with a plurality of 26,000, while Pinchot adherents filed a petition in Common Pleas Court here alleging irregularities in many divisions. The Pinchot petition asked the court to withhold certification of the official count until the petitioners have an opportunity to assemble evidence to substantiate their allegations.

The Luzerne County proceedings allege that ballots had been mutilated by court order before delivery to the various election boards. It was asserted that prior to the election, representatives of Pinchot appeared before the judges and asked that the ballots be perforated as a safeguard against substitution and thereby prevent fraud.

and Mrs. Emily Mathias complied, but John Murphy refused.

Meanwhile McGovern, after a futile search for Chief County Detective George W. Murren, encountered District Attorney Andrew T. Park and asked for relief on the grounds of common decency and sportsmanship.

Park instructed Kunning not to order from the return board room any person assigned by McGovern to watch the count. Murphy then was joined by former Police Lieutenant Peter Connors.

Alderman Luke Sullivan was expected to ask the courts today to recommend a custodian for 20 boxes containing Sixth Ward ballots that repose in a cell in Penn Avenue Police Station.

The boxes, stored in Alderman Sullivan's office after Tuesday's election, were mysteriously removed Thursday to the police station after a patrolman was said to have found a broken door leading to the cellar of the alderman's office that indicated to him an attempt to steal the boxes.

When the boxes arrived at the police station, it was discovered the one from Sullivan's district, the First, was missing, but it finally was delivered in some strange manner.

CONTAIN CONGRESS VOTES

The boxes contain, among others, the votes cast for the alderman's brother, P. J. Sullivan, incumbent and opponent of P. J. O'Malley in the contest for member of Congress in the Thirty-fourth District.

The fight, the bitterest of the primary, resulted on unofficial returns in an apparent majority of about 500 for Congressman Sullivan.

County Commissioner McGovern objected yesterday to the storing of the boxes in the police station, but failed to have them removed to the sheriff's office when Judge James R. Macfarlane declared the courts had no jurisdiction in the issue.

Thirty minutes after the court's ruling, the County Commissioners voted at a special meeting to have the boxes delivered to the vote return board under the commissioners' supervision, but no order for their removal from the police station was issued. McGovern believes Congressman Sullivan objected.

TARIFF BILL HITS NEW SNAG

Conferees Exceed Authority In Fixing Rates; Measure Goes Back to Conference

By FRASER EDWARDS,
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The fate of the Smoot-Hawley-Grundy $1,000,000,000 tariff bill hung upon the outcome of a trick parliamentary situation today, after the Senate and House conferees had reached a compromise on the disputed flexible feature.

No sooner had the conferees heaved sighs of relief as their labors ended than it was discovered they had exceeded their authority in fixing rates on cheese, cherries, rayon and watches. So a series of feverish conferences among Senate and House leaders began to extricate the measure from the latest pitfall.

BACK TO CONFERENCE

The four items are subject to points of order, which means that the bill will be thrown back into conference again, with the prospect that the House will insist upon taking the $1 per thousand cubic feet off of soft lumber, which is demanded by the Northwest.

In the event lumber is restored to the free list, Republican leaders fear they will lose two or possibly three votes for the final conference report. With the narrowest sort of margin to work on, as demonstrated by the votes on the flexible and debenture provisions, the measure might die in conference.

SITUATION PERPLEXING

While week-end conferences may straighten out this difficulty the Republican leaders are greatly concerned over the situation. One plan suggested is to have the Senate fix its own rule by a majority vote. If that fails, Senate leaders are seeking an agreement from the House conferees to merely adjust the rates on the four disputed items and leave lumber and other rates as previously agreed upon.

Senator Smoot, chairman of the Finance Committee, plans to submit the conference report to the Senate Monday and have a showdown on the points of order on Tuesday.

BRIDE AND AUTO MISSING

where she could remain until they were ready to proceed on their trip.

BRIDE, CAR GONE

When Kirk and Wolf arrived at the point where Mrs. Kirk had been left, she and the car had disappeared.

Wilmerding police were summoned. Lieut. Richard Butler and Patrolman Walter Heckthorne went to the scene and searched the neighborhood, but without result. Turtle Creek and state police were next advised and joined in the hunt.

Several hours later Kirk appeared at the East Pittsburgh police station and frantically appealed for aid. Patrolmen John Halluska and Samuel Whitman went to the scene, but were also unsuccessful.

When Kirk and his bride left for the South they took with them a full camping outfit, fishing paraphernalia and other equipment.

These utensils were in the machine when it broke down at 6 p. m. yesterday.

AUTO "LOCKED"

Kirk told police the differential was "shot" and that he was positive the car could not have moved under its own power.

His bride, the husband said, was a brunet with very dark eyes, was clad in a summer dress and white shoes, and was 5 feet 4 inches tall. She was wearing a sorority pin of the University of Washington, class of 1930, he said.

They had planned to spend today in Pittsburgh, Kirk said, but added that they had no friends or relatives in this city.

McBride Clears Mellon Of Blocking Dry Laws

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League disagrees with Attorney General Mitchell in holding that no man should be appointed a U. S. attorney who drinks liquor.

The dry leader also absolved Secretary of the Treasury Mellon of charges that he is standing in the way of effective prohibition enforcement. Mellon has frequently been the target of Senator Brookhart, (Rep.), of Iowa, and other rabid drys, who blame him for all the ills of prohibition.

McBride expressed his views on Mitchell's "non-drinking" rule as a test for federal office in testifying before the Senate Lobby Committee yesterday.

Other lobby developments were:

The committee telegraphed Bishop James Cannon, Jr., asking him to testify next Wednesday. He will be asked about the disposition of campaign funds which he handled in the 1928 presidential campaign.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, was asked to appear Tuesday. He is official dry spokesman for the Northern Methodist Church.

200,000 HINDUS MARCH IN NEW PROTEST

Jailing of Poetess Spurs Wild Demonstration; 400 Police Stem Bombay Tide

International News Service.

BOMBAY, May 24. — A woman—poetess and crusader—brought a new crisis in India today as she began a nine-month prison sentence.

Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, Indian poetess and self-styled "Indian Joan of Arc," took upon herself much of the responsibility for inciting the salt raids on the government salt pans at Dharasana, where more than 600 volunteer raiders were reported injured, and went to prison.

The arrest of Mahatma Gandhi and Abass Tyabji, leaders, who were succeeded by Mrs. Naidu, already had aroused the strength of the opposition against British rule in India.

THOUSANDS TURN OUT

Where hundreds had been the muster of the throngs, thousands swarmed. More than 200,000 "passive" opponents of the British voiced their protest against the arrests of Mrs. Naidu and the other civil disobedience leaders.

Four hundred police stemmed the tide in Bombay, but merely because the milling thousands still followed the pleas of their leaders to remain "passive" in their demonstrations.

They sang songs of defiance and patriotism.

FOURTH WOMAN ARRESTED

DELHI, India, May 24. — Mrs. Satyavati, leader of the "lady volunteers," was arrested today by the police. She is the fourth civil disobedience leader to be arrested by the government.

Nank Chand, styled a member of the "depressed classes," today was sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment on a conviction of sedition.

FLIES 11,000 MILE TRIP IN 19 DAYS

Fails to Break Record but Sets Mark for Women Aviators; Britain Joyous

International News Service.

LONDON, May 24.—All Britain today hailed a youthful girl flier.

Amy Johnson, 23-year-old aviatrix, landed at Port Darwin, Australia, according to Central News dispatches, completing a solo flight from England to the "Down Under" continent in a light sport biplane, a Moth, in 19 days.

Miss Johnson left Croydon May 5 in an attempt to beat Bert Hinkler's 15-day record. Only the worst of luck defeated her through the Straits Settlements and the Dutch East Indies, where minor troubles caused delays that cut her time possibilities.

11,000-MILE FLIGHT

Jagged jungles and treacherous ocean passages never dismayed the young Englishwoman on her hazardous 11,000-mile flight. She "carried on" and her welcome rivaled that of any ever accorded the many achievements of outstanding pilots.

Miss Johnson's last leg was from Atambula, Timor Island. She crossed an exceedingly dangerous stretch of ocean to reach Port Darwin—500 miles of it.

Before reaching Timor, the girl flier had given Britain an anxious 20 hours when she was missing and no word had been received of her progress.

GREETED BY CROWD

Miss Johnson was a perfect example of what Australia likes—nonchalance—as soon as she cut down the switch Amy lifted herself over the cockpit.

She took off her hat and out came the pocket comb.

Then the crowd arrived. The "three cheers and a tiger" couldn't get started—everyone kept on shouting.

Carried on the shoulders of a multitude, Amy Johnson was taken to a royal reception.

King George today sent his hearty congratulations to Miss Johnson in a telegram to the Australian Governor General which said:

"The Queen and I are thankful to know of Miss Johnson's safe arrival in Australia and heartily congratulate her upon her wonderful and courageous achievement."

FLIER'S PARENTS HAPPY

HULL, England, May 24.—(AP.)—An anxious father and mother and two sisters received advice today of Miss Amy Johnson's safe arrival in Australia after her flight from England with the greatest relief.

"I have not the faintest idea what she will do when she returns," said her father. "All that will be left to her. Whatever she may want to do she will do, but I hope that there are not any more flights to Australia."

FOUR CARNIVAL MEN GIVE BAIL

Four of eight men arrested in an anti-gambling raid by county detectives on the Rubin-Cherry shows at Old Exposition Park, North Side, were still in jail today in default of $1,000 bail each. The others had obtained bonds and were released. All eight are to be arraigned Monday afternoon before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan on charges of being common gamblers and maintaining gambling devices.

Louis Little, attorney representing the Rubin-Cherry Company, conferred with District Attorney Andrew T. Park, asserting the show company was not responsible for the operations of the concessionaries.

The raids yesterday were the result of complaints made to the district attorney's office. Thursday night North Side police closed four stands after reports of gambling had been received, it was said.

The detectives, working in pairs, struck simultaneously. Fourteen paddle wheels and an assortment of prizes were seized. Some of the booths, detectives said, displayed no prizes, the patrons staking their money against that of the concessionaires.

Those arrested in the raids gave their names as K. Van Zandt, of Buffalo; Carl Herbert, of Little Rock, Ark.; Samuel Taylor and Alvin James, of Cleveland; O. B. Biquette, of St. Louis; James Hartnell, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Harvey E. Chatelaine, of Seattle, and Fred Lawton, of the Strand Theater, Sixth street.

Hubert, Hartnell, Chatelaine and Lawton were still in jail today. The others were released on bail late last night.

Man Taking Poison Expected to Recover

Walter Hezlip, 31, of 25 Courtright street, was recovering today in St. John's Hospital from the effects of poison tablets swallowed, police said, with suicidal intent in his home last night.

When Patrolmen Robert Purvis and John Conley arrived at the victim's home, Hezlip told them he was a victim of poisoned moonshine. The police learned differently when they took him to the hospital and found a bottle containing the tablets in his pocket. Hezlip then admitted, police reported, of swallowing some of them.

Wanted to See Her Buried, Wife Says

Her husband told her to leave and if he found her at home when he returned he would strike her so hard on the head she would never wake up, Selma Dick, 1116 Morningside avenue, testified in her divorce action against John E. Dick. The Dicks were married in March, 1926. Mrs. Dick informed Judge James B. Drew, of Common Pleas Court, who heard the case, that her husband always wanted to be called "Ellwood Dick." The couple had frequent quarrels. Dick running around four or five nights a week, the wife charged. Dick told her he would be happy when she was 6 feet under ground. Mrs. Dick was represented by Attorney Charles P. Walter.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(AP.)—A display of the aerial strength of the Navy was arranged as a background today for the annual race for the Curtiss Marine trophy.

Principal place in the pageant was assigned to 140 planes from aircraft carriers Lexington, Saratoga and Langley. The dirigible Los Angeles was to repeat two famous stunts, dropping a pilot in a glider and hooking on an airplane in flight.

Twenty-six pilots chafed at a forecast of bad weather, which would postpone the race on the 20-mile course along the Potomac, over which they must whirl five times.

The race for the Curtiss trophy was narrowed to seven fighting planes, but four other classes were in the running for the Ingalls trophy, donated to the pilot attaining the highest percentage of his ship's rated speed.

BRITON HELD IN RUM PLOT

NEW YORK, May 24.—(INS.)—Edward Tatham, a socially prominent British subject, was held in $20,000 bail today, charged with conspiracy to smuggle whisky to wealthy Americans. United States agents who arrested Tatham said they found in his effects a list of American society leaders.

Tatham's arrest and his indictment early this week by a Federal grand jury was brought about through the sending of a liquor circular by Justerini & Brooks, an English distilling firm of which Tatham is a director, to Samuel Thorne, capitalist and distinguished New York layman of the Episcopal Church, Assistant U. S. Attorney Robert Watts said.

According to Watts, Thorne was surprised at getting the circular offering to sell him liquor and he turned the circular over to the authorities, writing the English company he was taking that action. With Tatham, the British company was indicted, marking the first time in the history of prohibition that such action has been taken against an English firm.

PARADE PASSING U. S. S. MAINE MONUMENT ON MALECON IN HAVANA AS CUBA CELEBRATED ITS 28TH YEAR OF FREEDOM

Navy Refuses Byrd Tug To Tow Becalmed Bark

PANAMA CITY, May 24.—(AP.)—Radio messages received during the night from the bark City of New York, last of the Byrd Antarctic expedition vessels still at sea, said those aboard her suffered severely yesterday with the heat.

At about the same time another radiogram received from the Navy Department at Washington refused Rear Admiral Byrd's request, made through Rear Admiral Blakely, to have the naval tug Sciota proceed from the canal to bring the bark to port.

The City of New York, in tow to the Eleanor Bolling, was cut loose several days ago to allow the Bolling to proceed to port and refuel. Since then it has drifted almost helplessly taking advantage of what wind was available.

At 9 p. m., the bark notified Byrd she was 772 miles from Balboa, drifting in calm water. Admiral Blakely's request for use of the tug was made yesterday morning and the answer was received last night. It suggested Byrd arrange with the Panama Canal for a vessel supplied by the marine superintendent.

It was believed Byrd would revert to his original plans and send the Eleanor Bolling back out after the City of New York as soon as it had completed coaling. The ship arrived here only yesterday.

Pattern 1930

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Exquisite simplicity is demanded on graduation day, yet these frocks should be smart enough to wear for parties and dances all summer. The model shown today has a graceful cape collar and flared skirt, the outstanding details of the new mode. Picoted edges effect a dainty and easy finish that is used on the most costly garments.

Pattern 1930 may be fashioned of organdy, voile, crepe de chine, batiste or georgette. A belt of moire or satin ribbon is dainty and youthful. White for the important event, of course, but for other occasions, a pastel shade would be lovely with contrasting ribbon . . . pink with blue, green with orchid, yellow with green, etc.

May be obtained only in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 8 requires 2⅝ yards of 39-inch material and 2 yards ribbon.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgher To Marry In East

There's so much news it's hard to decide what to talk about first. Plans for weddings, spring dances and bridal parties predominate in the news today. And then there's always the horse show on June 5, 6 and 7.

But since the month of brides and roses is so near, everyone is in a bridal mood; so I'm going to tell you about a marriage which will take place tonight in the East.

Dorothy Gleeson, daughter of the George Henry Gleesons, of South Orange, N. J., will become the bride of Charles Newell Fisher, son of the Charles A. Fishers, of Westminster place, this evening at 5:30 o'clock in the Gleeson home, with the Rev. Joseph A. Kelly, of Plainfield, N. J., as officiant.

The home is decorated with pink gladioli, roses and other summer flowers, intermingled with ferns. Ferns, flowered and white ribbons mark off an aisle through the drawing room and library.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will wear eggshell satin and a veil of white tulle, and carry summer flowers. Her sisters, Ruth and Margaret Gleeson, in yellow and lettuce green chiffon, will be her only attendants. And Howard Fisher will be his brother's best man.

A reception in the home will follow. Last night the Arthur Sinnotts, of South Orange, N. J., gave a dinner in the Essex Country Club for the bridal party. After a honeymoon at the Fisher summer home in New Florence, Pa., Mr. Fisher and his bride will be at home in Pittsburgh.

Before I start talking about the lovely gowns I saw last evening, I want to mention that this afternoon at 1 o'clock members of the Pittsburgh Hunt will meet at the clubhouse, and will spend the afternoon exercising their mounts in preparation for the horse show on June 5, 6 and 7.

Exercise Mounts

And speaking of the horseshow reminds me that the Eugene W. Pargnys, of Beechwood boulevard, will give a dinner on the second night of the show. Among their guests will be Myron Wilson, of Cleveland, who will be the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Milligan, during the show.

* * *

Vine-covered Longue Vue Country Club, with its rolling, landscaped grounds, formed the lovely setting for the spring ball given last night for the social service department of the Homeopathic Hospital. A special entertainment of singing, dancing and stunts was a feature.

Spring Dance

Never have gowns been so flattering I do believe as they are this spring. There were hundreds of smart young women there gowned in pastel-tinted chiffons and laces. Of coufse there were striking gowns of taffeta and tulle, and gowns of lovely, shimmering, velvety crepes, but chiffons and lace are the popular materials of the spring mode. And very smart, too, are the brief jackets of velvet or taffeta that have almost entirely replaced the long evening wrap.

Taking tickets at the door was Miss Marjorie Gethofer, a committee member, who wore a black lace gown, and aiding her were Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., the general chairman, in flowered chiffon with beige lace godets, and Mrs. Louis M. Hague, who looked charming in a delft blue lace gown with the long, even-at-the-hem-line skirt, boasting deep ruffles of the same material.

Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe wore a white chiffon gown in the simple princess mode, and a brief jacket of black velvet with a scarf collar of ermine. And Anne Stewart, whose betrothal to John A. McKelvy was announced several weeks ago, wore a wisteria flowered chiffon gown.

Chiffon Smart

Mary Franklin Robinson, one of the debutantes of last winter, who has selling cigarets, wore canary lace, and Joan Diehl, Frances Reed, and Mrs. J. H. Follansbee were selling cigarets, too. Frances wore a flowered peach chiffon frock, and Joan chose eggshell crepe, and Mrs. Follansbee wore a white crepe gown, sprinkled with small flowers. Peggy Berger was there, too, wearing green moire and a Spanish shawl, and Mrs. A. Cameron Mann, blue moire. Mrs. Sidney A. Stewart was in ruffled green lace, and Helen Murdoch in white crepe. Mrs. Reginald Church wore a gown of black taffeta and chiffon with the neckline outlined in rhinestones, and I caught a glimpse of Mrs. B. Houston Hill.

Lace Popular

Mrs. W. G. L. Gibson was there in black chiffon, Georgia Pearson in flowered chiffon; Mrs. Hudson Sampson in flowered chiffon and Mrs. Charles Wesley Ridinger, who chose chiffon, too.

Harriet Fickes wore Nile green chiffon with a smart waistline wrap of white velvet; Catherine Suydam, egg shell crepe; Priscilla Barnes, wood violet chiffon; Mrs. George Macbeth, peach chiffon; Mrs. Sidney Hammond, white chiffon; Margaret Brainard, green lace, and Louise Berghaus, green tulle.

And I saw Betty Nicholson in white lace and Miss Edna Sutton in flowered chiffon, and Mrs. William H. Schoen in lettuce green chiffon.

Mrs. H. A. Noble chose black lace; Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, violet crepe; Mrs. Clifton A. Verner, purple chiffon, and Mrs. G. Elkins Knable, black chiffon.

Green crepe was worn by Barbara Perry Irwin, who'll make her bow next winter; flowered chiffon by Frances Fitzgerald; flowered chiffon by Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald, Jr., and flowered crepe by Catherine Gordon. And I saw Mrs. Robert Patterson in American beauty chiffon.

And I know of two more June brides-to-be, and first I will tell you about the wedding of Elisabeth Harding Christie, daughter of the Lindsay Robert Christies, of Denniston avenue, and Richard Ernst Clemson, son of Mrs. John Barton Luckie, of Kinsman road, whose betrothal was announced in February. The nineteenth day of June is the date of the wedding, and there will be only the members of the two immediate families present at the ceremony, which is to take place at 5:30 o'clock that afternoon in "Highmont," the home of the Daniel Clemsons.

June Bride

And Elisabeth has named her bridal party, too. Her only attendant will be Eunice DuPuy, of Indianapolis, Ind., a former Pittsburgh girl. L. Hardin Christie, brother of the bride-elect, will be the best man and the ushers will include Wilson Book, of Sewickley, and Joseph Wood Oliver, Frank McKown and Aiken W. Fisher, of Pittsburgh. Several pre-nuptial entertainments for the bridal party are being planned. Elisabeth's fiance, I might add, is a member of the June graduating class at Princeton University.

And the other June bride is Ruth Elliott Drake, daughter of the J. Frank Drakes, of Pembroke place. And on June 26 she will marry Chester Hardin Lasell, son of the Josiah Manning Lasells, of Whitinsville, Mass. The wedding is to take place in the Church of St. Andrew-by-the-Sea, Hyannisport, Mass., with the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten, rector of the Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church, officiating.

Bridal Party

And Ruth has chosen her two sisters to be her two maids of honor, Virginia Drake, a bud of this coming season, who is to arrive in New York on the twenty-eight of this month after a winter abroad, and Constance Drake. The bridesmaids will be Frances Reed and Laura Evans, sister buds of Ruth last winter. And there will be six other bridesmaids, too, including Marie Wilson and Mrs. Kenneth L. Green, Jr., of St. Louis, Mo.; Sallie Weston and Margaret Watkins, of New York; Mrs. Harvey Thompson, of Greenwich, Conn., and Deborah Rood, of Wilmington, Del.

And the best man is to be Benjamin Langmaid, of Swansea, Mass.

And the ushers will include H. Livingstone Schwardt, of Philadelphia; Donald Ross, of Brooklyn; Daniel Wheeler and Dudley Skinner, both of Bridgeport, Conn.; John Lasell, brother of the bridegroom-elect; Murray Keeler, of Whitinsville; Kenneth L. Green, Jr., of St. Louis; Harold Gross, of Providence, R. I., and Frederick Sherman, of Greenwich.

Many Ushers

After a six-week trip abroad Mr. Lasell and his bride will live in Greenwich, Conn.

And now Ann Buchanan, daughter of the Edward Robert Buchanans, of Denniston avenue, whose wedding date has been announced as June 2, has named her bridal party. On that day, as you know, she becomes the bride of Donald Albert Burdett, of Hartford, Conn., at high noon in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, with the Rev. Dr. H. Boyd Edwards, rector, officiating.

And Ann has named as matron of honor and her only attendant, her sister, Mrs. Kenneth Edward Niemann. Burdett Gibson, of Evanston, Ill., will be the best man. Edward P. Buchanan, brother of the bride-elect, and Kelsey H. Jewett, of Buffalo, N. Y., will be ushers.

After the ceremony there will be a small reception for only the immediate families and a few inmate friends in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association annex. After a wedding trip, Mr. Burdett and his bride will make their home in Hartford.

Miss Marie P. Freyvogel, of Semple street, Oakland, has chosen Wednesday, June 25, as the date for her marriage to Lawrence Leo Koch, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Koch. Miss Freyvogel has asked Miss Clara Marie Walsh to be her only attendant, and Gerald Koch will be his brother's best man. Mr. Koch and his bride will live in Pittsburgh after a wedding trip.

* * *

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, will give a luncheon today in the University Club in honor of Dr. Karl Compton, president-elect of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dr. Compton is a member of the faculty of Princeton University at present.

* * *

Beta Chapter of Delta Sigma Epsilon, national sorority, will hold its last formal dance of the season on Thursday in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Miss Sally Dixon, of Mt. Lebanon, is general chairman of the dance.

'Sweethearts' Production Lavish

If you had happened into the Nixon Theater last night not knowing that it was a Girls' Friendly performance of "Sweethearts" that you were to see you might easily have mistaken it for one of the season's professional Herbert revivals. It was as lavish and colorful a production as any of the revivals that came this way and its performance was well up in the same class. The tempo will, no doubt, be accelerated tonight and the halting here and there on the lines will be eliminated, and it is to be expected that more careful lighting will be given the tender little "Cricket on the Hearth" scene at the second and final performance this evening.

Taking it all in all, it was a most creditable performance and can be marked up to the honor and ability of Trinity Branch, Girls' Friendly Society, which already has a proud histrionic and musical record.

If she could have come back to the Sixth avenue playhouse last night, Christie McDonald would have approved Margaret Garrity's singing of the role made famous by that older singer and last sung here by her in 1915. Miss Garrity was decorative, intelligently sympathetic in her interpretation, and she can sing.

Ernest L. Malapert, as the prince, acquitted himself with a most engaging swagger and an excellent voice. John Morris had Tom McNaughton's old role of Slingsby. He got his humor over well, but his character song needs to be pepped up a bit. Others whose work was especially commendable were Myra Belle Davis, Milton Tully, Jane Kerr as the Malapropian mother, Edward C. Price, Chris Beitel, Ray Yount, George Black and Helen O'Herron, Joe Collins and Blaine Moke, whose dancing was heartily commended by the audience.

And those choruses! The girls are unusually pretty, they can sing and step, they wear their clothes well, and their work brought as much enthusiasm as that of the principals.

Here's looking to next year's Gee Fess production, and many more after that.

Seldes Links Art With Machine Age

By PENELOPE REDD

Many adventures have befallen Gilbert Seldes since he left Pittsburgh in 1914, including peremptory dismissal from Spain because he kissed his wife in a railway train; a great success as a critic of contemporary arts in the most intellectual periodicals, and an equal success in the most widely read five-cent weekly magazine.

Penelope Redd

His latest triumph is an arrangement of a popular farce by the ancient Greek dramatist, Aristophanes. It has proven a comic vogue in Philadelphia and promises a diverting summer show for Broadway.

His early experiences on a Pittsburgh newspaper, however, are still as amusing to him as telling the world about the lively arts.

In the final conference of the series on the relation of art and industry, in the Kaufmann auditorium yesterday, Mr. Seldes remarked:

"A critic of the arts recognizes actual beauty in the product of the scientist and the engineer.

"I do not know whether in 1906 I had any inkling of my future admiration for the triumphs of machinery, but I recall when I was working in the Carnegie Library here as a stack-boy, I would cut away during the slow hours and go down to the engine room which seemed to me then a miracle of cleanliness and beauty.

"I think that what first brought the beauty of mechanical objects to us in a striking manner was the motor car. For most of us, the rapid changes in motor car design, the almost unbroken march forward to more and more beautiful structural form has been a lesson which we unconsciously learned.

"I have used the motor car as an example because it is the typical mechanism of our time.

"The same thing is happening in every industry. Among the things which are changing their shapes, colors and appearances, we find everything from motor cars to fountain pens and washing machines.

"The new thing which has come into being since the war is the appearance of industry as the patron of the arts in the old sense, as the instigator of the artist, giving him new work to do and work which is associated with the common life of his time.

"I do not think that the rich man is really the new patron of the arts unless he is also familiar or at least sympathetic with the needs of the technician and the engineer. For these men are the ones who are dictating the new forms in which art now expresses itself. Two requirements are dominant, a feeling for material and a feeling for the function.

"The powerful impulse which the arts have given to industry is all in favor of flexibility and mobility and change and these are qualities which have always been inherent in our national character. So long as the pioneering spirit maintains itself, the work of the artist will go on and we will combine new elements and isolate others and discover new uses for the things we have known.

"I am not an industrialist and I do not know whether industry needed this transfusion of new blood, but for 20 years I have observed the arts and I can say with considerable assurance that the artist in America, unless he wanted to remain forever in the tradition of the European arts, did need a new approach to the life around him and I am fairly convinced that in the field of industrial design he has found it."

INTRICATE DETAILS MARK THE CHARMING WASH FROCK

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, MAY 24.—The little washing frock dips itself into the sea of fashion that eddies about us and emerges as a shiny contender for sartorial honors. Many well-known couturiers are giving nice little frocks of tub silk quite prominent representation in their summer collections as frocks of this kind offer a cool comfort that cannot be duplicated by any other material. But there is nothing ordinary about such models, for they are cut with the same care for intricate detail that characterizes elaborate afternoon gowns.

Little capes, set-in bands diagonal piecings are some of the interesting features of these tub silk frocks, many of which are offered in all sorts of fascinating patterns and color schemes. And so now that the little tub silk frock has been glorified it can take its place in the fashion parade with a surety of success.

AS AN ELOQUENT testimony to the charm of the simple little summer frock as interpreted by a master designer we offer a sketch of such a model from the showrooms of Thomas et Leon. It is of checked tub silk and the puffed short sleeves and graceful flat cape are interesting features. By using the checked material in bias inserts an effective contrast is obtained. The skirt has wide box pleats formed by insets cleverly placed at intervals.

THE DINNER dress, this season rises to new heights of charm and distinction. Its smart simplicity and absence of any but essential details marks it as the ideal choice of the true elegante who makes quiet perfection her sartorial goal. Such a frock is the model from Maggy Rouff which we had sketched. Good features of this smart model include the fluttering bow on the shoulder, the soft drapery at the waistline, the spiral flounce and the trailing point in back. The frabric is black georgette, an ideal medium for the smart but plain dinner frock.

'Hell's Angels' Is Movies' Biggest Mystery Since Philo

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 24.

Stories so unusual that they positively smack of wildness have begun floating the gossip rounds again. Concerning "Hell's Angels," the Howard Hughes four million aerial floater.

They say that Mr. Hughes is so insistent his picture be a secret that he changed cutters every reel or so. As a rule, one person cuts a picture. Not so with young Hughes. He has a slew of 'em. Perhaps if they all get together they can piece the story into a whole.

Ben Lyon

A chap was just telling me yesterday that not even Hughes has seen the entire picture run off. This listens bit too amazing, but my informant solemnly swore his statement to be true.

Hughes hasn't allowed Sid Grauman, the former local theater manager, who is preparing the exploitation dressing for "Hell's Angels" to see the film, it is said. Grauman retaliates by not letting Hughes get a peek at his prologue in rehearsal.

Ben Lyon, who worked in this marathoner for two years, has never seen a bit of it. Neither has James Hall. They say that Joseph March, author of the dialogue, has glimpsed some of it but not much. Darndest goings on.

Such mystery hasn't been heard of since Van Dine's Philco Vance first toddled to Hollywood.

IN LOOPTROPOLIS

Eddie Lowe and Lilyan Tashman, having finally made their long planned New York trip together, left Manhattan yesterday, arrived in Chicago today. Will spend today in the Looptropolis and board the Chief tomorrow en route to more dialogue and salaries.

Betty Compson

Since Betty Compson started proceedings against Jimmy Cruze and got her divorce papers t'other day, she has been in hiding. At least no one knows where she is, which may be interpreted as hiding. She'll exit next week. Reason! Edwin Carewe begins "The Smilers" then and Betty has the lead in it.

A LIFE MEMBER

There's a club out here called the Dominoes. Comparatively new. Located in an attractive house in Hollywood. Comprised of stage folk. The club, of course, sort of a sister attraction to the Masquers. Lucille Gleason is president. T'other day, John Barrymore purchased a life membership in the club for his small daughter, Dolores, who by now must be all of six or eight weeks old. That should give the Barrymore heiress a start along the family lines.

NAVARRO MAKES LOVE BY MOONLIGHT "IN GAY MADRID"

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Whether it's the result of the temperate counsels of the highly moral Will Hays, or just the languid boredom that ensues after a long career of hectic passion, Ramon Navarro's love-making "In Gay Madrid" seemed a bit academic and adagio. Perhaps it was because he was torn between Dorothy Jordon and Lottice Howell, which made it difficult to give his whole heart to either charmer. Anyway, Navarro's love-making at the Penn Theater is strictly according to the code prevailing in the best ladies' seminaries.

George Seibel

And the picture. "In Gay Madrid," although Edwin Justus Mayer had something to do with it, is strong on moonlight and guitars, but won't set any hearts aflame or send anybody's blood to the boiling point.

OLD STAGE PROPERTIES

There are all the well-known devices of romance—a balcony scene borrowed from "Romeo and Juliet;" a screen or cupboard scene borrowed from "The School for Scandal" and a duel scene borrowed from "Monte Cristo." So we ought to get romantically attuned but we don't. For about half the picture life in Spain seems dull.

Ramon looks picturesque enough, the students work hard at their rollicking, the heroine and the vamp are altogether appetizing, the tango is danced with languid grace—but the Spanish spice is lacking.

If you can't feel sinful and malcasado after a night "In Gay Madrid," you might as well go to Chautauqua.

"ALL ABOARD" WITH TEDDY

Cruising with Teddy Joyce and a bevy of Chester Hale Girls in chic sailor suits made the stage show, "All Aboard," a pleasant excursion.

Then there were two very funny comedians, Seed and Austin, who kick and cuff and twist each other into all sorts of acute angles.

And the Four Emperors of Harmony sing with voices that reach down into your heart's very basement.

Teddy Joyce got a fine reception and did his shadow dance as well as ever, while Maestro David Pesetzki provided a fine symphonic overture.

Singing Hero

Ramon Novarro is a singing hero in "In Gay Madrid," the new talkie in the Penn.

GRAFF AND NEW FILM OPEN TODAY IN HARRIS

The George Sharp Players present the final performances of "After Dark" in the Pitt today. The Sharp attraction next week will be the comedy, "Ritzy."

"Double Cross Roads" opens today on the Harris screen. Lila Lee and Robert Ames are featured. Victor Graff will present a revue on the stage.

"Safety in Numbers," starring Charles Buddy Rogers, is the current screen attraction in the Stanley.

"Journey's End," drama of war, will open a second week on the Sheridan Square screen Monday.

'PARAMOUNT PARADE' IN ENRIGHT, WARNER

"Paramount on Parade" opened yesterday in the Enright concurrent with the beginning of its second week's engagement at the Warner. The production, a movie revue, features prominent entertainers associated with the Paramount Studios and including Clara Bow, Jack Oakie, Helen Kane, Charles Buddy Rogers, Leon Errol, George Bancroft, Skeets Gallagher and Gary Cooper.

West Penn Vets Honored at Feast

Forty employes of the West Penn Electric Company were honored at the annual dinner of the Veterans' Association, held in McCreery's dining room last night. Twenty-eight of the men were 20-year veterans, five were 25-year veterans, and seven were 30-year men.

Curry who owned seven acres of land in Snowden and Jefferson Townships confiscated by the Wheeling, Pittsburgh and Baltimore Railroad brought Curry a $12,000 verdict against the railroad company. The case was tried in Common Pleas Court, the action having been hanging fire since 1915. Currey sued for $30,000 for the taking of his property.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Balm

I've saved the letters that you wrote to me,
I've saved the thoughts of fresh, enchanted bliss;
I never thought such happiness could be,
For life to me was ever hit and miss.

The days were magic interludes of dreams,
The nights were all too short, but heaven sent;
Love came on wings of burnished gold, it seems,
Paused for a while, then all too swiftly went.

Now it is done—new lures have called to you,
And life takes on its sombre, gray routine;
There's nothing really left for me to do
But bind my wounds, and vanish from the scene.

You're taken hope and trust from me—that's true,
But you can't take those nights along with you!
—Kid Kazanova.

Gag

George White was reminiscing again. He recalled the days when he ham'd it in small-time vaudeville. White and his partner were unknown to a certain theatrical manager, who asked them to explain the type of act they did.

"Never mind," said White, "you just watch us. We're a wow!"

The manager went out front to catch their act, which flopped all over the place, the egg-layers walking out without a single "hand."

The manager hastened back stage to their undressing-room.

"Say!" he exploded, "I've heard of a wow before, but this is the first time it's been thoroughly explained to me!"

Things That Knock Me Cold

According to the current Photoplay, John Farrow has a great definition of a cad. "A cad," says Mr. Farrow, "is a man who would hit a woman with his hat on."

Which was just as great when Fred (Little Show) Allen told it on the pavement in front of the Palace on August 8, 1922.

Imagine!

Marc Lachman reminds us that the actors who triumphed during the "silent" film era, still detest those who replaced them when the "talkie" vogue began. So when Eddie Foy, Jr., who just signed with the "talkies," passed the Palace stage entrance yesterday, "Rin-Tin-Tin" (who is playing there) snapped at him.

Who, Me???

"See here," see-heres "A Mother," "some time ago you wrote in your 'Things You Didn't Know Till Now' that if a girl holds in her breath she will make her face blush. Since then my little daughter has almost fainted 20 times and went into convulsions trying to get a pretty blush. You should be hanged!"

Heheheh

The other night an elderly woman came backstage to see Bert Lahr, the star of "Flying High."

"You must help me out," she said. "I've got a son who doesn't want to work. He only wants to do like you do."

S'Help Me, It's True!

A well-known song-writer, who has been common-lawing it with his "heart" for five years, was composing a new melody the other week-end in their apartment. She is a very nervous girl and she scolded him for playing too loud.

"Listen, kid," he snapped, "this is my living. If you don't like it, you can leave!" The wounded woman left in a huff.

Two nights ago she paused in front of the Capitol Theater near Fifty-first street, where a man backed out of a cab, and helped his charming lady companion to the pavement. The infuriated song-writer's gal banged the fellow over the head with her umbrella, and then punched him silly until he turned around.

"Oh, my!" she exclaimed, "I'm so sorry, I thought you were my sweetheart!"

"That's all right, honey," he countered, "I thought you were my wife!"

Ballywhoopee

Several columns ago it was chronicled here that "Gina Malo," who was being imported from Paris to replace Lily Damita in "Sons o' Guns," was a local Colleen, but the newspapers were not interested.

"Gina Malo," a beautiful gal, and talented, finally arrived yesterday and the rags still insist that she is a foreign "find." The New York Sun, frinstance, reported: "Among the passengers was Gina Malo, 18-year-old star of the Theater Chatelet of Paris, who came to this country to join a show."

Well, if we have to draw pictures for the skeptics, Gina Malo is Janet Flynn, one of the former Albertina Rasch toe-and-heelers, and she has been "Scandal-ized" by George White.

And she isn't 18!

Novelette

J. P. Morgan tells the story himself. The famous financier was visiting one of the wine cellars in a French cafe, and picked out two bottles of Bergundy of an ancient and renowned vintage. "I want these," said J. P.

"But no, that cannot be, they are not for sale," protested the proprietor, "they are too, too precious!"

Undaunted, Mr. Morgan slipped the two bottles under his coat, and the cafe owner later found a blank check signed with the famous Morgan signature.

A check — he has never cashed!

Why Columnists Gray Young

"And," says M. Glebowitz, in the Jewish Daily Forward, "Broadwayites fear him as they would a conflagration, and hate his as they do death . . . He does not bother to throw in a word here and there to say that a certain personage presented a well-known actress with an expensive automobile. He merely tells that he sold the automobile to her at a sacrifice. It is not difficult, however, to understand Winchell's meaning."

Apparently, Mr. Glebowitz cannot read our "English" as well as he can read the language he writes. The line in question was printed here in this manner:

"Larry Fay has sold his $38,000 car, which once belonged to the Belgian King, to Texas Guinan for $2,000."

What we meant to say, Mr. Glebowitz, if we didn't make it clear, was that Larry Fay has sold his $38,000 car, which once belonged to the Belgian King, to Texas Guinan for $2,000.

Exhibition of Whale To Open Monday

An exhibition of deep sea life featuring "Colossus," a giant embalmed whale, opens Monday in a specially constructed railroad car on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, between Tenth and Eleventh streets. "Colossus" weighs more than 70 tons and measures 63 feet in length. It was captured last December off the coast of Lower California. Capt. David Marnett, retired whaling master, will appear with the exhibit and lecture on its various phases.

THE COMIC BRENDEL AND POPPING TIE IN ALDINE

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH.

As a Romeo, El Brendel is a good butler. And, as a butler, he's a grand comic. If you're inclined to doubt, go to the Aldine and get an eye and ear full of him in the "Fox Movietone Follies of 1930."

This "Follies" is a wise-cracking motion picture, with a lot of slapstick hilarity thrown in as a good measure. It is crowded with smart remarks and it has a number of snappy songs.

Comic Mr. Brendel has a busy time of it. When he isn't at the job of "butlering," he's masquerading as a big lumber man from the West and going in for the love stuff in a rough and tumble way. He sports a bow tie that just won't stay home. In every sequence it pops some place at least once.

The production isn't a revue. It is more of a musical comedy. It has a plot that involves a sort of dual romance. There are all of Mr. Brendel's Don Juan antics and these are sandwiched in with a rich young lad's romance with a show girl. Of course, the happy fadeout comes. It has Mr. Brendel submerged in a fountain and the young hero, depicted by William Collier, Jr., in the heroine's arms.

Some moments of scenic elaborateness come when Rich Young's lad exhibits a Broadway revue for the benefit of disabled soldiers.

Marjorie White, petite and peppy lady from the stage, has a big spot in the film. She sings, she bawls and she chases Big Lumberman Brendel all over the place.

Yes, it is a laugh—this latest Movietone splash. It is uproarous comedy lots of the time. But then, it isn't always perfect comedy. However, in the lines of Little Marjorie:

"Can a chicken lay a cornerstone?"

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: Should jay walkers, those persons who cross at streets haphazardly and in violation of red light signals, be arrested?

SARA FERRARA, secretary, Homewood: I can't see any reason why jay walkers shouldn't be arrested. They do everything in their power to get themselves injured or killed. If they don't watch out for themselves, then the authorities will have to take action.

Miss Ferrara

ALBERT P. JAGEMAN, Morningside: In order to stop jay walking, indeed a menace to traffic, all violators should be arrested and fined. The offenders know that they are 'getting away with it.' Fines will stop the practice and make motoring in congested areas much safer.

A. P. Jageman

MELVIN CLEAR, clerk, East Liberty: Sometimes they should and sometimes they shouldn't. It all depends on the circumstances. When pedestrians go through busy streets with their eyes up in the air, instead of watching where they are going, then I think they should be 'hauled in.'

Melvin Clear

SIDNEY MAIER, Schenley Heights: All I can say and all I deem worth saying on this matter is that if real enforcement of traffic laws is to be had, then all jay walkers would be taken into custody and given fines. It is the only solution to a serious problem. Jay walkers constitute a menace both to themselves and the motoring public as well.

Sidney Maier

EDWARD W. MERTZ, statistician, Shadyside: In my opinion, jay walkers are one of the worst traffic menaces traffic planners and police have to contend with. They totally disregard red light signals and cross thoroughfares at any point. They are in danger of being injured or killed. A few arrests would put a stop to the practice.

E. W. Mertz

WILLIAM H. STANTON, Bureau of Traffic Planning, downtown: I firmly believe that if arrests were made for jay walking the menace would be eradicated within a short time. Jay walkers are a menace to both themselves and to motorists. Pedestrians who walk through red light traffic signals, too, should be impounded.

W. H. Stanton

Will Rogers Says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 24.

We finally got the real low down on the intelligence of the Senate. The Capitol Building put in dial telephones and out of 96 members only two knew enough to work 'em, and both these member were men who had been defeated at the last election, showing they knew entirely too much to be in there. Carter Glass thought it was a rat trap and baited his with cheese, so they are going to have them taken out. There is nobody to put the blame on but yourself if you get the wrong number. They want nothing connected with the Senate in any way where the responsibility can't be shifted.

Yours,
WILL.

P. S.—Los Angeles census is not out yet. Our surveyors are still annexing more territory. We had Mexico City, and the League of Nations made us give it back.

Sand for Steel

In manufacture of steel castings it is estimated by A. H. Dierker, of Ohio State University, that 1,000 tons of new molding sands is required per ton of castings.

Water for Goldfish

Experts of the goldfish industry assert the denizens of the glass bowl should have at least one gallon of water for each inch of body, exclusive of the tail.

CHICKIE By ELENORE MEHERIN

Mother Seriously Ill When Chickie Returns Home

CHAPTER XCIV.

Strange to shut a door and leave behind it, finished and cold, the anguish of the past.

Chickie wept, doing that.

It was over—the waiting; the fearing. And she had a little dead child with red-gold hair. They would put a monument on its grave. She wanted that.

Going back now; back to those two waiting so long. Soon Jonathan would wrap his arms about her, raise her face in his hands. Oh—he would hold her so.

She cried softly. Now it was for Jennie and that Jennie might be gone; the blue, dear eyes closed. Now it was for herself and that she had to treat them so. Oh—Mary said she was a selfish thing and what she did was cruel, thinking of herself—not at all of them that loved her so; leaving them so sad on Christmas Day.

But if Mary could have really known these months; the hour just passed. If Mary had to close a door like that, or if she had carried her little son all cold against her neck. Chickie had to do it. Had to.

She sank against the red plush cushions. The hum-hum of the wheels at the rails drummed monotonously on her nerves. It was like the wearing and ache of her flesh. She was glad for the weakness; it was a drug lulling her senses; making her thoughts and her fears drift vaguely. It gave her respite from herself.

Alarmed by Dream

Sleep came upon her—troubled. Jonathan opened the door. His hands touching hers were ice. He didn't take her in his arms. He stood there with his chin doubled, his lips tight. He kept shaking his head. And she knew. All for nothing—too late—

But again she dreamed that as the door opened Jennie came pattering. She wiped her eyes on the corner of her snowy apron; gave her sly laugh. She said: "Home, Chickie, dear! You thought I was dying? Oh—I was only lonely. We wanted you back! We made believe—" But as she said this, Chickie took something from under her coat and put it in Jennie's hands. It was the baby, and it was alive. Jennie's face grew ashen, her mouth opened. She seemed to totter, to shrink. Then the hall was dark. Jennie wasn't there. Chickie was alone, leaning against the living room door. The house was filled with moaning.

She awakened, moist with alarm, glanced about her nervously. Across the aisle a woman with a large florid face and black, straight hair dozed. She had a double chin—her mouth was open. There was no other passengers in this end of the train.

It was eight o'clock. Less than an hour now—home again.

The rush and scramble at the terminal bewildered her—boys shouting their papers, men dashing for taxis, automobiles honking among the stream of restless humanity pouring and whirling. She held fast to Wildie's leash. A man screamed, "Taxie, lady, taxi" at her ear. She nodded and followed.

Back Home

And her heart stood still because they went so fast. She was afraid of the word that waited—that she would hear so soon, now. She kept pressing her hands; kept talking to the dog: "Going home, Wildie—you and me!"

The familiar street was dark. It breathed heavily under its canopy of silence. She strained her eyes against the window; She winked the tears back.

The front door opened softly—a deep, muffled cry: "Chickie! Chickie girl!" Jonathan like a boy, bounding down the steps, half lifting her in his arms, carrying her.

Then she saw his face—haggard—and worn. She closed her eyes. She whispered: "Jennie? Jennie—"

"Ah, God, Chickie!"

"Oh, Jonathan—quick—tell me—"

He said—"Come—"

Half fainting she followed, clinging to his arm. Half blindly she went into their room, reached the bed, dropping on her knees. Jennie lay there.

Jonathan stooped down and whispered in her ears: "Mother—she's here—mother—"

Jennie didn't stir—Chickie heard a faint, gasping breath. She looked and saw the plump, gentle face, white, thin—the nostrils pinched.

Oh—but she was there! She was alive—she was left to them. Chickie reached for the wasted hands, brought them to her lips. And Jonathan said, with a chuckle in his murmuring voice, "Jennie! Your Chickie! Jennie—she's come!"

The pale lips opened, a flicker of joy, a faint "Chickie?" Jennie turned—saw her—ah—smiled. Chickie buried her face against her mother's arms and cried because of the look in Jennie's eyes—and cried because her heart was broken so. Oh, Jennie looked at her as though it were an angel come to visit her—as though it were the sweetness of heaven opening.

And Jennie raised her hand a little. She touched Chickie's hair.

Jonathan came over then and lifted Chickie in his arms and pressed her against his shoulder, sobbing and holding her so tight.

She said: "Jonathan—she's all right—Jennie's all right—"

His chin doubled as it had in her dream. He shook his head: "I don't know—I don't know—pray God!"

But Chickie answered: "She is! She is!"

She clung to her mother's hand—held her—death should not win—oh, there's been enough—enough—

Mother Rallies

She sat there through the night and knew no pain of her own. She looked across to Jonathan and smiled. He came over and kissed her—raised her face in his hands, saying again and again: "Chickie girl—Chickie—"

Once Jennie heard that—opened her eyes wide, smiled. She said clearly, "I knew she'd come."

"Mother—you know me—I'm here—" Chickie smoothed the hair from Jennie's wide forehead—she leaned down and kissed it gently. Tears were at the corner of Jennie's eyes.

Oh—the peace of these nights and days! Oh—the shelter and the quiet of Jonathan's arms—the benediction of Jennie's smile.

Die—not now—and Chickie here. Her coming wrought a miracle.

Jonathan met her in the hall one morning that first week. She was bringing gruel to her mother. Jonathan cried. He said: "Thank God for you, Chickie girl—you saved her."

Chickie turned her face away.

Another time at breakfast, Jonathan got up swiftly, put his arms on Chickie's shoulders.

Household Hints

Whitening is excellent for removing all kinds of stains from enamelled baths, saucepans and so on. Apply with a soft cloth, then rinse well with cold water.

Ice has a tonic effect upon the skin. It brings a quick reaction of the blood streams. The warm bath should be followed by a quick cold shower. Ice cold compresses wrapped around smarting, tired feet will be found a refreshing treatment. A drink of cold water should be taken every morning upon awakening.

GREEDY GLORIETTE—OR BIG DREAMS

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

THE GREAT "Romance of Other Women's Lives" is a book to stir up high dreams. It goes to a young girl's head, ferments there and the vapor of ambitious dreams arises.

"Oh, to be this—and that. Oh, to do—and be! I want lots of life—I demand vast things. I want Fame. To be famous. Not just 'in the papers,' but really some day a woman who has done something, whose name will electrify the shop-girl and the Bailey-Beacher alike. When I buy my silk stockings the pretty girl behind the counter will stammer, telling me sincerely how she adores me—my voice—my dancing—my writing—my plays—whatever it is I climbed to the Hall of Fame by—and the high-born will swarm up languidly and effervesce asking me 'my dear can't I come to them?" Old ladies to know about me and to love me—that's what I yearn for. Children to know about me and to wish, that they might see me—that's what I dream of.

"Oh Fame—high-up woman, I'm going to make you reach down your hand to me and give me a boost up beside you. Fame is the race lady I want for a friend. 'La belle dame sans merci,' they say; but I love the flowered frock she wears and the wreath in her hair. I like her gifts and want some in my hands. Lovely clothes, respect for a mind and talents—maybe genius, look out!—travel, praise!"

That is one side of any Gloriette's dream who has a mind and ardor. But only one side. Gloriette is greedy. She wants cake. But she wants bread, too!

She is born in this strange time that brings her just to wearing long hair for the first time in 1930—and she is familiar enough with careers to have a great thirst for one. But also she has seen enough of them for the novelty, the priceless quality to have faded into its proper place.

Now Gloriette says: "I want, oh I want, fame, a career; but I want to have a home and a husband and a baby, too. And I want to be a success at it, too."

There's Demoiselle 1930, my lads.

And just for her ease of mind when she wakes up and sets forth on her tall heels, let us tell her that it has been done.

Though the crab-apples have said otherwise. Crab-apple sauce, Gloriette!

Mincemeat Takes Mother Graham's Mind Off Her Troubles

As I waited for my mother-in-law's answer to my query concerning the mincemeat question I had something of the feeling of an anxious angler throwing a favorite fly into the pool where he knows a wary trout is lurking. That my bait was one to which my mother-in-law never fails to rise I knew, but was it sufficiently enticing to make her forget the unfortunate incident of a few minutes before when for the first time in my life my risibles had broken discipline and I had audibly chuckled at an absurd sentence in her tirade? That was the question which lay beneath my lowered eyelids as I furtively watched her.

"Have we any mincemeat left over from Thanksgiving?" she repeated with a tang of offended dignity in her voice. "Have you gone out of your mind, Margaret? They're too fond of my mincemeat around this house for any of it to be left over."

"Oh, I know that mother," I said hastily. "I am not surprised to find it is gone."

She rose from her chair and walked to the wall calendar, thumbing it over as she mentally calculated days.

"Not quite three weeks until Christmas," she said at last. "I suppose I'd better get at it tomorrow morning. You send Katie up to me and I'll go over the list with her so she can order the things this afternoon and have them all ready to begin work tomorrow morning."

I hoped my face did not reflect my dismay at this unexpected result of my ruse to placate her. I, indeed, had launched a boomerang. I knew what tasks of cleaning and preparing rooms for our unexpected visitors loomed before my little maid and how uncertain—or rather certain—would be her temper—if the task of making mincemeat was put up to her when she was still bewildered with the thought of so many extra people to be entertained.

The accumulated fatigue of the exciting day suddenly swept over me and I felt that I could not endure a single added burden. But I knew my mother-in-law's inexorable will and that no ordinary argument would avail to persuade her to put off the making of the mincemeat until Katie could have more leisure. Least of all, could I remind her of the truth—that to Katie would fall all the work of preparing the mincemeat, down to the minutest detail. Mother Graham's part consisted in sitting majestically in a chair by the kitchen table and "bossing" with gusto.

"Mother," I said explosively, "have you forgotten your grandson? You know how Junior loves to help with the mincemeat, crack nuts and grind the meat, and everything! It seems a shame not to let Roderick and perhaps even the older boys have a chance at it, too. Don't you suppose it could possibly wait until they get here?"

"Of course it can wait," she said. "It really will be better if it isn't made so far ahead. And I don't suppose the boys ever had a chance to help with holiday cooking before. Elizabeth had queer ideas—" she hesitated, and I felt a surge of sympathy with the mother of "queer" Elizabeth Harrison—"and always bought things ready cooked. And, of course, at Harriet's her perfectly trained servants see to everything. This is a splendid idea of yours, Margaret. You are very thoughtful. Now, if you are as tired as I am you need a nap. I'm going to take one, and I advise you to do the same."

It was a dismissal which I eagerly accepted. But there was genuine compunction for my play upon her sympathies in my kiss as I left her.

Horoscopes

Sunday, May 25

Sunday's horoscope stresses the occasions for pleasure through social, artistic, domestic and affectional affiliations, and also promises interesting mystical, spiritual or psychic aspirations. Advancement or preferment should come through such channels of activity, but sharp reign should be kept on the passions and emotions.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which the cultural, emotional, social and mystical experiences may be uppermost. Benefits, recognition and advancement may come through higher avenues of ambition, but progress should not be placed in jeopardy by impetuosity, temper or self-indulgence.

A child born on this day should rise to position and recognition by means of its social, cultural or mystical tendencies and talents, although it may be practical, courageous as well as subtle in its reaches for popularity and progress, both of which are assured by benefit stars.

Monday, May 26

Monday's astrological forecast is for much substantial progress in all pertaining to lands, property, mining, machinery or agriculture. These should react to fine stimulus after a period of congestion, delay and frustration. There may be some unforseen change or journey of benefit, although there may be some petty annoyances or anxieties of a personal nature.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of substantial progress and propserity in all matters of labor, industry, lands or real possessions. An unexpected change or journey may be in store, as well as some petty personal anxieties or worries.

A child born on this day may be steady and industrious and should attain possessions by its own individual hard work as well as skill and ingenuity.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Community Husbands

"When I get married," remarked a smart young business woman to me, "I'm going to pick out a plain man, with a rugged profile, an incipient bald spot, no 'IT' or S. A. to speak of, and the salary of a college professor.

"That's because I'm not going into marriage for an adventure or an experiment, but as a life-partnership, and I want my marriage to LAST. I want it to be something to BUILD life on and around—something to work for.

"And, from what I see around the average business office, no woman's husband is safe if he's got a good profile, a good income or an impressionable mind. Women who wouldn't dream of stealing an umbrella or mussing up your guest towels, will help themselves to your husband and muss up your life without a qualm of conscience.

* * *

"Once upon a time a married man was a MARRIED man—but now he's just a prospective grass-widower.

* * *

"Any girl who wants a little amusement, a summer escort, a new job or a wedding ring, looks around for the nearest personable married man whom she can persuade that his wife "doesn't understand him."

* * *

"She doesn't waste her time looking for an impressionable bachelor, because she knows that an unmarried man is woman-shy and full of wariness, and that he will suspect her of matrimonial designs upon him from the first drop of the eyelashes. He is just a large body of suspicion, completely surrounded by caution and fortifications.

* * *

"His heart has storm-proof doors on all sides, and his emotions have been carefully insulated.

"But a married man is as unsuspecting and as defenseless as Belgium. And, next to blanc mange and prune souffle, the softest thing on earth is the vanity of a man whose wife has become a habit to him.

* * *

"Young girls used to spend their time and energy luring a single man into matrimony, but, now, they devote most of their art to luring a married man OUT of it.

"I am too busy to waste my days defending my property rights in my own husband. And, after I have gotten him home-broken, harnessed and bridle-wise, I am not going to pitch pennies for him with the first bright-eyed little thing who comes along and takes a fancy to him.

* * *

"That's why I am going to pick a life-mate who is not too attractive, too rich, too successful or too much of a temptation to other women.

"I am not mid-Victorian or ungenerous or narrowminded. But there are a few things that I do not consider community property, and which I refuse to share with ANY woman—my toothbrush, my bank book and my husband."

How to Keep Well

By DR COPELAND

Skin Inflammation

There are many forms of inflammation of the skin. Eczema is one of the most common of them. Infants suffer from it more than from any other skin trouble. It is a very uncomfortable thing to have.

DR COPELAND

It usually indicates a poor condition of the digestive tract. Any digestive disturbance may bring it on. In the case of infants it may be caused by irritation of the clothing, too strong soap, or cold, damp winds.

Like almost every inflammation, eczema begins with a redness of the skin; then small blisters appear and break, followed by a scale or crust. There is terrible itching, and a baby may scratch itself badly, causing infection, unless the fingernails are kept very short.

It most often happens on the face, though other forms attack the arms, legs or body. The hands may be the seat of trouble.

Eczema of the scalp in babies may occur before or after weaning, and pain and soreness of teething may come with it. The constant irritation may wear the baby out. Fresh milk, beef juice and a little orange juice daily should cure the worst cases.

Adults in a run-down condition are apt to have eczema. It may be the outward signs of a poorly working stomach and intestines, or it may mean that the kidneys are not operating properly.

No matter whether it is the young child or the adult who is afflicted with this trouble, the first thing to do is to regulate the bowels. The diet must be looked into thoroughly and corrected. In infants, diet is of especial importance. Fat must be reduced and constipation corrected. Probably something in the food will have to be changed at your doctor's direction.

Too highly seasoned food or alcoholic stumulants may produce this skin disease. Any excess in the diet must be overcome before a person may expect to cure the eczema.

The local treatment for infants and adults is about the same.

There are many persons who have sensitive skins. In such cases nothing but the purest water, such as distilled water, should be used, or water softened by the use of borax. The mildest soaps should be used.

Your doctor should direct the internal medication and the right diet for you. You should help yourself to the extent of getting a lot of exercise, fresh air and sunshine, as well as plenty of sleep and rest. These are the prime essentials to health.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Older Brother's Privilege

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to be married in a few weeks and due to the fact that I have no parents, just my four older brothers, I am uncertain as to how my invitations should be worded? My oldest brother will give me away in marriage, but I am paying all my own expenses.

A. B.

I suggest that also you have your oldest brother sponsor your wedding invitations. This would be especially splendid since he is to give you in marriage. If he is married the invitation should read in the name of both him and his wife. Best like this:

"CAUGHT SHORT"

Starring

MARIE DRESSLER
POLLY MORAN

Based on

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Caught Short," Written by Willard Mack.

A Cosmopolitan Production.

"No matter how hard she tries, Jenny Jones can't persuade her mother, Marie, the boarding house mistress, that her engagement to William Smith, son of a great boarding-house keeper and stock market speculator, Polly Smith, is anything but tragedy.

"I've heard of using stock certificates for wall paper," says Mrs. Jones, "but I've never heard of stock certificates being good for breakfast, either fried or scrambled."

Marie finally hurries over to tell Polly she doesn't think much of William as a prospective son-in-law. Polly replies she never had known that Marie thought much anyway.

"Ah ha," says Marie, looking at men removing pianos and chairs. "I see you've lost all your money in the stock market and are selling your furniture."

"Ah ha!" echoes Polly. "I've made so much money I'm going to stop keeping a boarding house and go and live in yours!"

After Polly sold her boarding house and went to live at Marie's, the two women quarreled more than ever. It wasn't over the breakfast eggs, either.

"You think you're smart now, buying stocks," Marie says to Polly, "but wait till the bears get you."

"Say, —," says Polly.

"Say it yourself—you've got your mouth open," says Marie, brightly, and adds, "but that's the way with suckers."

Meanwhile Jenny and William are investing all their time in Kisses and Hugs, Preferred.

"I wish our mothers would stop growling at each other," says Jenny.

"I'm thinking of hiring a prize fight referee instead of a minister for the wedding," says William.

"And you might get me a padded ring," smiles Jenny, "to be married in."

STEEL PROFITS TO SLUMP IN QUARTER

Declines in Production And Prices to Affect Earnings of Industry

By B. E. V. LUTY.

It is obvious that the steel industry's earnings will be lower this quarter than last. Some individual companies making specialties or having had bad luck in the first quarter may do as well or better. Tonnage will be about the same and average realized prices will be lower. Production of steel ingots in the first quarter, including an allowance for crucible and electric, was about 12,250,000 tons, probably a little above that figure. Production in the current quarter may be forecast at about 12,125,000 tons as a somewhat conservatively low figure. It may be mentioned that this estimate is made by taking April production of Bessemer and open-hearth ingots, which was at 79.8 per cent of capacity, setting May at 78 per cent and June at 73 per cent and then adding 1 per cent for electric and crucible.

The decrease from first to second quarter according to these figures would be 1 per cent. Of course it is impossible to forecast so closely, but it is made evident that in all probability there will be no important difference in tonnage, with a chance that this quarter will equal or slightly exceed the first quarter.

PRICES ARE DOWN

A comparison of realized prices makes quite a different showing, indicating a decided decrease. Prices realized on shipments do not conform precisely to the current market. On the one hand there are old orders for construction material against which prices are not adjusted for a decline while on the other hand there are generally some large lot sales at cut prices before a decline becomes openly recognized. By the writer's composite finished steel, a weighted average of important lines outside of standard rails, prices declined $1.35 per net ton during the first quarter and have declined $2.00 a ton in this quarter to date. Presumably the decline has not suddenly stopped, while there is more shading than formerly in some lines. One may guess $2.50 as the average decrease in realized prices on shipments from first quarter to second.

Applied directly to the Steel Corporation this would make a decrease of close to $10,000,000 from the $49,615,397 reported for the first quarter but the chances are the decrease will be less, as there are various factors which such a general comparison cannot include. There are transportation earnings on Lake Superior ore this quarter and tin plate quite a profitable line has heavier shipments in second than in first quarters. On the other hand rail shipments may be lighter and rails also are quite profitable. The poorest earning commodities are sheets and ordinary wire and products.

DEMAND RECEDES

There are various reports of a decided falling off in steel demand in the last couple weeks, but it does seem that for three months there has been a disposition to exaggerate such things. Up to date steel production has been heavier than would have been forecast from the trade reports. Mills have to work hard to get orders and specifications and rolling schedules can be made up for only very short periods but the mills do get the tonnage.

Comparisons of steel production rates from time to time are useless unless allowance is made for the seasonal element but a difficulty here is that this year, on account of buyers being so conservative, there may have been less buying one to three months ago than ordinarily would be the case, such buying holding off until now and thus swelling the present tonnage.

ASKS DELAY ON RAIL MERGER

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Postponement of approval of the Great Northern-Northern Pacific Railroad merger until Congress has enacted permanent railroad consolidation legislation was requested of the Interstate Commerce Commission by a committee of seven congressmen from Northwestern states.

Representative Clague (Rep.) of Minnesota, chairman of the committee, said he was sure no action would be taken by the commission pending another order and full hearings. Officials of the roads also told him, he said, the merger is not imminent.

Santa Fe Springs Oil Prospects Brighter

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—Conditions in the Santa Fe Springs oil field have taken a more hopeful turn as a result of informal conferences which have resulted in smoothing out part of the difficulties. Prospects are brighter for lining up one of the chief objectors among producers to the six months curtailment agreement.

In the meantime, most operators are holding vigorously to their agreement.

TRADE VOLUME LOWER

WASHINGTON, May 24.—According to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce for the week ended May 17, business as measured by the volume of check payments was lower than the week ended May 10 and less than that for the same week in 1929. Operations in steel plants during the latest reported week were slightly less than the activity for the preceding week and below the level of the corresponding week in 1929.

Wholesale prices, again showing a decline, were off slightly from what they were a week ago, and were more than 7 per cent below the week of May 18, 1929. The composite iron and steel price registered a slight decline from the previous week and was more than 8 per cent lower than a year ago.

Bank loans and discounts, while showing a slight change from a week ago, were more than 3 per cent below the same period a year ago. Prices for stocks showed a gain over the preceding week and were 8 per cent below the same week of 1929.

Exports of Cotton Decline for Week

NEW YORK, May 24.—Cotton exports for the week showed a slight decrease from the previous week, totaling 37,194 bales, in contrast with 26,630. Bales exported thus far this season total 6,437,886 compared with 7,606,712 in a like period in 1929.

NEW PRODUCT MARKETED

The past two years have been marked by a distinctly new development in the wall paper industry. Until 1928 the factories in this country devoted their entire efforts to securing new designs and colors. Little thought was given to fast colors and stock until recently when the better factories started to specialize in non-fading stock and non-fading colors. Most producers are now making papers which are guaranteed not to fade from the effects of light.

One of the best known lines of paper of this type is known as Stan-Test. This is sold through decorators by the Black-Kiedaisch Company of Pittsburgh. An active demand is being built up for the product due to its superior wearing quality.

APRIL INDUSTRY SHOWS GAIN

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(AP.)—A slight increase in industrial activity in April over that of March was described today by the Federal Reserve Board in its monthly review of general business and financial conditions.

The board found that factory employment declined by the usual seasonal amount, while factory payrolls showed a smaller reduction than usual.

Wholesale prices, the board said, continued to decline in April and the first half of May, while there was a further easing of open market money rates.

OUTPUT GAINS

In the basic industries, April production was slightly larger than in March and the board's index, which makes allowance for the usual seasonal changes, showed an increase of about 2 per cent, offsetting part of the decrease in March.

The output of automobiles showed the usual seasonal expansion, while steel output declined in April and the early part of May and the silk textile production was considerably reduced with woolen mills curtailing operations. Cotton mills were found to have been more active in April, but in the first part of May a program of curtailment was instituted in that industry.

TOBACCO LEADS

The board found that the first four months of the year showed smaller production in all major branches of industry except tobacco when compared with the first four months of 1929. In comparison with the four months of 1928, however, the output was larger in the automobile, petroleum and silk industries, slightly smaller in steel and coal and considerably smaller in cotton and wool, textiles, flour, meat packing, automobile tires and lumber.

The board reported that loans and investments of member banks increased by about $160,000,000 in the latter half of April, but declined by almost that amount in the first two weeks of May. The volume of Reserve Bank credit declined by $125,000,000 between April 19 and May 17, due chiefly to the addition of about $65,000,000 to the stock of monetary gold and of a further substantial reduction in the volume of money in circulation, which reflected chiefly smaller volume of payrolls and decline in retail prices.

Building Activity Gains 2% in April

New construction contracted for in April in Western Pennsylvania showed a gain of 2 per cent over April, 1929, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. Total building and engineering awards in the past month amounted to $13,229,800, as compared with $16,706,800 for the previous month and $13,041,500 for April of last year. Since the first of January, construction contracts aggregated $53,839,100 as compared with $65,731,000 for the corresponding four months' total of 1929.

The April record showed the following classes as the most active: Public works and utilities, $3,610,300; residential buildings, $3,403,600; commercial buildings, $1,943,700, and industrial buildings, $795,000. All other classes, including educational, hospital and institutional, social and recreational, and public buildings aggregated $3,477,000.

GLASS BOTTLE BUSINESS UP

The glass bottle business is good from the standpoint of demand, and very poor from the standpoint of profit secured. There is not only a satisfactory demand for the ware, but most of the orders are for immediate shipment, which next to market conditions is the most annoying to distributors, according to the National Glass Budget.

A reasonable supposition is that when a sale is made in any line, the distributors' worries are over. But in the bottle business, the worry connected with making sales at a price which provides for any fair percentage of profit is scarcely passed until a new annoyance relative to desired shipment has to be met. And so what should be a good business at a satisfactory profit, has, due to the short sighted business methods pursued, become anything but an easy and satisfactory business to follow.

So far this year the volume of business done exceeds that of the same period a year ago. This is particularly true of April figures. And May's report if present conditions hold, will show a similar result.

FREIGHT CAR ORDERS OFF

Railroads of this country on May 1 had 33,723 freight cars on order, compared with 44,429 on May 1, 1929, and 22,242 on May 1, 1928.

Despite the fact the number of freight cars on order on May 1, this year, was 10,706 below the number a year ago, number of new freight cars installed in service during the first four months this year totaled 34,725 compared with 15,927 for the corresponding period in 1929, an increase of 18,798 cars.

Locomotives on order on May 1, 1930, totaled 362, compared with 346 the previous year. Locomotives placed in service in the first four months this year totaled 283 compared with 166 in the corresponding period in 1929 and 531 in 1928.

Of the freight cars on order May 1, 18,434 were box cars, decrease of 1,145 compared with the like date last year. Coal cars for which orders have been placed numbered 11,838, reduction of 8,202 compared with the number of such cars on order on May 1, 1929. Refrigerator cars on order totaled 1,886; flat cars, 1,225; stock cars, 240, and other miscellaneous freight cars, 100.

CITY BUREAU SUPERVISES 18 PARKS

1930 Budget Provides for Continuance of Movies; Modern Tourist Camp

By EDWARD G. LANG,
Director of Public Works.

The Bureau of Parks contains a total of 1,706 acres of land, and is comprised of 18 parks. It operates the Schenley Park conservatory and greenhouse, which is the largest in the United States. Two large floral exhibits are on display at the Schenley conservatory each year, the spring Easter flower show and the fall chrysanthemum show.

The chief aim in the maintaining and upkeep of our city parks from year to year is to afford the public with all the available recreational features, picnic accommodations, sports, games and outdoor pleasure that are possible, as our parks are, practically speaking, the only source from which such benefits can be afforded the public.

During the year 1929, many thousands of people visited the parks, conservatories and the zoological gardens, aside from the thousands of people who played golf, tennis, ball, and those who used the lakes for skating, boating and swimming, and the athletic fields for sports.

GOLF LINKS

Our golf links, conservatories and the zoological gardens are the main features of interest to the public visiting the parks. The two large annual flower shows exhibited each year at Schenley and North Side conservatories, the Easter flower show and the fall chrysanthemum show, attract thousands of visitors, both from our own city and surrounding towns, boroughs and country districts. These annual flower shows afford great interest to the general public, and especially to the children of our public schools.

The zoological gardens located in Highland Park, which are open to the visitors every day in the year, are also one of the main attractions to the public, especially to the children and young people.

The estimated number of persons who visited the zoological gardens during 1929, was over 300,000.

The golf links located in Schenley Park is the great center of recreation and pleasure from which many thousands of golfers are benefited during the playing season each year, from May to the last of November.

During the season of 1929, a total of 4,863 players used the links, which included men, women and children of our city, as well as out-of-town guests.

TOURIST CAMP

The tourist camp maintained by the bureau, is located in Schenley Park, at the west end of the race track. The camp grounds comprise about 10 acres and have accomodations for the public in the way of a brick building containing kitchens, equipped with gas, hot-plates for cooking, toilets and showers.

During the summer season of 1929 moving pictures, a new feature, was installed in the Bureau of Parks, by Mayor Charles H. Kline, for the first time. This proved to be an outstanding success; and at each exhibition at different parks many thousands of people congregated.

During the summer these pictures were exhibited at Schenley Park, Highland Park, West Park, Arsenal Park, and McKinley Park.

This new entertainment met with so much approval that it will be furnished by the Bureau of Parks during the season of 1930. Mayor Kline has made provisions for it in the 1930 budget.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

Mass Operation Needed By Air Lines

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE AIR INDUSTRY has a great future but it must be established on a mass transportation basis before it can hope to show a profit on the investment. This opinion was expressed by Charles Coolidge Parlin, who recently completed a survey of the industry for the Curtis Publications.

Parlin stated that with 1,500 airports in the United States there are only three licensed planes to each airport. With 20,400 students learning to fly last year only 6,000 planes were made. These are only some of the inconsistencies about the development of aviation which must be corrected.

He showed that regularly established routes have been started over a large area of the United States. Between most of the points on these routes only one plane a day was flown in each direction last year and the average load was at only 30 per cent of capacity. He declared that the real development of aviation will not start until a great many planes each day are traveling between these points and until they are carrying loads close to their capacity.

Rates Must Come Down

AS SOLUTIONS OF THE LACK of business Parlin referred to advertising, improved service and rates. He displayed charts showing that a year ago most air passenger rates were three times the rail rates. He stated that rates are being reduced but that they must come down to the level of the cost of other transportation to develop an adequate volume of business. After this is done the new form of travel must be sold to the public by consistent advertising. Publicity, he stated, has done much for aviation but it has tended too much toward the development of hero worship and has not sold the ordinary individual on the fact that flying may be both pleasant and useful to him.

He expressed the opinion that this country's investment of half a billion dollars in air ports is not excessive in view of the needs of aviation. Many airports are still insufficiently equipped, need better drainage, leveling or improved lighting.

Prediction for Future

IN PREDICTING THE FUTURE of the industry Parlin said that he expects that ultimately dirigibles will sail across the Atlantic at least twice a week. These will carry 100 passengers. The major portion of passenger, express and mail travel over distances in excess of 100 miles will be by airplane. The public will eventually adopt this form of travel for speed, comfort and low cost.

Express traffic is likely to be a more important source of revenue for the industry than either passengers or mail.

In commenting on the period of time necessary for the realization of this prophecy, he stated that much would depend on the supply of capital given the industry and the courage shown in its development. Parlin predicted that about five years would see the industry started on the road to this goal. Ten years would see the end in sight and 15 years would mark the full realization.

Private Plane Ownership

THE DEVELOPMENT OF PRIVATE ownership of planes will be somewhat slower in his opinion. Within 10 years about 250,000 planes will be individually owned. Within 15 years there will be an annual market for about this number of planes.

Rural districts are believed to offer the greatest field for private ownership of airplanes. In such territory the greatest need for air travel exists and, in addition, the finding of small landing fields for individual use is less of a problem.

BOND ISSUES UP IN APRIL

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Presaging a greater volume of public works and engineering construction in 1930 than ever before, long term state and municipal bond issues floated last month eclipsed all previous records for the month of April and reached a total of $141,123,000, according to preliminary figures compiled and announced today by the Associated General Contractors of America.

This record for April, together with the unusually large totals during the first quarter of the year, brought the first four months' aggregate of State and municipal bond issues to $432,442,000, or nearly half a billion dollars, the association's compilation discloses. The monthly average thus far this year has been $113,110,500, or an increase of more than $25,000,000 as compared with the monthly average for the same period of 1929. The total increase for the first four months was $100,276,000.

TEXTILE MARTS SLUGGISH

NEW YORK, May 24.—The weekly summary by Textile World reports the cotton textile markets remain sluggish apparently reflecting an apathetic attitude among buyers.

Purchasers are inclined to point to weakness in the raw cotton market and disregard the factor of mill curtailment. During the past week, some slight interest was shown in fine goods and certain wash goods, but the majority of staple gray fabrics were very slow. Price softness was evident in a few centers, although most sellers were trying to hold out against considerable bear pressure.

Wool goods sales lacked sustained activity, the review said, but prices firmed. Hosiery market improved slightly. Raw silk softened, especially futures and prices sagged 3 to 6 points. The weakness brought a sympathetic softening at the thrown yarn end and prices shaded. Shantungs were in good demand.

VICK CHEMICAL WINS CASE

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—Another blow has been struck by the Federal Courts on behalf of the buying public and the manufacturers of trademarked merchandise against those who seek to take advantage of public confidence and profit by illegal use of trade names and products.

A final decree by Judge Oliver B. Dickinson, of United States District Court here, favors Vick Chemical Company, manufacturers of Vick Vapo Rub, perpetually enjoining Lava Chemical Company against use of the Vick trade names. The defendant company had put out a 10-cent package purporting to contain Vicks Vapo Rub. The Vick Company does not manufacture a 10-cent size of its product.

All court costs in the case must be borne by the defendants; all remaining goods on hand are confiscated and destroyed; and it is stated that cash settlements have been made with the plaintiff covering profits derived from the business, both from manufacturer and retailers.

GLASS DEMAND UNIMPROVED

With the demand for window and plate glass, as well as other flat glass products, showing no improvement, the past week has been an unusually quiet one in this branch of the industry, according to the American Glass Review. Both production and distribution, reflecting to an appreciable extent the trends in related industries, continue along quiet lines and no very pronounce revival of activities is anticipated the coming month.

Despite the small stocks being carried by the jobbing trade, the volume of new business placed so far this month with the window glass manufacturers is well below the seasonal normal. During the week demand for this commodity was unusually quiet, with orders booked largely for immediate requirements.

Production of window glass continues at the same low levels as for a number of weeks past, and no increase in operations is to be expected until marketing conditions become more favorable. The demand for plate glass held along substantially unchanged lines during the week.

Fisher Body to Expand Two Factories

DETROIT, May 24.—Fisher Body Corporation will spend $650,000 in equipping an addition to its Tarrytown, N. Y., plant, and $500,000 for a plant addition and new equipment to its Cleveland plant this summer. Between 2,000 and 2,500 persons will be employed at the Tarrytown plant which is to produce Chevrolet bodies exclusively.

TRADE NEARING NORMAL LEVEL

NEW YORK, May 24.—While general trade throughout the nation lags a little, basic industrial activity is being sustained somewhat above seasonal levels, and is likely to respond quickly along with prices to any increased buying pressure, says Business Week in its report covering the week ending today.

The business thermometer continues to climb toward the normal level for the season and the year. It rose 1.3 per cent for the week and is now only a little more than 2 per cent below normal, although still more than 10 per cent under last year's level at this time. The exact reading is 98 per cent, comparing with 96.6 in the preceding week and 108.3 for the same period last year. It may slip a bit from time to time in coming weeks, and will probably not be able to hold firmly to an average around normal until fall, but there is little doubt now about the upward trend of general business during the past two months.

The patient is clearly convalescent and should be yelling for something more substantial to eat soon. The vital organs are stronger; only the circulation is still somewhat slow, and the pocketbook weak. Production and inventories have been cut in some lines to a point where retailers are being a bit cramped to meet even current consumer demand. Even now, considering the lower level of prices, business volume is higher than it looks.

JEWELRY TRADE EXPECTED

Local jewelry stores are preparing to handle a record volume of graduation gift trade during the next few weeks. Roger's Credit Jewelers, at 812 Liberty avenue, are planning to devote particular attention to parents of graduates during the coming five weeks.

They are offering additional inducements on their standard advertised lines, such as Hamilton, Elgin and Bulova pocket and wrist watches, Shaeffer pens, gold rings and Whiting-Davis bags. Gifts will be presented to parents opening accounts during this period.

POLICY COVERS SHUTDOWN

Thousands of dollars a day are needlessly lost during periods of enforced idleness by industrial plants whose owners believe them to be fully covered, declared A. F. Hofmann, manager of the Gilbert A. Hays Agency, Investment Building. Almost every industrial plant, said Mr. Hofmann, is protected by various forms of insurance against the direct damage resulting from explosions of boilers, flywheels, hot water tanks, process apparatus, engines, turbines, electrical machinery and other equipment, but that is not enough, according to this expert.

There are eight items that must be met with cash no matter whether the plant is running full blast or is down for weeks or months of enforced idleness. These items, according to Mr. Hofmann, are as follows: taxes, executives salaries, payrolls, interest, service, contracts, leaseholds and depreciation. When production stops it does not take long for these items to use up a surplus of many thousands of dollars. And even if such a reserve fund is tucked away in the safe in the form of securities, a forced sale to realize quick cash means a sacrifice. Moreover, there need be no sale at all in view of the fact that a new form of policy is being written to cover exactly such a contingency.

This form of insurance is known as use and occupancy insurance. Most industrial executives have heard of it in a vague way but few realize its possibilities as applied to their own business.

Financing Higher During Past Week

NEW YORK, May 24.—New securities placed in the local market during week ended May 23 aggregated $208,453,000 and consisted of $173,253,000 in bonds and $35,200,000 in stocks. In the preceding week combined new financing amounted to $196,849,500 of which bond flotations totaled $182,327,000 and stocks only $14,512,500. C.&O. Chairmanship To Remain Vacant

RICHMOND, Va., May 24.—According to reports here, no new chairman of the board will be named to succeed O. J. Van Sweringen, of Cleveland, by the directors of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Pere Marquette Railway companies.

Resignation of Mr. Van Sweringen, announced yesterday, was made to forestall, the paper said, any criticism regarding interlocking directorates. As chairman of the board of the Missouri Pacific and subsidiaries, Mr. Van Sweringen will devote all his railroad time to solving the problems in connection with the setting up of a western system.

Class 1 railroads on May 1 had 7,294 serviceable locomotives in storage compared with 7,311 on April 15.

RETAIL TRADE SLOW IN WEEK

Bridge, Highway and Road Building Show Gain; Slack Coal Demand Up

The general business situation has shown but little change during the week, but there are now evidences of slow movement in some lines, while in others slight falling off is noted in the volume of the orders being received, according to R. G. Dun and Company's Weekly Review. Unfavorable weather early in the week effected sales at both wholesale and retail but warmer weather is expected to cause an increase in the sales of seasonable wearing apparel.

OUTDOOR WORK

A large amount of outdoor work, particularly bridge, highway and road building, is in progress, and absorbing some of the surplus of unskilled labor. The volume of construction work is showing a slight increase, particularly outside of the city property but the total volume of building continues lower than a year ago. Groceries and provisions are moving in fair volume, while jobbers of confectionery and tobacco report trade quiet.

OIL OUTPUT CURB

Industrial operations show comparatively little change. There is no particular improvement in the demand for plumbing and heating supplies and electrical fixtures continue to move slowly, although heavy electrical equipment seems to be in very fair demand. Crude oil production shows a slight increase, although demand for refined products is somewhat better. Effort is being made to cut the rate of production in Pennsylvania, prices paid having been reduced 3 cents to 5 cents per barrel, owing to the over-productions.

BITUMINOUS COAL

Not much change is noted in the production of bituminous coal and demand continues slow, although movement of coal on the Great Lakes is at somewhat higher rate. A stronger demand for slack has resulted in a somewhat higher price for that item, but other grades continue unchanged and western Pennsylvania grades of run-of-mine coal are quoted per net ton at mines as follows: steam coal, $1.25 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.65 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; steam slack, 90c to $1.10; and gas slack, $1.00 to $1.25.

While there has been a slight improvement in some quarters, collections continue to average rather slow.

STOCK TRENDS AT OPENING DIVERGENT

Some of Strong Spots of Previous Session Recede, While Others Make Gains

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP.)—Price trends were divergent at the opening of today's stock market, as some of yesterday's strong spots encountered week-end profit taking, while further buying appeared elsewhere. Westinghouse Electric lost 2 points, Delaware and Hudson 1½, the American Tobacco issues about 1¼ and U. S. Steel 1 point. On the other hand, American Can, Warren Brothers and Union Pacific each gained a point and Standard of New Jersey, American and Foreign Power and International Harvester ½.

Northern Pacific 1929 Net Lower

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 24.—The net railway operating income of the Northern Pacific Railway Company during 1929 decreased $3,678,228 as compared with 1928, it was shown in the road's annual report today.

The 1929 figure was $21,410,344 and the report attributed the decrease to a short grain crop and to the general depression in business during the latter part of the year.

The net income after paying all charges, and including non-operating income, was $21,806,308, an increase of $675,098 over 1928.

Armstrong Wants Postoffice Back

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(AP.) Charles F. Armstrong, unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant governor in Tuesday's Pennsylvania primary election, has filed application for appointment as postmaster at Leechburg, yesterday with the Civil Service Commission.

Armstrong resigned as postmaster after announcing his candidacy, to comply with civil service regulations prohibiting postal employes from participating in political campaigns. He ran on the ticket headed by Gifford Pinchot.

Treasury Offering Expected Shortly

NEW YORK, May 24.—The New York Federal Reserve Bank has sent preliminary notices to its member banks to prepare for a treasury offering expected shortly.

The regular quarterly financing by the treasury would be due June 15 and a new issue of certificates of indebtedness to be paid for at that time, is doubtless the cause of the present announcement.

Standard of Ohio Advances Gasoline

CLEVELAND, May 24.—Standard Oil Company of Ohio has increased the price of gasoline one cent, making service station price for Red Crown grade 21 cents and S. O. Ohio Ethyl 24 cents. Tank wagon prices for Red Crown will be 20 cents and Ethyl 23 cents.

FORD JUSTIFIES HELP GIVEN RUSSIA

Believes It Duty to Aid People Who Want to Work And Be Self-Supporting

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

(Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, May 23.—The increasing economic alliances between American business and banking institutions and Soviet Russia raise the question of whether the State Department at Washington is likely to alter its views on the question of recognition.

Henry Ford, the economic sage of Dearborn, who in a sense plays a lone hand and speaks only for himself, has recently become active in Russia. In seeking to justify his position, Mr. Ford pointed out:

"Russia is beginning to build. It makes little difference what theory is back of the real work, for in the long run facts will control. I believe it is our duty to help any people who want to go to work and become self-supporting. I have long been convinced that we shall never be able to build a well balanced economic order in the world until every people has become as self-supporting as possible."

In giving the economic setting for his views in the forthcoming issue of the Nation's Business, Mr. Ford adds:

"The system of keeping certain nations dependent on others economically must disappear. It is going to disappear. Then, when we know just what every nation can do, we will be in sight, for the first time, of a civilized economic practice. I am ready to admit that as people after people come into self-support, certain markets, so-called, will disappear. There will be readjustment. But it will be worth the price we will be asked to pay.

TO FOLLOW RUSSIA

"Only stupid greed could think of the world continuously dependent on us or think of our people as the perpetual factory hands of the nations. No, the nations will do as Russia is doing. By taking advantage of American methods now the Russians get the benefit of a half century of experience. They start abreast of the times, industrially. Experiments that took years in this country will be unnecessary. They will be able to avoid costly mistakes. The world will never regret showing good will to any people, no matter whom."

A question frequently raised is whether the rest of the world will become Fordized, that is to say, transformed into the ways of mass production and high wages. One retarding influence overseas is that mass production is dependent on a home market of large productions, and that outside of the United States the standard of living is not sufficiently high to justify the regimen of large output. But Mr. Ford believes that the trend will be toward the higher American standard of living, saying:

"The adoption of high wages, low prices and mass production in all countries is now only a matter of time. Instead of reducing our foreign markets, it will serve to define them. We shall make and sell more of the things we can manufacture. Better and more economically than other nations. Every other nation in turn will make and sell more of the things which it is best fitted to supply to the world."

Mr. Ford, of course, does not think that industrial America has reached its goal. It is merely moving in the right direction. He insists:

"Costs are still too high and wages are too low even in this country. We do not regard the Ford minimum wage as a maximum, or a peak. As an insurance of business and industry price reduction and wage increase must be continuous. It is gratifying to see how quickly American business grasped this idea. Of course, there are still some rough spots, but they cannot long survive the better idea.

UP TO PLAIN PEOPLE

"Industry depends on the plain people entirely—the wage earners. They can buy only if they have the money. They can have money only if they earn it. Thus American industry depends on the market made possible by the American wage.

"Another thing. People must have time to use what they make. People who worked 15 hours a day needed very little. But leisure creates needs which labor supplies. So you have the two American contributions to practical industrial economics, higher wages and shorter hours. They are sound practice. Higher wages and shorter hours are bound to be adopted everywhere."

The newest vogue in the selection of technical experts by Soviet Russia is to turn to American engineers and specialists, who have replaced German technologists in the special favor of Russians.

The economics of mass production is clearly demonstrated in the experience of domestic automobile producers during the first quarter. As a result of curtailed production, all companies thus far reporting, except General Motors and Nash, reported a reduced profit per car. Declining production reduced the savings from mass economies. Four companies reported a profit of less than $10 a unit, and seven out of 10 disclosed a profit of less than $100 a unit. These margins are abnormally low on account of trade conditions. If consumers are to get the full benefits of mass production and competitive zeal, it will be necessary to slash distributive costs. One great waste results from uneconomic trade-ins.

Du Pont Interests Again Reported Active in General Motors.

One of the outstanding achievements of yesterday was the demonstrated ability of General Motors to push through the point at which stern resistance had been encountered for several sessions. Wilmington interests are again reported active on the buying side of the stock, and Wall Street is beginning to regard the outlook for the company as more favorable than it had recently. It is now estimated unofficially that current quarter earnings will equal $1.50 a share or better for the common stock which would bring net for the half-year to around $2.50. Insiders are understood to be anticipating earnings for the year of at least $4 a somewhat better figure. Thus share with chances favoring a while an extra dividend may not be forthcoming, it looks as though the regular $3 payment will be covered by a safe margin.

Inability of Union Carbide to rally with other popular trading stocks created a good deal of discussion during yesterday. The stock has many friends, but since the publication of its first quarter earning statement it has been in a down trend, though seemingly offerings meet good absorption. Report had it that recent weakness has been due in a measure to liquidation for the account of the estate of a wealthy individual who had long been identified with the public utility industry in an active way.

Beyond the fact that it tended to confirm report current some time ago that another railroad was picking up the stock the disclosure that the Securities Corporation of the New York Central had acquired 77,225 shares of Delaware, Lackawanna and Western stock was not looked upon as carrying any special significance. This stock, acquired at an average cost of about $140 a share is equivalent to about a 4.6 per cent interest. Control of Lackawanna, however, rests with powerful banking interests who have always been friendly with the Central. The Lackawanna is grouped with the Chesapeake and Ohio in the revised Interstate Commerce Commission plan for consolidations.

The dull market is causing a lot of discussion as to what the move will be when the deadlock is broken. Never sell a dull market is advice as old as Wall Street but undoubtedly many of these old axioms have gone into the discard with the different viewpoints on commerce and finance growing out of changed conditions brought on by the World War. At the same time guessing which way the cat will jump makes markets and also makes for caution which in itself helps the whole situation.

May 31 United States Steel will complete the first two months of its second quarter. Estimates are that earnings have been smaller than in the first two months of the year, due largely to deliveries of steel at lower prices. It would be remarkable, indeed, if United States Steel were able to report larger earnings in the second quarter than the first quarter. Few believe it will, but it is safe to say that there will be a comfortable surplus after dividend provisions.

The reduction in Calumet and Arizona's dividend from a $6 basis to a $2 basis was more drastic than some expected. But this action does not necessarily signify that dividend reductions of Anaconda, Kennecott and other copper companies will be as drastic. If Kennecott cuts its dividend more than 50 cents quarterly, many who know the financial position of the company will be surprised. And the same can be said relative to Anaconda. Magma Copper has acted much better than stocks of other copper companies, largely because of the belief that it is in a stronger position to maintain fair dividends than other copper companies, due to a very well fortified cash position.

Don't Use Word 'Cheap' If You Talk to Ford!

By B. C. FORBES

BUSINESS IS AT LEAST holding its own. Summer spurts are rare, but indications are that there will be less than the usual tapering off this summer.

The stock market looks to me as if it were laying foundations for an upward movement after its present spell of inactivity ends. This is not a time to sell either the stock market or America short.

HENRY FORD won't let anybody refer to his car as "cheap." Mr. Ford holds that there is nothing cheap about his product. He is proud of its being the lowest-priced automobile. There is, in Mr. Ford's eyes, a very great difference in the meaning of the words "low-priced" and "cheap."

A PARTNERSHIP in J. P. Morgan & Co. would be a logical opening for S. Parker Gilbert on his return after having earned a unique reputation in Europe for his handling of German reparation payments. He is only 37, and was but 31 when he took over the duties of agent general for reparation payments when Owen D. Young withdrew.

Mr. Parker is a lawyer but had financial experience as under secretary of the treasury in Washington under Secretary Mellon, who spotted his young assistant as a brilliant comer. Probably more $100,000-a-year offers will be tendered young Parker than have ever been pressed upon any man of his age. There isn't a law firm in America that wouldn't gladly embrace him as a partner. The chances are, however, that he will be captured by the world of finance where the highest rewards reach astounding figures.

Perhaps Mr. Parker will step into the opening created in the Morgan firm by Dwight W. Morrow's withdrawal. He was the legal luminary of the house. His 13 years with Morgan made Morrow rich.

DANIEL WILLARD is a very dignified gentleman, always immaculately dressed and punctiliously groomed. When he appeared recently as the guest of honor at a banquet, it was noticed that he had a long scratch on his forehead. Later Mr. Willard supplied the explanation.

"I suppose you have noticed this red scratch on my face," he remarked. Then he added: "A lady did that."

There were looks of astonishment. He proceeded:

"Yes, and she's still a lady, even though she scratched me with her fingernails. She is the only lady whom I would allow to do that. You see, she's only a year old. She's my granddaughter, and she may scratch my face whenever she pleases."

The young lady, Mary Beale Willard, is the B. & O. president's only granddaughter.

IS ONE MORE SCANDAL about to be unearthed in New York? Justice Charles P. McClelland, of the United States Customs Court, officially flays "an unholy agreement" reached between attorneys for the government and an important importing firm.

After declaring that there was "not a scintilla of evidence" to sustain the justice of the compromise, the judge added that this was "but an illustration of what I am convinced is an indefensible practice." By the compromise which Justice McClelland so severely condemns, the government forfeited its claim for an additional levy of more than $437,500 upon the goods in dispute.

Reading between the lines of the scathing rebuke, it is very plain that this U. S. customs judge regards the whole proceeding as scandalous, and not only this particular proceeding, but many others similarly handled.

The record of American business men compares favorably with that of political appointees.

THERE ARE DISTINCTIONS and distinctions. My veteran barber was thrilled the other day when one of his patrons announced that he was going to bring his young son to have his hair cut, so that the barber would be able to say that he had cut the hair of four generations—this man's grandfather, father, himself and boy. The barber I know, will derive more joy from this record than from a thumping tip.

Money can do a lot and bring a lot in this world. But the best things of life it can neither do nor bring.

CAN COMPANIES' OPERATIONS HOLD UP

Increased Pack of Food Stuffs to Offset Slight Let-Down in Other Lines

NEW YORK, May 24.—The season is not yet advanced enough to show definitely what sort of year the two important can manufacturers, American Can Company and Continental Can Company will have, but a survey of government data on vegetable plantings for canning this year shows that early prospects are more favorable than at this time a year ago.

Reports to the government from a representative number of packers indicate a 12½ per cent increase in acreage to be planted for peas, 11.6 per cent increase in corn and a 24 per cent increase in tomatoes. These three crops have a marked influence on earnings of the can manufacturers and managements of both companies watch their progress during the season with keen interest, guiding their operations early in the year by the development of the crops.

TRADE OUTLOOK

At about this time a year ago the government estimates on acreage to be planted for peas showed an increase of 10 per cent over 1928, and for tomatoes and corn the increases were 10 per cent and 3 per cent respectively. While the larger acreage to be planted this year does not mean necessarily the yield of these three crops will show a corresponding gain, for weather conditions will determine this, it indicates the confidence of packers in the canning outlook for the current year and shows that they believe consumption of canned goods will be materially larger this year.

These statistics strengthen the conviction that the can companies will suffer very little from the setback experienced this year by most industries. It is probable that the manufacture of cans for general lines of business, that is excluding foodstuffs, will run somewhat behind last year, but not enough to offset gains in the pack of fruits and vegetables.

WEATHER NORMAL

Last year fruit crops on the West Coast were damaged by frost and this resulted in a greatly reduced pack. The peach crop suffered greatly but as a result there should be a larger crop of peaches for canning this year. The fruit crops so far this year have been meeting with normal weather.

Business of American Can Company and Continental Can Company is holding up to the records of last year, but early months of the year are comparatively unimportant for the companies from an earnings standpoint, for the year's results are made largely in the late summer and early fall. The success of the various crops will determine results for the year, for with only a normal supply of canned goods on the market there is no selling problem to be faced.

Lewis Quits Cabinet For Place on Bench

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 24.—(AP.)—Gov. Fisher's cabinet underwent a change with the resignation of Secretary of the Commonwealth Robert R. Lewis, to accept appointment as judge of Potter County and the naming of James A. Walker, of Philadelphia, to Lewis' post.

Walker, administered the oath of office immediately, is the third man to hold the Secretary of the Commonwealth portfolio during the Fisher administration. The first head of the state department was Charles Johnson, who resigned to become the state's first Secretary of Revenue. Lewis succeeded Johnson.

Men Advise Marion Davies on Style

HOLLYWOOD, May 24.—Are modern women losing their "feminine mystery and allure?"

A great many of the men who are sending their answers to the Marion Davies Style Contest seem to feel that they are.

It is surprising how many men are enthusiastically interested in the question of women's apparel. Indeed, they seem to take the question even more seriously than the women do!

Women are concerned with retaining their freedom and comfort, while the men are emphatic in deploring the loss of modesty, of femininity, of the barriers which set the other sex apart in the "good old days" when their wives were walking bales of dry-goods.

There are hundreds of letters from women who endured the restrictions of the "mauve decade" and who are rising to warn the emancipated generation of the tortures they bore in following the "feminine" modes of that day.

SLAVES OF STYLE

Excerpts from some of the letters received are as follows.

We must admit that style has us all enslaved. We buy new furniture, new cars, new anything, just to keep in style or to keep pace with the rest of the world. Why not adjust—and have what we want?

I believe in being free and comfortable and remaining in style as long as possible—still doing these things.

As for swimming suits—if I ever see another woman in a bunch of rags, near the water, I hope she drowns! So far as there being evil in a close fitting swimming suit, there is nothing to it. There is more filth and sin hidden in long, loose garments, than there will ever be in short ones. People can make evil out of anything.

Boy! I love a good girl swimmer and I'll wager that 99 per cent of all the men do, too.

There is nothing in the world that destroys the beauty of a girl more than a bundle of clothes about her person, with her waist line compressed into a cubic inch. Likewise there is nothing in the world that glorifies the American girl like knowing that she is perfectly free and active and can take an easy, graceful swing in her walk. I am for better and healthier and more stylish dress!

EUGENE J. HUTCHINSON,
3712 Morenci St., El Paso, Tex.

WHY LOOK OLD?

Who wants to look ancient before their time? I'm here to state that there is nothing like a short skirt (just below the knee) to make a young girl look her age, and to make an older girl look younger.

Corsets. Why bring that up! Do you mean those terrible contraptions to be drawn around a woman and tied as tight as possible? Not for me. I'm not tired of living yet.

We are living in a modern day and age. Why should a girl be a "shrinking violet?" Most fellows like girls to be a pal to them. Does a girl in a long trailing dress with the old-fashioned waistline look like somebody's pal? Emphatically no! She looks more like somebody's grandmother.

I do not mean that ankle-length dresses are altogether null and void with me. For evening wear, I would rather choose a long dress.

But let's keep long dresses in their place. Why cheat the street-cleaners? Let's all get together girls and DEMAND SHORT SKIRTS for morning and afternoon wear.

MISS MARGIE ANDERSON

No! NO!

NO—and again, NO!

The modern woman will desert the business world, give up motoring as unwomanly, forego hikes, tennis, boating and other joys of free limbs and uncorseted bodies and return home to live again as the sheltered, helpless female—the clinging vine—sooner than she will give up her healthy, free, modern apparel.

ALICE E. UPTON,

EXCITING ANKLES

It seems incredible that the athletic, businesslike, emancipated woman of today would actually go back to the years when men got excited at the glimpse of an ankle and when a French writer argued seriously that women were unable to breathe except with the tops of their lungs!

But maybe they will. I have long ago given up predicting what human beings will do.

MIRIAM DEFORD SHIPLEY,

LIKES NEITHER STYLE

As a man, I will say that I do not like either the old styles or the new ones. Both are extreme. The beauty shop has destroyed more genuine, actual beauty than all else beside. There is nothing that adds as much to a woman's appearance as pretty, long hair. Bobbed hair is the most unbearable of all fads.

ONE SILK WORM

Back in the Gay Nineties, it took three sheep, a couple of thousand silk worms and the tail feathers of an ostrich to fit Milady out in Sunday-go-to-meetin' clothes. Now a single silk worm will do the job—and in my humble opinion, do it much better.

WILLIAM JUSTUS WILKINSON,

SAGE AT SIXTY

I'll be sixty years old in August—and if that doesn't bar me from stating a preference in women's styles, I'd like to submit this:

First, I do not want to condemn the maid of the Gay Nineties, because that was my day, and after a heap o' fun with several of them, I married one who made me very, very happy. But, Miss Davies, you are talking of clothes and appearance, and our modern girls are as advanced over she of the Florodora period as present-day automobiles compared with the first gas buggy.

I cannot go into details; I rather have to judge her from afar—but she certainly looks healthy and snappy and classy. More power to her . . . Remembering, meanwhile, that she is merely our lass of the Nineties who was reaching out for perfection, and has found it.

Puncture Makes Juror Late For Duty

Like Time and Tide, Justice also waits for no man, even if he is a juryman and has a puncture when he flivvers home for lunch.

That's why an 11-man jury was absorbing the details of a traffic accident suit for a short time yesterday.

Juryman Joseph Apirincin, of 5418 Harrison avenue, was scheduled to report for duty at 1 p. m. yesterday and when he failed to show up at 1:15 the opposing lawyers agreed to abide by the verdict of the 11 jurymen. At 1:30 o'clock Chief Clerk Robert J. Moore in Common Pleas Court received a phone call. It was from Mr. Apirincin.

Moore told him his presence was urgently awaited and after promising to make haste the juryman hung up. He arrived at 1:30.

Her husband caused her to be stranded on a California desert with little to eat and to be arrested and imprisoned for several months, Mrs. Mildred McClelland, of Black street, charged in her divorce proceedings against Samuel J. McClelland, heard by Judge James B. Drew yesterday.

Mrs. McClelland said she was married in 1925 and went to California with her husband. She said she and her husband lived in a tent on the edge of the desert near Long Springs, Cal. She was in ill health during the camping trip, and that was lonely. She later went to Minneapolis, became ill and was admitted to a hospital, she said.

During her illness, she charged, her husband stole an automobile. In Rollins, Wyo., they were arrested. Her father engaged counsel for her and she was permitted to go to her parent after her husband was sent to prison. A transcript of the case for which the husband served time was offered in the record of the divorce action.

Three Sent to Jail, Lose Citizenship

John Abraham Totah, 30, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Peter M. Araga, 29, of Victoria, Tex., and George Sankey, 31, of McKeesport, native of Czecho-Slovakia, were ordered in Federal Court to surrender their certificates of citizenship and undergo jail terms, for making false statements in petitions for naturalization papers.

Totah and Araga, and two co-defendants, John George, 27, of Wylie avenue, a city policeman, and Teddy Tedrus, 26, of Bedford avenue, pleaded guilty to a conspiracy to fraudulently obtain citizenship papers for Totah and Araga. They were sentenced by Judge Nelson McVicar to four months each in jail. William H. Gabriel, 38, of Webster avenue, another defendant who also pleaded guilty, will be sentenced Monday.

LOWER CIGARET PRODUCTION EXPLAINED

April Decline Thought Reflection of Decline In Dealers' Inventories

NEW YORK, May 24.—Leading cigaret manufacturers regard the United States Internal Revenue figures on April cigaret production as failing to reflect the trend of cigaret consumption during the month.

For April, a decline in "withdrawals for consumption," which represents packaged cigarets to which the Internal Revenue stamp has been affixed, of 72,760,417 cigarets was reported, the first decline to be shown by cigaret production since April, 1928. In that month the price of cigarets was reduced to $6 a thousand by the three leading manufacturers at that time, and the decline largely represented delay in purchases until the lower price went into effect.

April production of 9,535,460,4[illegible] cigarets this year, for one thing compares with a month last year, which showed one of the largest gains in the entire 12 months. A total of 9,608,220,880 cigarets were produced in April last year, an increase of 2,096,813,290 cigarets or 27 per cent over the 7,511,407,590 cigarets produced in April, 1928, so that it was manifestly impossible for production this year to show a similar rate of gain.

The present condition of industry generally throughout the country is held responsible for the decline in the cigaret production as shown by the government figures.

It is contended that although money is cheap, the business uncertainty renders retailers and jobbers unwilling to carry on hand any larger stocks than are absolutely necessary, especially since additional supplies can be secured from manufacturers on short notice. If the contention of producers is correct, April figures and the rather unsatisfactory figures of the first four months of the year, represent not a decline in consumer demand but a substantial shrinkage in the inventories between the manufacturer and the actual consumer.

While this may temporarily result in lessened production by leading manufacturers, it creates a situation which should ultimately, when business picks up, result in an abnormally large demand.

FRENCH PRIMED FOR BRUINS

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Few Double Centuries. Only 12 Since Young. Five Still in Majors.

Race Leaders Bunched. Spencer's Neat Job. Tennis System Faulty.

COOPER LONE PIRATE TO WIN 200

THE CIRCLE to which Herb Pennock gained admittance this week when he pitched his two hundredth victory in the big baseball show is a very select and limited one, with a decidedly slim membership. Mighty few hurlers have combined the uncommon ability and lasting qualities required to win 200 ball games in the majors. It takes an average of close to 16 decisions per season over a stretch of 13 years to reach that lofty mark, and not many flingers have the stuff and the durability necessary to make good on both ends of the contract.

Herb Pennock.

Since old Cy Young dropped out after the 1911 campaign with the highest total of all times, 511 victories against 315 defeats, to his credit, only 12 pitchers have succeeded in winning 200 big league games. Five of these are still active. They are besides Pennock, Grover Alexander, Eppa Rixey, Urban Faber and Burleigh Grimes. The others to place their names on the roll of honor before closing their major careers were Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson, Wilbur Cooper, Stanley Coveleskie, Carl Mays, Rube Marquard and George Dauss.

JOHNSON RANKS NEXT to Young with 416 games won against 276 lost. Mathewson won 372 and lost 185. Dauss won 217 and lost 184. Cooper won 216 and lost 178. Coveleskie won 216 and lost 141. Mays and Marquard barely got over the line before they passed out. Mays won 203 and lost 128, and Marquard won 201 and lost 176.

Of those remaining in active service, Alexander is the leader with 373 victories against 208 defeats. His total of games won is the National League record, beating Mathewson's mark by a single victory. Rixey has won 246 and lost 225. Faber has won 231 and lost 173, and Grimes has won 226 and lost 171. Against his even 200 victories, Pennock is charged with 140 defeats.

COOPER WAS THE only pitcher ever to win 200 games for the Pittsburgh club. Of his 216 victories, 202 were pitched for the Pirates from the fall of 1912 until the southpaw was traded to the Cubs after the season of 1924.

Grimes won his two hundredth decision while a Buccaneer in 1928, and registered the great majority of his victories while wearing a Dodger uniform. Though in the big show until he was 44, Babe Adams missed the double century by six games, winning 194 against 141 defeats.

Wilbur Cooper.

MANY OTHER HURLERS who lasted a long time were forced to drop out before they could amass 200 wins. Ed Walsh won 195 and lost 130; Lee Meadows won 188 and lost 180; Urban Shocker, at the time of his death, had won 189 games and lost 115; Art Nehf won 184 and lost 120; Bill Doak won 168 and lost 155, and Jimmy Ring won 118 and lost 149. Of those still on the job, Jack Quinn is nearest the goal, with 184 won and 153 lost.

SAM JONES follows Quinn, with 172 victories and 153 defeats, and next in order come Howard Ehmke, with 166 won and 164 lost; George Uhle, 166 and 132; Waite Hoyt, 165 and 108; Adolfo Luque, 158 and 156; Jess Haines, 156 and 119; Eddie Rommel, 154 and 109; Dazzy Vance, 152 and 92, and Bill Sherdel, 152 and 131.

Pitchers who have won more than 100 and less than 150 games are Tommy Zachary, 131 won and 128 lost; Pete Donohue, 127 and 110; Hal Carlson, 114 and 119; Remy Kremer, 112 and 57 (an outstanding percentage of .663), Ted Lyons, 111 and 88, and Johnny Morrison, 102 and 80.

WITH THE CARDINALS remaining idle yesterday while the Pirates and Dodgers were winning, the going in the National League pennant race became tighter than ever, the Dodgers rising to a tie with the Redbirds for first place and the Bucs trailing the deadlocked leaders by only a single game.

The Giants and Cubs have continued to slip until they are only a step above the .500 mark. The McGrawites have lost eight of their last 10 games, and the Bruins have dropped nine of their last 12 contests, but both clubs may be counted upon to be back in the running later. It's the streakiest and most open spring race the senior league has known in years.

Glenn Spencer.

GLENN SPENCER turned in a neat job of relief pitching when he stepped in and saved yesterday's game from slipping away in the ninth inning after Heinie Meine wobbled. Spencer had failed to shine in a similar relief role in the preceding game, but yesterday he did his work in impressive style, disposing of Bell on a sacrifice fly and then striking out Hartnett and Tolson. Glenn will help a club over a tough spot in the absence of Brame and Swetonic if he can maintain that form. He has a world of stuff and needs only control to make him a winning flinger.

THE GROWING IMPORTANCE of tennis as an intercollegiate pastime calls attention to a serious defect in the system of administration governing matches. In other sports of varsity ranking there is always a standard contest to be found. The football game is universally a 60-minute affair; baseball games go nine innings; track meets include certain specified events; basketball recognizes 10-minute quarters.

In some branches, to be sure, various special agreements are frequently made. But in the absence of such agreements, there is small controversy over the nature of the standard match. But where is such uniformity to be found in tennis?

THE OTHER DAY Allegheny College came to Pittsburgh to meet Capt. Andy Smeaton's Duquesne team. The visitors brought with them four men, enough for four singles and two doubles engagements. A week or more earlier, however, the Dukes had played five singles and two doubles against Allegheny at Meadville and had dropped a 4-3 decision. The Bluffites therefore figured that it was up to Allegheny to go through with a five-singles-two-doubles tussle here and claimed the unplayed fifth singles contest by default.

The six matches actually played resulted in a 3-3 tie, so that the

Jack Bradley

On hand will be the 1929 champion, New Castle, willing and eager to begin a strenuous battle in defense of the honors so surprisingly and hard won a year ago. On hand, too, will be crack squads from a half dozen other high schools, all having an equal chance to overthrow the Lawrence Countians, not the least of which will be the W. P. I. A. L. champs, Ellwood City.

GREAT 100 CARDED

On hand will be a brilliant and speedy coteri of sprint stars, primed for what bids fair to be the greatest high school "century" that has ever been run in Pittsburgh, featuring four 10-second men, one of which has been clocked at 9.9.

And present will be the capable officials of the A. A. U., who know more about running a track and field meet, RIGHT, than Henry Ford knows about one of his automotive creations, Messrs. Haddock, Taylor, Blum and Wageman.

As an A-No. 1 side attraction, the varsity and freshmen squads of Pitt will entertain West Virginia's upper-class and first year trackers in a dual meet, West Virginia bearing proudly the toga of Big Four and district champs, a mantle they have worn with much honor for the past three years.

COLLEGE STARS PRESENT

Capt. R. F. (Pete) Bowen, sterling Pitt runner; Everett Utterback, all-round star; Ed Knoblock, hurdle ace, and Hill, Calloway, Brandt, Goldstein and Riley, of the West Virginia team, are certain to give sterling performances in their specialties.

The high school century will bring together Bohlender, 9.9 star, of Grove City; Pryor, Negro flyer of Ford City; Mike Milligan, Peabody's W. P. I. A. L. champion; Dooms, Uniontown's best; McBurney, Washington speedster; Cotter, of Monaca; Snellenbach, of Peabody, and Greenberg, of New Castle.

Bohlender, Pryor and Milligan are picked to run one-two-three, with the first place man a toss-up. On past performances and best time, Bohlender rules a very, very, slight favorite.

OLD RIVALS CLASH

Dunn, of Ellwood City, and Bradley, of Connellsville, will resume their duel in the hurdles, which has continued over the entire season, with honors about even; Bob Pusch, Beaver, and Windy Moore, Beaver Falls, pole vaulters, are to resume a two year duel in the vault and Mitter Markovich, Aliquippa's weight star has passed up the P. I. A. A. championship meet at Altoona to seek the Pitt meet title and record in the shot.

The large fields in all events have necessitated the holding of trials for the field events (finals in some) and in the running of EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: ICE WILL BURN—The fact that ice will burn in combination with some chemical elements is known as the "Ice Paradox." One experimental example is that of the gasoline separator, wherein high test gasoline is separated from the wet gas. Separators and pipe lines are coated with a thick layer of ice, which, when scraped and ignited, will burn readily. THE UNTOUCHABLE OF INDIA—The Untouchables of India are the teeming multitudes of the low caste Hindoo, whose touch will pollute and whose very shadow will defile a high caste Brahman. They have lived for centuries in the most abject conditions, and their degraded condition is one of India's greatest woes. A SNAIL WALKS ON ONE FOOT. The single "foot" of the snail is simply a large muscular extension of the snail's underside. When the snail is resting the "foot" is set flat on the ground. Its forward motion is accomplished by contracting and expanding in turn of the different sections of the "foot." This motion is characteristic of the mollusks, with which the snail is classified.

FOE IS SOUGHT FOR RODGERS

By HAREY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The new Hickory Boxing Club, of Millvale, is scouting around for an opponent for Jackie Rodgers, Negro star, of the North Side, in the main bout of its second show, to be staged in its outdoor arena next Thursday night.

Eddie O'Dowd, of Columbus, had been signed to box Rodgers and the boxing commission had sanctioned the match, but the promoters learned that O'Dowd has deteriorated so much in recent months that they were afraid to take a chance with him against such a hard hitter as Rodgers and have called off that end of the program. They are negotiating now with a view to getting Benny Schwartz, of Baltimore, who has boxed Rodgers twice; Midget Mike O'Dowd, Eddie's brother, who also has boxed Rodgers; Soldier Dombrowski, of Detroit, or some other capable foe for Jackie.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER

Well, folks, we're gonna stick to the ol' Pirate ship if we hit an ice-berg in mid-ocean, and believe me, we'll make a lot of good-lookin' birds walk the plank before we get through. The sailin' is rough now with so many o' th' stars sick and in bed, but we'll get on smooth water some time during th' summer an' Skipper Jule will show you something.

If you ask me, I think he's showin' a lot every day, keeping a club as badly crippled as ours right around the top. If McGraw or any th' oldtimers did this, you'd be readin' a lot in the papers about it, so why not throw a few flowers at Jule?

LOSES ROUGH SPOTS

I got a big kick out of the way Glenn Spencer threw that fast ball past Gabby Hartnett and Slug Tolson in the ninth inning yesterday with the tieing run on the sacks. You folks ought to know what a refined fella Glenn is. I've been hangin' around with him and Larry and a few others and I know they've polished up some o' my rough spots.

Here's a good one—and it shows the good spirit that's on our club. You see there's been a line drive or two sail over Commy's head in this lively-ball season. Well, some of the boys were kiddin' Commy about it before the game. Heinie was all ready to pitch and jus' before the game started he said to Adam:

"Listen, Commy—you better get Jack Fogarty to get you a big ladder, because if any balls go over your head today, I'm coming out there after you and you wanta be ready to take out over the center field fence."

HACK HITS ONE

Everything went O. K. till Hack got hold o' one in the ninth. Commy was playin' Hack deep

Game starts at 3 o'clock.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

When the Pirates move into battle with the Cubs this afternoon in the final clash of the four-game series, Adam Comorosky and Fred Brickell, two fleet ball hawks, will switch positions, according to an announcement made this morning by Manager Jewel Ens.

Comorosky will go back to his leftfield post while Brickell will move from that garden to centerfield. The Polish Flyer moved into Lloyd Waner's role some time ago, but Commy has not been natural in the position. His main trouble has been in judging long liners and his inability to gauge these balls apparently has robbed him of much of his natural form.

In his career as a Pirate, Adam has risen to great heights as a leftfielder, his performances on the road being particularly striking. In the past few days he has lost several balls that could have been caught, so Ens will try Brickell in the central zone. The Kansas Whirlwind has developed into a good fly-chaser and his hitting and running are remarkable.

FRENCH TO HURL

Larry French and Pat Malone will fight it out on the mound in the finale. The series favors the Pirates, who by winning, 7 to 6, yesterday made it two out of three.

The Pirates, in a manner speaking, are in second place this morning, the Cardinals and Robins being tied for the honor position. Be that as it may, the Oaklanders are only one game removed from the top, and that is quite a showing in view of the misfortunes which have trailed the Ensmen since the race started.

Strenuous days are ahead for the handicapped club. After finishing up with the Bruins this afternoon, the Buccos will head for Cincinnati where tomorrow they will take on the Reds in a dual bill. Returning home Monday they will tangle with the Cardinals, who will be here for three battles.

MEINE, SPENCER STAR

Heinie Meine and Glenn Spencer were mound heroes yesterday as the Freebooters toppled the Bruins. Meine pitched like a star for eight rounds before losing his effectiveness. Just when it seemed as if the league champions would rush to the front, Spencer, the Wichita star, rushed to the scene and stopped three Cubs in a row with the tieing runs on the sacks.

The Pirates had a four-run lead when the ninth began, but the invaders rushed three across in jig time. Spencer fanned Hartnett and Tolson in the emergency. The latter was hitting for Pitcher Nelson. Carlson, Bush, Blake and Nelson pitched for the Cubs.

Grantham started the Pirate offense in the first after Brickell went out. George singled to left and Brother Paul whipped a scorching double to right, scoring the secondsacker. Comorosky followed with a double to right to score P. Waner.

Wilson's failure to stop Brickell's drive gave the Pirates a run in the second. Meine walked with two out and Brick pasted a liner through the box. The smash struck Carlson's bare hand and eventually forced him out of the game. Wilson failed to stop it

Walker Trounces Charley Belanger

DETROIT, May 24.—(AP.)—Mickey Walker, of Chicago, king of the middleweights, won an easy 10-round decision over Charley Belanger, Canadian light-heavyweight champion, at Olympia Arena last night.

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Our Washington club loafed all day Friday. The Athletics had an off-day, too. In fact, they have had so many off-days lately they looked like the Red Sox. I bet those Athletics have all cauliflower ears from listening to Connie Mack. Just look who is holding on to the top of the league, and it ain't by our eyebrows, either. Didn't I tell you constant subscribers we would win the flag? Well, this year your Uncle Nick is a prophet, not a loss. We are already flagpole sitting, just waiting for them to send up the pennant.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Eighteen expectant racquet hosts stand lined up this afternoon in readiness for inauguration of the annual Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League race. With interest at higher pitch than it has been these many years, the netmen await the gong in keen anticipation of an exceptionally torrid chase for honors in both divisions of the loop.

Section I, in which Frank Smith's powerful Edgewood array will seek to retain championship laurels, goes to the barrier with but one new entrant, Mount Lebanon, numbered upon the list. The Rumsey contingent won its way into the select group last summer by virtue of copping the lower circuit crown and following up by defeating University Club, upper belt tail-ender in the interzone play-off. The Varsity outfit was later voted back its old franchise among the topnotchers in order to raise the sectional roster to an even eight.

SECTION II LARGER

Section II, however, bears small resemblance to the junior wing of a scant half-dozen contenders that faced the starter in 1929. Mount Lebanon has moved ahead and Wilkinsburg, having announced retirement, applied for re-admission to the jousting too late, the quota limit having been filled. As affairs now repose, College Avenue, Minnetonka, Westinghouse Seconds and Philadelphia Company are back in the fold, while six debutant aggregations—Duquesne Library, Canonsburg, Alpha Kapp Psi, Edgewood Seconds, West Penn Power, and Washington Heights—grace the roster.

Though enthusiasm for the competition is great as the opener impends, it is probably that the brand of tennis to be offered will be considerably below mid-season par. The irregularity of the weather the past month has retarded work upon courts at numerous clubs. In addition to this fact at least two squads—P. A. A. and Edgewood—will suffer from depletion because of absence of important members on college business. Capt. Dave O'Loughlin of the Winged Head combine, will be at Meadville this afternoon, Pitt being slated to tangle there with Allegheny. Meanwhile brother Billy O'Loughlin will be on the job at the Stadium where the Panther yearlings will entertain Kiski and the Red and Gray accordingly will suffer further loss.

Edgewood suffered a good break when the Dukes shifted their Bethany tilt to yesterday, for the Suburbanites thus assured themselves of the services of Andy Smeaton, crack Bluffite leader. But the Smithmen are still minus Stan McCaskey, former Bucknell ace, who is away at Harvard Law School.

TALENT SHIFTED

Numerous realignments of talent have been effected in Section I. P. A. A., Westinghouse and College Hill have changed little, if any, but the remainder of the division presents radically varied front. Charley Woods has moved from University Club to Edgewood, where Billy McElroy and McCook Reed will hold forth regularly. Dick Cable and Chandler have joined forces with University Club, and Knoche, Henderson, Hughes and Wolfe have evacuated South Hills, Knoche in favor of Mt. Lebanon and the other trio for Stanton Heights.

Advance data on Section II is meager. One item, though, demands mention—the College Avenue rectangles are not yet ready for use, which means that the fracas between the Moore luminaries and Alpha Kappa Psi, originally billed for the East End lot, has been shunted to Duquesne University, where the fraternity athletes are at home.

DUKES VICTORS

Grant Siverd's Dukes prolonged their victory string to three in a row yesterday by downing Bethany in a stiff Tri-State Conference tussle on the Bluff asphalt, 6-1. The Bisons had previously registered a 4-3 triumph over the Hillmen on the Buffalo Creek courts, so that the decisive reversal yesterday proved a bit of an upset, though gratifyingly indicative of the steady progress noticeable in the work of the Red and Blue caverters the past fortnight. The summary:

Singles: A. Smeaton, Duquesne, defeated Ewing, Bethany, 6-3, 6-4; Campbell, Duquesne, defeated Nelson Bethany, 7-5, 6-2; Cowgers, Bethany, defeated Hall, Duquesne, 6-3, 6-4; Carey, Duquesne, defeated Gay, Bethany, 6-4; Kuzma, defeated Harbar, Duquesne, 6-3, 6-4; Bethany, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3.

Doubles: Smeaton and Smeaton, Duquesne, defeated Ewing and Gay, Bethany, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4; Campbell and Carey, Duquesne, defeated Gay and Harclay, Bethany, 6-3, 1-6, 7-5.

YANKEE STARS CLINCH ZONE CUP TITLE

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—(AP.)—The United States Davis Cup team earned the right to invade Europe as its dashing young doubles pair of Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn scored a clean-cut, straight set victory over Mexico's best combination yesterday.

Playing almost faultless tennis, Allison and Van Ryn beat Manuel Llano and Alfonso Unda, 6-0, 6-1, 6-3, giving the United States a 3-0 lead in its tie with Mexico and unchallenged supremacy in the American zone.

The two matches remaining to be played today are mere formality. George Martin Lott, of Chicago, is scheduled to meet 20-year-old Ricardo Tarabini, who came within inches of upsetting Allison yesterday in a five-set match, while Allison is to oppose Ignacio de la Borbolla.

With the victory already won, however, it is probable that other members of the American team would be given the opportunity of gaining match experience.

The match yesterday was a story of hard smashing play at the net by the American pair. Time and again they captured the forecourt from the Latins to put them on the defensive.

Van Ryn and Allison exhibited almost faultless team play throughout the 22 games, which required less than 40 minutes to complete. Calling the doubtful shots they wasted little effort.

M'KEES ROCKS, SCOTT VICTORS

McKees Rocks and Scott High, of North Braddock, the latter defending league champion, advanced into the semi-finals of the W. P. I. A. L. baseball elimination series yesterday. McKees Rocks eliminated Aliquippa, 11 to 3, and Scott downed Peabody, City section representatives, 6 to 1.

In the final program of the City League season, the champion Schenley nine suffered its first defeat of the year, losing to Westinghouse by a 2 to 1 score. Ware had the best of Sturnicki in a hurlers' duel.

In Section II, Oliver wound up its season as section leaders by walloping Allegheny, 14 to 4, and South Hills defeated Carrick, 11 to 10.

SINGER VICTOR OVER FILIPINO

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP.)—Sleek Al Singer wiped out the last obstacle in his path to a shot at the lightweight championship last night and battered up the only warrior who had ever knocked him out.

The dark Jewish boy from the Bronx made a mess of Ignacio Fernandez's features, dropped him once for a count of two, and hammered him steadily for 10 long rounds, but he could not finish the Filipino.

Fernandez deadened Singer with a single right to the chin in three rounds here less than a year ago. By whipping Fernandez, Singer is now assured of a title match with Sammy Mandell in one of the open air extravaganzas of the summer.

Local Motorcycle Hill Climb Tomorrow

Special safety measures have been taken by the contest committee of Greater Pittsburgh Motorcycle Club in arranging the riding course for their motorcycle hill climb tomorrow.

Wittmer's farm, on the Perry highway, the site of this year's contest, is ideally located. It is within a few miles of the downtown section, three miles from Keown Station and about the same distance from West View. New improved concrete roads lead right up to the hill.

SHADY SIDE NINE HOST

The Shady Side Academy-University School baseball game will feature the Homecoming Day program at Shady Side this afternoon. Shady Side defeated Nichols School, of Buffalo, last Saturday, and a victory over the Clevelanders today will give the Academy boys the Tri-State championship and permanent possession of the Mitchell trophy.

HELEN ANNEXES NET TITLE

PARIS, May 24.—(INS.)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, queen of international tennis, added another victory to her string today when, paired with Miss Elizabeth Ryan, she won the women's doubles title in the French hard court tennis championships.

Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan defeated the former titleholders, Mmes. Mathieu and Barbier, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1. The brilliant American team, which had downed dangerous oppositions all through the earlier stages of the tournament, had little difficulty in wresting the title from the French women in the final.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 24.—(AP.)—Twenty-four Americans, including all eight members of the United States Walker Cup team, have entered the British amateur golf championship which gets under way here on Monday morning.

BROWNS DEFEAT TRIBE; ROBINS, PHILS WIN

Associated Press.

The St. Louis Browns are fifth in the American League pennant standing, but with the aid of Walter Stewart they get a share of victories.

The club is suffering from weak hitting and weak pitching, ranking at the bottom of the league's club batting averages, but Stewart has developed into a consistent hurler and usually a victorious one. He has taken part in nine games, finishing one of them, and has completed seven of his eight starts. His current record is six victories and three defeats as he proved quite effective against the Cleveland Indians yesterday to give St. Louis a 5-to-4 victory.

The only other scheduled American League game, between Detroit and Chicago, was rained out.

The Brooklyn Robins again demonstrated the efficacy of slugging in the leading National League contest as they hammered the Braves into a 6 to 3 defeat and again gained the top rung of the league ladder. By winning, they gained a tie with the St. Louis Cardinals, who were deprived by rain of their chance to stay ahead at the expense of Cincinnati.

The Pittsburgh Pirates tightened their hold on third place, increasing their margin to two full games by beating the Chicago Cubs, 7 to 6, while the fourth place New York Giants dropped their second in succession to Philadelphia, 9 to 8.

RASE, PROCTOR HURL SHUTOUTS

Two shutout games featured yesterday's battling in the Middle Atlantic League.

At Fairmont, Cumberland, with Rase hurling, defeated the Black Diamonds, 5 to 0, and at Jeannette, Proctor, of Clarksburg, shut out the Jays, 3 to 0.

Charleroi lost to Johnstown, 7 to 4, at Charleroi, and Scottdale defeated Wheeling, 12 to 3, at Scottdale.

Steve Swetonic Gaining After Operation

Continued improvement, was the report given out at St. John's Hospital this morning, regarding the condition of Pitcher Steve Swetonic, of the Pirates, who underwent an operation for removal of his appendix at that institution Thursday night.

The pleasing victory of his club over the Cubs yesterday was cheering news to the stricken athlete.

Duquesne Co-Eds Plan Field Day

A trophy, won for the first time by the School of Education, will become permanent property of the team winning it three successive years.

DOG RACE MEET OPENS HERE TONIGHT

Nine races in which some of the fastest greyhounds in America are entered, will mark the inaugural of the local dog racing season at the Bridgeville Speedway tonight. The races are being conducted by the Bridgeville Kennel Club and sponsored by the Bridgeville Post, American Legion.

Extensive improvements have been made to the greyhound track. The curves have been banked and this, according to the officials, will insure faster time.

Approximately 250 dogs are now at Bridgeville available for racing, and 50 more are to be brought here before the meeting concludes.

R. L. (Bob) Kelly, who is to act as racing secretary, says that the class of the entries and the fine condition of the track augur well for the breaking of a few records.

The feature event of the opening-night program is to be the Futurity Hurdle, in which Boo, a consistent winner last year, is the favorite. The entries for tonight:

First race, ¼ mile—Mistress, Duke of Dunegan, Reagan, Rarad's Gun, Jefferson Star, Smoky Face, Blind Gertrude, *Mad Bowen.

Yanks Beat Cadets In Exhibition Fray

WEST POINT, N. Y., May 24.—(AP.)—The New York Yankees came to West Point yesterday for their annual exhibition game with the Army team and departed with a 20 to 2 victory.

Foster Edwards gave the Cadets only five hits while the big league team was making 23 blows off four Army pitchers. The Cadets added six errors to New York's opportunities to score. A home run by Lyn Lary was the hitting feature. The score:

New York	2	0	4	2	1	1	2	3	4	—20

matter of the extra fracas proved a very material factor in the result. As the controversy now stands, the fray is a deadlock in Meadville and a Duke victory in Pittsburgh and unless the graduate managers of the two schools can strike an amicable decision as to the status of the disputed match through discussion of the prebattle arrangements and understandings, there is likely to exist some little sharpness between the rival camps.

Andy Smeaton.

WHAT IS THERE to prevent the intercollegiate Tennis Committee of the U. S. L. T. A. from adopting a standard varsity match? Six singles and three doubles is a real test of strength; certainly contests should embody no less than five singles and two doubles, the official match now in vogue in the Tri-State Conference. Four singles and two doubles is an inadequate test and is rendered further undesirable by the fact that it is conducive to too many ties. If ovarsity sport is worth its salt as such, it is worth conducting properly. Standardization of the team tennis match would be a step in the right direction. In default of this, the least that managers can do is to specify definitely in their contracts the quota of individual matches to be staged in making up each varsity contest. This would serve in a measure to discourage the haphazard practice of piling any convenient number of men into an automobile, shipping them off to the courts of another college, and expecting the home institution to accommodate itself to the exigencies of the situation.*

AL SINGER was only running true to the expectations of the great majority of fight fans when he won the decision over Ignacio Fernandez in New York last night, and the victory meant little except that it averted the cancellation of Singer's match with Sammy Mandell for the world lightweight championship, scheduled for July 17 in Gotham.

Fernandez had knocked out Singer in three rounds a year earlier, and was figured by a few to win again on the strength of the old theory that a boxer once kayoed is under a mental handicap in a second match with the same opponent and is rarely able to change the result. But Singer is an exceptional fighter, as he proved again last night, and there is a strong chance that he will demonstrate it once more by taking Mandell's title from him in their coming bout.

SANDLOT CARD LIGHT

GRAYS BATTLE HOMEWOOD IN FEATURE

SANDLOT GAMES TODAY

WEST PENN LEAGUE
Verona at Whitaker.

CITY LEAGUE
J. L. Thomas at St. John's.

INDEPENDENT
Homewood vs. Homestead Grays at Forbes Field.

By TOM BIRKS.

While a big sandlot card does not face the fans this evening, three real battles are scheduled that should be played before capacity crowds.

In the West Penn League, Verona will be making a back-to-the-wall stand at Whitaker, trying to break into the win column. There is little doubt that plenty of class abounds on the Verona roster, but Manager Bill Bright is having a tough time getting the boys to hit a winning stride.

The battle of Bloomfield will be staged at Sullivan Field, when those old rivals, St. John's and J. L. Thomas hook up. The first game found them in a 9-9 tie. Since that time, the Dean Field boys have protested the game, and have won the protest, but the average fan would have a tough time following the line of reasoning that brought about the decision.

St. John's, by its victory over Stowe Thursday, must be classed as dangerous. Manager Pat O'Shea, always a fighter, has the whole club fighting to win.

At Forbes Field, Homewood, with its neat club, will tangle with the Homestead Grays. Together with Dormont, this combination stacks up as the heaviest hitting outfit in the district, and fans are anxious to see just how the East Enders stack up with Posey's clever aggregation. The game will be called at 6:30 p. m.

SMITHS DOWN SHOEMEN

The Jimmy Smith's put an effective check on the winning ways of Book Shoe in the City League last evening, downing the leaders by a 6 to 3 score. In other league frays, Stowe tied W. O. W., 2-2 and the N. S. Civics defeated Pleasant Valley, 12 to 1.

Homestead Aces defeated Dan Heeps, 9-3, and Jenkins won over Verona, 4-3 in the Greater Pittsburgh circuit. Allegheny Collegians topped the Soho Traders, 12 to 7 in the Central League. Reliance Life took the lead in the C. and I. League by defeating B and O., 6 to 3. Railways nosed out Duquesne Light, 6 to 5, in the Philadelphia Company circuit. Whitaker tied Universal, 7 to 7 in the West Penn and in the North Side loop, Troy Hill defeated Ingomar, 5 to 4.

SAINTS VICTORS

St. Phillips defeated the Presbyterians, 2 to 1, in the Crafton-Ingram Church League.

FOE SOUGHT FOR JACKIE

prices from $1, $2 and $3 to $1 and $2 for future shows. It grossed a little better than $2,000 for its maiden effort last Thursday night, when George Panka defeated Knute Hansen in the main bout. Of this sum, Hansen dragged down $1,000 as a guarantee. The club just about broke even on the show. At $1 and $2 prices, it will be able to do a $6,500 business on a sellout.

Matchmaker Charley Luck has arranged two of his preliminaries for next week. He has Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, boxing Roger O'Brien, formerly of Chicago, in the eight-round semi-final, and Don Frazier, the Cuban, meeting Joey Katkish, of Lawrenceville, in the second bout. Sammy Paris, of the Hill, will be one of the principals in the opener.

Gorilla Jones, of Akron, and Vincent Forgione, of Philadelphia, who meet in the 10-round main bout of the Meyers Brothers' second show, in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, Monday night, are due to arrive in town tomorrow morning and finish training here.

MURRAY DENIES KAYO

Incidentally, Jackie Murray, clever Negro welterweight, of the Hill, claims the record book errs when it credits Jones with a knockout victory over him in four rounds at Erie last year. Murray says he has not boxed Jones and never has been knocked out in his career and he will demand a correction of the records in this respect.

Herman Folins, of Ambridge, who has been boxing well out of Newark, N. J., meets Joe Belmont, of Baltimore, at Baltimore Monday night.

George Panka received less than $300 for his winning battle with Knute Hansen, but the bout was worth thousands to him from the viewpoint of experience and national prestige, as was evidenced yesterday, when his manager, Bunny Buntach, received two offers from out of town for George's services. George wants 'em a little tougher each time out and it would not be surprising to see him in there with K. O. Christner or some other opponent of this order his next time out around here.

MARSHALL WINS

CINCINNATI, May 24.—(AP.)—Marshall College, of Huntington, W. Va., won its third victory of the season over St. Xavier College's Musketeers in baseball 7 to 1 here yesterday. Austin, Marshall hurler, held St. Xavier hitless for seven innings and yielded up only three in the last two innings.

UMPIRE DONOHUE — AL BOOL — TOLSON

Pitcher Glenn Spencer, of the Pirates, stepped into the breach when Heine Meine weakened in the ninth inning against the Cubs at Forbes Field yesterday and halted a rally to enable the locals to win, 7 to 6. He went in with two runs in, men on first and third and none out and retired the side on a sacrifice fly and two strikeouts. Photo shows Tolson whiffing for the final out, Hartnett having fanned before him.

SIMPSON RUNS 9.7 'CENTURY'

EVANSTON, Ill., May 24.—(AP.)—Flashing through a driving rain, Ohio State's great sprint star, served warning yesterday that he intends to establish a new world record for the 100-yard dash today and make it stand up without reservation.

The Ohio comet, competing in the preliminaries of the western conference outdoor track and field championship, reeled off the "century" in 9.7.

Simpson threw away his starting blocks, which caused the International Athletic Federation to rule out his performance of 9.4 seconds as a world mark, a The Buckeye star will not use the blocks in the finals today when he races Eddie Tolan, University of Michigan Negro speedster, whose performance of 9.5 seconds, established in the Big Ten meet a year ago, was recognized by the Federation as the world record for the century.

Tolan had no trouble in winning his qualifying heat today in 9.8. He broke the tape about three feet ahead of his teammate, Charles Smyth, while Simpson had about the same margin in defeating Ernie Useman of Illinois.

Michigan and Illinois were ranked as favorites to win the team championship as a result of performances in the preliminaries. The Wolverines and Illinois, along with Iowa, each placed 15 men in the 11 events in which preliminaries were held. Ohio State and Wisconsin were regarded as the dangerous contenders. Ohio State placed 13 men, Wisconsin 11, and Chicago six. Northwestern shoved five into the finals, Minnesota four, Indiana three, and Purdue two. Illinois, the defending champion, scored in 10 of the 11 events, failing only in the discus.

qualifying heats in the dashes this morning.

NIGHT MEET O. K.

New Castle High's night track and field meet, run off at Taggart Field, New Castle, last night, passed with a grade of A-plus in the opinion of critics who were on hand for the Nobel affair.

The track was well lighted and the relay teams, which featured the competition, had little or no difficulty in passing the batons and in keeping to the lanes.

The majority of the athletes entered in last night's affair will compete at Pitt today and therefore did not attempt any record breaking feats last evening.

The Tipoff

Duquesne's varsity trackmen meet Waynesburg in a dual meet at Schenley Oval this afternoon, their final dual engagement before the annual Tri-State Conference championship meet at Beaver Falls Memorial Day.

Our Halferty slept exceedingly well last night following the fine triumph his Tech track squad turned in over Grove City in the Skibos' final meet of the year. The Tartans defeated the Grovers 73-62 in the Tartan Bowl.

The Tartans wound up the season with a record of three meets won and two lost. Yesterday, George Braun, basketball star, sprinted into the limelight, winning both the 100 and 220-yard events.

Pitt's tennis team is at Allegheny today for a setto with the Methodists, while the freshmen squad entertains Kiski in the Stadium.

GRANDSTAND COACHING

The eastern plan of keeping the college baseball coaches in the stands has not been working out so well from either the players' or the coaches' point of view. There has been no apparent change in baseball played, there are no more nor no less mistakes. Nor do the boys get any more fun out of the game than they used to. But, as one of the eastern coaches remarked, "The whole thing is a lot of bully rot brought about by a lot of dashed outsiders."

Knute Rockne

Personally, I believe the plan was well meant. However, to give the plan a real acid test, why not try it in the big leagues. Can you imagine the New York Giants run in this manner? The game not only would go back to the boys, but even farther-all the way back to the undertakers.

enough, but the liner took a second flight or something and soared over Commy's head against the fence. If the game hadn't been so close there, they'd been some fun, but Heinie didn't feel like makin' any wise crack then as he was bearin' down with the idea of winnin' the ol' ball game.

and it went for a triple, scoring Meine.

Traynor's hit with two out in the third added a run to the Pittsburgh advantage. Comorosky walked with one out and he moved ahead on Suhr's out. Pie singled to left to score Commy.

BELL STARTS RALLY

Bell started the fifth with a walk and Hartnett all but hit into a double play. Grantham grabbed Gabby's smash and threw to Bartell, but Suhr could not hold Dick's high shot. Bush followed with a single sending Hartnett to second and the bases were filled on English's single. Hartnett scored as Heathcote forced English.

Meine was in a bad spot in the seventh with the bases loaded and Wilson up. Two were out, however, and the St. Louis Dutchman made Hack hit into a force play.

Brother Paul singled in the home half with one out. Commy walked but he was forced by Suhr as P. Waner went to third. Suhr stole second and the Cub strategists passed Traynor intentionally to fill up the sacks. Bool smashed a single off English's glove to score P. Waner.

DICK ROBS CUYLER

Bartell hurt the Cubs' chances at the start of the eighth when he robbed Cuyler of a hit by a sensational assist. Grimm followed with a single and Bell walked. Hartnett also walked to fill the sacks and Grimm scored when Stephenson, batting for Blake, forced Hartnett. English's single scored Bell. Brickell prevented a bad jam by a fine catch of Heathcote's long drive.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

The University of Pittsburgh Band on KDKA at 6 o'clock, Alice White in "Show Girl" from WCAE at 8:30 and the Miniature Theater play, "A Hint to Brides," KDKA at 10:30, will interest most listeners tonight.

Meanwhile, a new continuity Five Oesm Weavers will have its premiere at 8:30 on KDKA. The cast will include a male quartet and string section of violin, piano, xylophone.

Alice White

Thirty-eight Navy planes will race 20 miles along the Potomac River in the Curtiss Marine Trophy which will be broadcast at 4:30 o'clock by KDKA. Herbert Provenson, NBC announcer, will view the classic from a tower atop the Aerological Building in Washington, D. C. All entrants, 162 miles an hour was attained in last year's seaplane race.

"Get Away, Old Man, Get Away" and "My Dawg" will be presented by the Dutch Minstrels on KDKA at 9:30.

Songs which endeared Victor Herbert to the world will be fashioned into a medley of tribute on the sixth anniversary of his death in a special memorial program through KDKA tomorrow night at 9:45.

KQV is to do a network program for WJW next Wednesday night. It's called Kroger Time.

Franklin S. Huddy, chief engineer of the CeCo Tube Manufacturing Company, spent an interesting day with dealerrs here this week after speaking to a meeting of the Institute of Radio Engineers in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

SOCK 'EM

Two stuffed leather mallets that resemble a pair of boxing gloves are used in playing radio's latest musical freak, the "sock marimba." The sound is much like the "sock" so dear to devotees of the resined rung.

Morning visitors at KQV are allowed to "sit in" on the Blues Chaser broadcast.

All local studios soon will have wood doors to replace the glass panel doors which were the vogue for many months.

Artists complained that they didn't like to be "pecked at."

TODAY'S TID BIT.

The influence of fame was well illustrated in Chicago recently when police raided a country inn. Several patrons gave fictitious names. In the light of being extremely funny one prisoner said he was "Floyd Gibbons, the radio man." And—can you beat it?—the cops let him go!

P. & W. VA. WINS DONORA LINK

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway Company won a victory over the Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday when a federal Court opinion denied the motion of the latter company to set aside the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission which granted the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway Company's permission to build a six-mile branch to connect with its Connellsville extension and the Donora Southern Railroad.

The opinion handed down by Judge Victor B. Woolley of the United States Circuit Court with Judges R. M. Gibson and F. P. Schoonmaker, of the District Court, concurring, was filed in Federal Court here. The opinion dismissed the bill of the Pennsylvania Company for an injunction to restrain the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway Company from constructing the branch.

The contemplated branch will make the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway Company a competitor of the Pennsylvania for the traffic from the plant of the American Steel and Wire Company in Donora, now served exclusively by the Pennsylvania Company.

The case was heard April 25 with the three judges sitting.

TEACHERS WILL GO TO SCHOOL

School teachers and their pupils will become students together in the thirteenth summer session of Carnegie Institute of Technology, it was announced today by Dr. Roscoe M. Ihrig, director.

The six-week course will continue from June 27 to August 8 with a preliminary period beginning June 16 for those free to take advantage of it.

Courses will be given in public school music, fine and applied arts, industrial education, psychology, pictorial and decorative painting, architecture and various angles of shop work and technical subjects.

Members of the Tech faculty will give most of the instruction. C. Valentine Kirby, director of art education of the State Department of Public Instruction, will be present one of the six weeks for conferences and talks in the department of painting and decoration.

SHOW CHECKS OF FAMOUS

"Checks of the Famous" including those of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Dillon Reed, will be on display at the "Open House" week of the Pittsburgh Academic and Business College, 207 Fifth avenue, which starts Monday. In all, 204 checks are in the display.

All are original with the exception of the two aforementioned, and most of them are for one cent. Among the originals is one for two cents, made by Henry Ford in payment of a loan given him to purchase an Edison Light's Golden Jubilee stamp, and others bearing signatures of Washington and Lincoln. Movie and stage stars, statesmen and world celebrities are also represented.

Thursday night students and alumni of the college will hold their annual dinner dance and reception. The exhibit will be open daily throughout the week except Wednesday afternoon.

GIRL UNAFRAID

By GLADYS JOHNSON

Jealousy and Rage Flame Anew in Ardeth

CHAPTER XL.

Never before had Ardeth known jealousy like this. Fierce, corroding jealousy, sweeping over her like a hot wind, leaving a desert in its wake.

Jeanette's words echoing in her ears, Cecile . . . Cecile to have a child . . . Ken's child!

She pulled off her hat. Her coat. Walked to a mirror and rearranged her hair. Her hands were shaking. To the white-faced reflection which looked back from the mirror she whispered with stiff lips: "Well . . . what is it to you? What can you do about it? His wife . . ."

Forcing back scalding tears. Trying to swallow the painful lump in her throat.

Not even that time when she crouched in the church and watched Ken married had been worse than this. Nothing of the romantic girl about Ardeth in this moment. She was all primitive woman—savage despairing.

"No!" she was crying wildly in her heart. "No—she has no right! My child . . . mine . . ."

Later the hot jealousy died. The wind had blown itself out leaving dreadful stillness in its wake. Deep buried resentment poisoning her heart . . . Hatred . . . even against the child of the future.

A change in Ardeth dating from that day. Unsuspected, some vestige of hope had remained. Perhaps Ken was not forever lost to her. People who were married sometimes disagreed . . . separated . . . married others and were happy . . . But now she felt that he was truly lost to her. She must go on alone along the road they had hoped to travel together.

Ardeth Buys Shop

Always a shadow underlying the golden eyes now. A touch of gentle dignity in her manner.

Many noticed it, and put it down to the responsibility of managing the shop. For Ardeth had bought The Caprice.

Jeanette had been entranced at the idea of getting rid of the place so easily. She was entirely engrossed in her latest whim—a Poetry Club of earnest females who planned to tour Europe and visit the shrines of great poets. Not that Jeanette had ever written verse. But then, neither had the other members. But they intended to do so—some day when they had the time. And just now the club answered its purpose in enabling Jeanette to adopt a calm and detached attitude to mundane things, and to be exasperatingly placed and high-minded on her infrequent visits to Cecile.

At the close of a golden October day the deal was struck. Tom, who had come in at the last moment, leaned back on his elbows and watched the girl.

The copper light of sunset struck through the one narrow window and turned Ardeth's hair to ruddy gold. Her eyes were glowing topazes as she looked fondly about her.

Smokerie Given Up

"My very own . . ." she said softly. Then, in a tone grown more practical: "The first thing I'm going to do is give up the Smokerie. I've always hated it. It just encourages gossip. Some of those women get together and chop up reputations as though they were chopping hash! You should have heard Malda Durant and that fat Mrs. Curtis in here yesterday, snickering over the latest Spy."

"I hate that rotten magazine!" Tom put in heatedly.

"It's never going to come in here again!" Ardeth's tone was grim. She was remembering the insinuating notice which had appeared about herself and Ken.

"I don't care if it loses trade. I'm going to give up the Smokerie!"

She kept that resolution. The back room reverted to type. Down came the hangings of the Oriental den. It became Ardeth's living quarters.

This was part of her program of strict harmony. What she saved by giving up her hotel room played a large share in paying Ah Ling's salary each month.

It was no hardship to live in back of the shop, close to all she held dear in the world. The couch served as her bed. The one window, looking on the narrow alley admitted air, if not light.

Tom scowled on the arrangement. "Good Lord! It's worse than the maid's room at my sister's! Her room is small, but it gets sun and air. Don't be stubborn, Ardeth. Let me pay Ah Ling's salary and get an apartment."

Protests in Vain

But she was determined. "Please remember, you're supposed to be the silent partner in this firm—decidedly silent!"

"But Ardeth—" Tom protested and his face was woeful. "Gosh—just thinking of you living in this dump keeps me from having any fun at all! I can afford it—and what good is all this lousey money piling up in the bank? Don't you know that money's no good to me if I can't buy a little comfort for you—"

There was a note in his voice which warned the girl that another of Tom's periodic proposals was due and she backed away in mock alarm, shaking her head violently.

"No! No! No! I know what I'm doing. I have a system all figured out. And if you're so set on doing something for me come down in the store and nail a packing case. I plit a thumb nail and Ah Ling smashed a finger on the darned thing!"

Below the reformed Smokerie was the store room—a dismal cemented basement lit by a dangling electric light. A short flight of steps led to the upper world, and when the door was open dark and musty smells breathed from it.

Friends Worried

At night when Ardeth lay on the couch she could hear the mice scampering over the packing cases down there, could even hear their infinitesimal squeaks through the thick stillness.

It worried Tom to think of her down there in the deserted business area. Worried Mary Eastwood too. Mary came down and used up much eloquent reasoning trying to make Ardeth change her mind.

"You could be murdered and none of us would know a thing about it until Ah Ling came to open up the shop in the morning!" she said severely.

"Time enough then, Mary darling!" the girl replied lightly. "If I'm thoroughly murdered I really won't care when you learn of it!"

Afraid . . . No, she wasn't afraid. There was no fear felt in her. Hope and fear had been put away with those pink silk things which had been the beginnings of her modest trousseau. Put away with her love and her girlish dreams of happiness.

One did not lie awake at night fearing burglars and killers. One thought only of things to buy and sell. Sometimes, of things that might have been. Of Ken. And of the coming baby.

ACQUITTED IN FRAUD CHARGE

J. L. Lewis, of the Lewis Publishing Company, Apollo Building, stands acquitted today of a charge of conspiracy to defraud, following his being found not guilty in Criminal Court of an allegation that advertising space had been sold for the Official Parking and Traffic Guide under a pretense that a part of the money was for the police pension fund.

Thomas Shanahan, an advertising solicitor for Lewis, also indicted, was not tried, as he is sick in bed, but Leon St. Clair, a collector, who was a witness for the State, pleaded guilty to embezzlement and false pretense and was paroled for two years.

Police Inspector James N. Hory, prosecutor, and City Detective William Harris, testified the pension fund derived no benefit from the book, publication of which was authorized by a city ordinance.

Lewis testified St. Clair had instigated a movement for repeal of the ordinance. St. Clair denied this. An assistant city clerk testified a repeal ordinance had been introduced, but action on it had been deferred several times, apparently to await outcome of the trial of Lewis.

CHILDREN HURT IN AUTO PLUNGE

Two brothers and a sister today were suffering from injuries sustained when an automobile in which they were occupants went down an embankment 60 feet to the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, near their home. Polly Silvestros, 5, was in Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, suffering from a fracture of the arm, probable internal injuries and lacerations, while her brothers, Fred, 12, and George, 19, were confined to their home, 137 Sherman avenue, Vandergrift. The younger brother sustained a probable fracture of the skull, lacerations of the head and body bruises, while George escaped with minor bruises.

Robert Muncaster, 9, of 109 Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, is in Suburban General Hospital recovering from injuries sustained last night when struck by an automobile driven, Bellevue police said, by John H. Keane, of 856 Ohio River boulevard, Avalon.

James McWilliams, 11, of 105 Forest avenue, West Homestead, is in Homestead Hospital as a result of being struck by an automobile driven by Alice Gillen, of Homestead Park, according to a police report. The boy was pursuing his dog near his home when run down, police were informed.

Motorcycle Patrolman William Kulp, of East Deer Township, is in Allegheny Valley Hospital, at Tarentum, in a serious condition as a result of having been knocked from his motorcycle while patroling the Freeport road last night. Kulp was struck, police said, when an automobile driven by Philip Mitchell, 20, of Arnold, made a left turn to pass another car going in the same direction. Motorcycle Patrolman Jack Troeger, of the Springdale police, arrested Mitchell.

COURT, DRY LAW G. O. P. ISSUES

BELLINGHAM, Wash., May 24.—Prohibition and the League Court became dominant issues of the Republican party's state convention here immediately upon organization today of the platform committee.

Election of Mark E. Reed as platform committee chairman was taken as presaging the election of Dr. John C. Siegle as temporary chairman and keynoter of the convention, which opens today.

Immediately following organization of the platform committee, Charles Hebbered, Northwest manager of Hoover forces in the 1928 pre-convention campaign, launched an effort to stop the apparent drift of Washington Republicans from the national administration.

Appealing to members of the committee to support "the policies of the Republican administration of Herbert Hoover," Hebbered submitted proposed resolutions which asked:

2—Ratification of the London Naval Treaty.

3—Adherence to the League Court.

Hebberd's move was a challenge to the platform recently adopted by Republicans of King County, in which is located Seattle, metropolis of the state, at their county convention.

Edward Clifford, King County member of the committee, immediately met the challenge and submitted the King County prohibition plank, demanding modification, and followed it by a new plank on the League Court, in stronger language than the plank previously adopted on the subject by the King County convention.

$50,000 HEART BALM ASKED

Frank Sadler, Library, who claims that A. S. Chesnar won the heart of his wife, notwithstanding he knew she was married, has brought suit against Chesnar for $50,000 for alienating her affections.

In his bill of particulars filed in Common Pleas Court by Attorney John G. Koedel, Sadler claims he and his wife were married August 27, 1917, and have three children. He avers that July 1 last that Chesnar enticed and induced the plaintiff's wife to enter into clandestine relationship with him. As a result of these gatherings, Sadler claims that he and his wife separated July 30 last.

ROB DOWNTOWN AUTO STATION

The Kissel-Skiles branch at 409 Penn avenue was held up and robbed of $100 early this morning by three bandits.

According to David Eckles, Negro, of 2503 Wylie avenue, night car washer, the three drove up, two entered the garage, brandished guns and took the contents of the cash register.

H. S. Case, of 77 Feilbach street, Millvale, night manager and cashier, was out at the moment of the hold-up, but saw the car containing the three men racing away along Penn avenue toward the Point.

FIND ALCOHOL HIDDEN IN VAN

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 24.—Members of the state highway patrol last night found 500 gallons of alcohol in a false compartment of a moving van and arrested the driver, who gave his name as George Weingart, of Philadelphia.

Weingart was quoted as saying his van was one of four used to transport liquor from the East to Pittsburgh, which was his destination. The van bore the sign, "Liberty Freight Forwarding and Warehouse Company of Bridgeport, Conn., Boston and New York."

Highway patrolmen said it was necessary to use a crowbar to break through a partition back of the driver's seat where the alcohol was found.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Purity

"Living in a sleepy little village like this," Flora Burgess said, "a girl has to be careful."

Clarabelle Wentworth, a native of Greenvale who had been Flora's girlhood chum and had moved to New York, looked at Flora with twinkling eyes.

"A girl has to be careful anywhere if she's wise," Clarabelle drawled.

They had returned from a morning ride and Mose had taken the horses around to the stable. Clarabelle was visiting Flora.

Col. Burgess came out on the wide and high-pillared veranda in his white flannels. He gave his daughter a hug and playfully tweaked Clarabelle's ear. Then he settled down in his easy chair and lighted a cigar.

"It must seem like getting into Paradise, coming back to the old home town after the hurly-burly of New York, Clarabelle," he remarked.

"It is lovely, Colonel," Clarabelle dutifully answered. Not for worlds would she tell him that she detested pokey Greenvale and adored the giddy whirl of life in the city.

"Of course," the Colonel went on, "Flora, or any girl for that matter, loves to go to the big city for a week or so, to visit the shops and revel in the newest styles, but Flora says that, after all, this is the only satisfactory life. She is a true Burgess."

Flora secretly winked at Clarabelle and made a wry face.

Mose appeared with the car. The Colonel left for the village bank—his bank. The Burgesses had been Greenvale's bankers and leading citizens for many generations.

"In the city," Flora said after her father had been driven away, "a girl can say she is going to a tea or matinee and then go where she pleases and meet whom she pleases. But here—well, I often envy my colored maid, Violet, who goes about with this boy and that one and is never questioned."

To Have Her Fling

"Does Val write often?" Clarabelle asked.

"Oh, yes, he sends his letters to Violet at general delivery and I get them that way. I couldn't risk having father know I ever met or knew any chap whom he didn't first know and approve. Twice Val came on o the Glen House and I drove up and met him beyond the falls, but even that was dangerous."

"Well, you can see plenty of him when you visit me."

"He wants me to go to Bermuda with him. I wish I could."

"Too dangerous, Flora. You might be seen—and word would get to Hubert."

Hubert Fleming, mild-mannered, prosaic gentleman farmer of Greenvale, was to marry Flora some day, according to all plans. And these plans had been formulated by her father and Hubert. Flora didn't care two pins for him.

"I know—but—" Flora hesitated. She couldn't quite express herself, her loathing of the quiet, circumspect life in Greenvale and her constant wild desire to be gay and giddy and have her "fling."

"And if it ever got out that you were having an affair with Val Fischer, a married man—"

"Greenvale would go into convulsions," Flora agreed, with a giggle, "especially if they knew he was a gambler."

"Would the Colonel let you go to Europe with us?"

"Don't want to go that far, Clarabelle, but if—"

Flora Burgess sat upright suddenly, than leaned closer to her friend.

"Suppose I pretended to go with you and your Aunt Hattie! She's a good sport, she wouldn't give me away. I could write a lot of letters home for you o mail, and you could send cables and then I could go over and come back w.th you!"

Clarabelle thought it over.

"It's a daring thing to do. Aunty would be a good sport about it, but if your father or Hubert ever learned the truth—I'm afraid it is to dangerous."

"I'll take the chance. Don't you see? I could go to Bermuda with Val and have a wonderful time before I settled down to the awful existence of being Mrs. Hubert Fleming."

Talks of Details

"You'd never settle down—you'll always be getting into some jam, my dear!"

"Not while father lives. I wouldn't hurt him for worlds. Come on now, Clarabelle can't I fake that European trip?"

They discussed it during the following days in much detail.

Col. Burgess finally agreed that it would be a splendid opportunity for Flora. He didn't know that Clarabelle's once demure aunt had turned into a sophisticated and gay widow in the city who would need a chaperon as much as Flora herself.

Flora and Val Fischer were at the pier to see Clarabelle and her aunt sail. Val had generously bought a passage for Flora so that her name would be on the sailing list.

This wasn't so many years ago and many still recall the sinking of that small liner, the Andurania.

Flora was on the wa, to Bermuda with Val when she heard of it by the radio bulletin. She stared at Val in shock.

"See, I brought you luck—saved your life," Val said.

"God—I was thinking of poor fat er," Flora murmured. "I can't tell him I missed the steamer—I can't go back and explain."

At Bermuda they got full particulars of the sinking of the ship and the loss of life. When the New York papers came on the next boat Flora Burgess read her name in the list of those who had lost their lives. Clarabelle and her aunt had been among those who perished.

"Well," Flora said, "that's one way out of the deadly-dull monotony of life in Greenvale."

And so, while she played around in Bermuda with Val, there was great sorrow in Greenvale at the loss of Greenvale's fairest and sweetest daughter. The Colonel went about in a daze, a crushed man. There were services at the church. On that Sunday Flora and Val were drinking highballs and disporting the surf at Elbu Beach.

But back in New York things were different. Val didn't show up at the little "love nest" very often. He said his "business" kept him away.

Val Strikes Flora

Val happened into the Pink Owl one morning al five and found Flora with Riley Haven, one of his enemies. Flora was decidedly jingled. Val was furious and started to make a scene.

"You can't expect me to dry up and blow away, Val. You leave me alone all the time—"

She didn't finish. The wonderful "love pal," as Flora had called Val, handed her a swift punch in one of her pretty eyes.

Riley Haven pulled a gun on Val and Flora sneaked out. The newspaper accounts of the killing of Gambler Val Fischer stated that it was over a woman known as Della Parker, which was the name Flora had been using.

Flora pawned some of the diamonds Val had given her and went to Montreal for a few months. Up there she met Wilson Hugo, the sculptor. He had a car and for a few weeks they toured about together. Then Hugo had to get back to the city to start work he had agreed to do.

"Look here, Flora," he said. Flora had assumed the name of Flora Williams at this time. "You've just the figure I want. I'll find you a nice place in town and you'll pose for me."

She liked the studio atmosphere and she enjoyed the little drinking parties there at night when a dozen of Hugo's friends would admire the thinly draped figure he had nearly completed and then stare at her and say pointed little things like "I'm going to turn sculptor just to get you to pose for me like that."

The figure was finished. Hugo went away on a trip.

Ladies must live, so Flora found another "friend" and another, and finally she got in with a burlesque chap and went out on the "wheel" with him. Two years of that and of drinking, and varied dissipations had changed Flora Burgess greatly. She had lost much of her beauty and her figure had become coarser.

Then her burlesque map dropped her. She was getting too fat and wouldn't stay sober long enough—she was "out."

Flora was left in a mid-Western town with about forty dollars and a trunk.

"Keyster" Kelley met her there. He was a street fakir. He set a suitcase upon three legs on the sidewalk, attracted a crowd and sold all sorts of junk, jumping to the next town before the fake watches stopped forever and the jewelry turned green, hence his grafter-world monicker, "Keyster" Kelley.

Liked by Kelley

Kelley rather liked the looks of Flora. She was the type he knew about. Flora went along with him. She was surprised at the money Kelley picked up in the small towns.

Kelley stuck to her. There is no accounting for tastes. He liked her, and aside from scolding her for drinking so much, was pretty good to her.

Kelley heard of a park dedication in a distant town and all such event were his meat, so he got the stupefied Flora aboard a train, rode all day and she woke up in a hotel next morning trying to recollect where she was and what had happened.

"Some day you'll croak, hoisting so much poison red-eye aboard. Take a cold bath in the community tub at the end of the hall and rest up. I'm gonna make a lot of dough in this jay village," Kelley said.

"Where are we?" Flora asked.

"Greenvale. They are dedicating a park here. You stay in doors and drink black coffee, I gotta go out and dig the dollars out of these hicks."

Flora said nothing. After he had gone she looked at herself in the mirror.

"Nobody'll know me," she laughed mirthlessly and got dressed. She went out to this park.

"Burgess Park," it was.

There was a platform, there were speakers, they unveiled a fountain. Flora stood and stared at the white-haired old man who had given Greenvale this park—Col. Burgess, her father.

The draperies came off the fountain.

Old Parson Roberts was speaking.

"—a masterpiece by the famous sculptor, Wilson Hugo," he said, "and it is remarkable how greatly the beautiful figure resembles the beloved daughter of the donor, Miss Flora Burgess, who was lost at sea. No more apt name for this figure could have been given.

Flora Burgess stared at it. Chiseled in block letters was one word:

PURITY.

Voting Machines Needed

Fraud Charges Emphasize Importance of Installing Them Promptly.

Election developments—the charges of fraud, the delay in learning the result—show the importance of having voting machines in Allegheny County. Every effort should be made to have as many of them installed at the next election as can be arranged for.

Voting machines were used in a number of counties in the primary. It is a pity that Allegheny County, home of the late Senator John P. Harris and his brother, Senator Frank J. Harris, sponsors of the voting machine legislation, has lagged in supplying the machines.

If ever the need of the devices was demonstrated, it was in the primary of last Tuesday. Notwithstanding the warnings of District Attorney Andrew T. Park and the watchfulness of the contesting candidates, there is strong suspicion that cheating was attempted.

While unofficial figures indicate P. J. Sullivan won the congressional nomination in the Thirty-fourth District, Senator James J. Coyne says he will prove in court that P. J. O'Malley was elected.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern says he is informed and believes there was extensive ballot box stuffing in the Strip. The disposition made of some of the boxes during the few days between the election and the convening of the returning board has been questionable, to say the least. Other boxes have been impounded, while in the case of still others it has been felt necessary to keep a watchful eye on them day and night.

It is all a shameful commentary on the manner in which the election was conducted.

And the pity of it is that if voting machines had been used all this watchfulness, all this employment of lawyers, all this preparation for court procedure, would have been unnecessary, and there would be no question of the honesty of the election, no doubt as to who had been elected.

The County Commissioners will be negligent of their duty if they omit anything that can be reasonably done to assure the prompt installation of the machines.

Other Nations Will Strike Back at Smoot-Hawley Bill

Canada, which is now the best customer of this country among all the nations with which this country trades, is evidently not going to take the blow aimed at the Canadian people by the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill without hitting back.

According to a report to the Department of Commerce at Washington, Canada intends to retaliate by the passage of a new tariff bill that will increase Canadian duties upon American imports by at least $225,000,000.

Iron and steel products from the United States, machinery, fruits and vegetables will be hardest hit by Canada's new tariff. Preference will be given to British empire goods and duties raised against American products.

No secret is made by the Canadians of the fact that Canada and the United States are about to engage in a bitter tariff war. Sir J. H. Woods, the president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said as much to the Halifax Board of Trade in a recent speech.

The Canadians contend that the Smoot-Hawley bill for extortion will cut Canada's exports to this country by at least $75,000,000 in spite of the fact that Canada is now buying annually from the United States products totaling $800,000,000.

And Canada is not the only foreign country that is preparing to defend herself against the extortionate schedules of the Smoot-Hawley bill by giving blow for blow.

Great Britain, France, Switzerland, Germany and Argentina are among the other customers of this country that are making it perfectly clear that they will not take the challenges of the Smoot-Hawley bill "lying down."

Ample warning has been given the Republican Congress and the Republican President of the damage to domestic prosperity, foreign commerce and international relations which will be inflicted by the passage of the most outrageous tariff bill that has ever threatened the American people.

Ample opportunity has been afforded the Republican Congress to purge this tariff bill of its most flagrant schedules.

Ample opportunity will be afforded the Republican President to save the American people from this robber tariff by a veto.

IT IS THE REPUBLICAN CONGRESS AND THE REPUBLICAN PRESIDENT THAT THE AMERICAN PEOPLE WILL HAVE AMPLE CAUSE TO BLAME IF GOOD RELATIONS WITH FOREIGN NATIONS ARE IMPAIRED, FOREIGN COMMERCE DEMORALIZED, AND DOMESTIC PROSPERITY DESTROYED BY THE TARIFF FOR EXTORTION WHICH THE PASSAGE OF THE SMOOT-HAWLEY BILL WOULD IMPOSE.

Talking Dogs

They're Possible, a Breeder Thinks.

Dr. W. L. English, dog breeder of Crewe, England, believes it is possible to breed a race of dogs that can talk. He thinks it would be wise to do so, because it might shed light on the problem of developing the long-heralded super-MAN.

But let the doctor tell it in his own words:

"There is no use in breeding men who are simply physically strong, like Carnera. We must improve their brains, and before we can do that we must experiment. Why not, therefore, experiment with dogs, whose brains are similar to those of men?

"While dog breeders for centuries have produced dogs of all shapes, sizes and colors, they have missed a glorious opportunity of experimenting with canine brains.

"Dogs have no more intelligence than they had in early Egyptian times. I believe that under a course of training and breeding consistently pursued for a few human generations the canine brain would be developed to a stage where dogs could talk."

That might be done, but it would be foolish to do it.

Dogs, less intelligent than men, are usually superior in moral character. They are honest, faithful, pathetically grateful for small favors. The percentage of criminals among them is much lower than among humans.

If they could talk, they could preach us many sermons.

For our own peace of mind, let us be glad they are dumb, and keep them so.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Investigations

F. Scott McBride, who starts his name alphabetically and winds it up blushingly, is the superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, the organization which placed the jovial swinging door in the category of antique furniture.

"Bugs" Baer

The Anti-Saloon League seems to be taking its hate in smaller doses and in more modified form.

Mr. McBride appeared before the lobby committee and almost conceded that the Volsted law was an ancient Siberian superstition and that it practically permitted the making of home brew up to a certain point. The certain point being the top of the keg.

He stated that his organization had supported wet-drinking, dry-voting members of Congress who were equipped with pint flasks and a wild desire to succeed.

He also denied that he had warned Ambassador Morrow that he must be so dry that he squaked.

When an ambassador squeaks it is not parliamentary language. Why classify diplomats with rear axles and mice?

The situation is now clarifying down to the consistency of thick mud. Mr. McBride didn't concede everything and he retreated almost as gracefully as a mule backing off a wharf.

But it looks like we are getting somewhere. First of all, Mr. Morrow can be his old, sweet self and is not compelled to squeak.

Second, home brew is legal. But it can still be legal and taste terrible.

If we cannot get better legislation let us go after better recipes.

We hope, and not without cause, that the Anti-Saloon League will become so affable in its retrograde movement as to tell us when is the best time to drop the raisins in.

They've studied this situation at the cost of many dollars and many jobs. We are only beginners in the renaissance of home brewing but we are gradually merging from the dark ages of prohibition and getting the stuff a shade lighter.

When enforcement and repeal can be merged into moderation we think that this country will have leaped further than a scared toad.

It's time for the contestants to get together because summer is almost here and June is no time to blame a red rose on the cold weather.

At the time of going to press the score was even. Prohibition and home brew have both had fair trials of 10 years. And they have both flopped.

IS 'X' A COMET?

By Archibald Henderson

One of the most startling scientific events of recent years was the discovery of the strange new body which has been tentatively labelled Planet X.

An even more startling development is the growing skepticism of astronomers, in this country and abroad, as to the planetary nature of the newly discovered celestial object. Little as yet can be learned of its orbit, for it has been observed for such a short time. But there is general agreement among astronomers that the orbit is probably an extremely elongated ellipse or very thin oval.

Lowell predicted that a trans-Neptunian planet would be discovered on longitude 100. Actually it was found on longitude 107. Eddington spoke of the closeness of the prediction. Many of the members of the Royal Astronomical Society of Great Britain were favorably-impressed with the thoroughness, caution and honest work at Lowell Observatory.

Through Prof. H. H. Turner, director of Oxford University Observatory, the Royal Astronomical Society transmitted on March 14 last, the following cablegram: "President council, and fellows of the Royal Astronomical Society, in meeting assembled, send the Lowell Observatory their heartiest congratulations on the great discovery of the trans-Neptunian planet."

Dr. V. M. Slipher, director of the Lowell Observatory, is firm in the belief, which is shared by all his associates at Flagstaff, that the new object is a planet. On April 15, he gave public confirmation of this view, explicitly stating:

"Our orbit computations and observations since February show definitely that it is trans-Neptunian and affords strong evidence of planetary nature. It has no cometary appearance.

"These computations have shown that the planet's orbit is more eccentric and extensive than was at first believed. The orbit is in the form of an ellipse. It is impracticable at this time to make any definite estimate as to the distance traveled by the ninth planet in traversing its orbit. Our computations, however, have reached the point where we can say that the trans-Neptunian planet is approximately 41.35 astronomical units from the earth."

This would be approximately three billion eight hundred and sixty million miles.

Dr. J. Jackson, one of the chief assistants at the Royal Observatory at Greenwich, England, has seriously raised the question if the new object be not a comet. He points out that the object has apparently a volume of only one-fiftieth of that predicted.

Other English skeptics are Dr. Harold Knox-Shaw, of the Radcliffe Observatory and the Oxford mathematician, Prof. Edwin Arthur Milne.

Prof. A. O. Leuschner, director of the students' observatory at the University of California, suspects that the new body is perhaps either a large asteroid or a comet. He points out that, if the new object is not a comet, it is the first planetary object to have so highly eccentric an orbit.

Dr. Jackson has acknowledged, following later studies made at Greenwich Observatory, that if it is a planet, which he now considers possible, it is the queerest planet ever discovered, since it has the brightness of a planet and the erratic orbit of a comet.

Singularly enough, although the new body has an orbit quite cometary in appearance, it does not show the least trace of nebulosity which generally surrounds the nuclei of comets.

It is very difficult to believe that the new object is a comet, since it is believed that a comet distant even as much as 20 times the earth's distance from the sun would be too faint to be photographed.

Whether planet, asteroid or comet, certain it is that the newly discovered body is one of the most singular and unusual celestial objects ever discovered.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I held a great pearl in my wondering hand.
It shone serenely, with a warm, white flame
Like moonlight—pulsing—passionately pale—
Like moonlight—whose mysterious strength and peace
Quiet rebellion, heal our fear and hurt—
So the pearl shone. And from it streamed a light
As though some glory burned within its heart.

But, really, pain lay buried in that pearl.

Pearls do not bloom in ecstasy, like flowers,
Nor do they ripen through sweet suns, like fruit.
A pearl's unearthly glow is born of pain,
Pain, bedded deep in some poor oyster's flesh.
A vicious bit of grit it can't cast out,
But must endure as long as life shall last.
And so the oyster wastes no time in strife,
But wraps its forces 'round about that pain,
And slowly, film by film, builds its defence,
Folding its pain within bright veils of light,
Until, as last, there gleams the perfect pearl.

So some brave souls make beauty out of grief.
Pain comes to them—a pain they cannot rout.
But must endure until their day is done.
And, for awhile, it seems as if that pain
Must gnaw all life into a hollow hell.
Then slowly the hurt spirit gathers strength,
Rallies its forces 'round that agony,
And, from its secret tears, begins to weave
A veil of courage, gentleness and peace.

Thin veils at first—so thin they scarcely hide
The mortal hurt that lies behind their film;
But, with each day, the gleaming wonder grows,
Until, at least, the agony is hid,
And that great life glows warmly, like a pearl,
Shedding a healing light on darker lives,
As though some miracle burned in its heart,
Some secret joy, untainted by life's woes—
SO SOME BRAVE SOULS MAKE BEAUTY OUT OF GRIEF, AND 'ROUND DEFEAT, BUILD WALLS OF LIVING LIGHT.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

About the worst mistake you can make sometimes at a party is to say to the lady you just been introduced to, "Oh, yes, I used to go to school with you!" Some guys get themselves in bad for life that way.

Well, I heard about a guy of 40 or so that was introduced at a party to a Mrs. Caryl, maybe it was, and he says, "Say, Mrs. Caryl, wasn't your name Van Park before you was married?"

"Sure, yes, I was Goldie Van Park."

"Well, I used to know you. I was learning to bounce a ball in front of our house—do you remember?"

"Oh, seems to me I do! Just think, Mrs. Cortlandt, this here Mr. Adams says he used to know me when I was a little girl!"

"Well, no, I didn't exactly say that," says Adams.

"Oh, didn't you? What did you say?"

"I say I used to know you when I was a little boy."

And did he ever get invited any place again?

Our Wishes

Where are the wishes we made one day,
Oh, ages ago and worlds away,
When life was like May, sweet and gay?

There was a wish, so it seems to me,
Concerning the people we meant to be
When we should grow older and tall and free.

There was a wish about lands we would roam,
The desert's sands and the ocean's foam,
Places across the globe from home.

We have sometimes failed of our goals, perhaps,
It is always like that as the years elapse,
For time sets many and cunning traps.

Of our splendid schemes we have failed in a few;
And yet the best of our plans came true,
For you have me, dear, and I have you.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

He (Samson) saw some bee-like flies emerge from the decaying body of a lion and put his riddle: "Out of the eater came forth meat and out of the strong came forth sweetness."

It was a perfectly natural and reasonable error in the days when the habit of interrogative observation had not yet been developed. But the Bible narrator has gone a little beyond the possibilities of the case by adding a honeycomb to the story.

H. G. Wells

It was not until the seventeenth century that Redi exploded the belief that blowflies and their maggots are produced by decaying meat itself. He marked the blowfly at its work. When he prevented flies from having access to the meat by covering it with gauze no maggots were generated. It was a simple, clear-cut experiment, and yet no one had previously displayed the intelligent skepticism needed to attempt it.

By the seventeenth century the discovery of the microscope had opened up a new world of living creatures, whose life-histories were hard to trace out owing to their complicated life-cycles, to their liability to be blown from place to place in a condition of nearly suspended life. These creatures had an air of turning up out of nothingness. Thus they were supposed to be "spontaneously generated."

In the middle of the Nineteenth Century the genius of Pasteur, with a combination of rigorous experiments and patient perseverance, finally clinched the matter and proved that all visible living things, at any rate in the conditions which now obtain in nature, arise only from others of the same sort.

Soups and such-like infusions were up to his time supposed to be natural environments for spontaneous generation. But the most nutrient of soups will stay pellucid, without a trace of decay, if sealed off from the air after being sufficiently heated to destroy all microbes and their spores.

Even if air be later admitted, no decay will set in, provided no bacterial spores actually fall into the soup. They may be filtered off by passing the air through cotton-wool; or by letting the air pass very slowly along a series of U-shaped bends in a narrow tube, when they will settle at the bottom of the U's.

Or if uninfected air be admitted to sterilized soup, as for instance by breaking open the sealed flask at the top of a high mountain, and the flask then resealed, again there will be no decay.

Nothing decays unless bacteria or their spores settle upon it. The same boiled infusion which, left exposed to the air, within a week teems with many kinds of bacteria and protozoa, will remain untenanted indefinitely if their germs and spores and cysts are debarred entrance.

We can say now with an entirely reasonable confidence that all life that exists today has sprung direct from pre-existing life.

But, of course, this apparent impossibility of spontaneous generation applies only to the world as we know it today. At some time in the remote past, when the earth was hotter and its air and crust differed, physically and chemically, from their present state, it seems reasonable to believe that life must have originated in a simple form from lifeless matter.

It was presumably a fairly gradual change, a slow progressive synthesis, rather than a sudden leaping into being of organisms from formless slime. To that problem we shall return. Our present conclusion is that, although life could be generated under those strange conditions, it never appears spontaneously at the present time.

The conditions have disappeared. The animals and plants that we know today are branches of a single Tree of Life growing out of pre-existing branches by the reproductive processes that we have now to examine.

2. Sexless Reproduction.

Among most of the higher animals, reproduction, the origination of new individuals, is inseparable from sex. It takes sex to make any addition to the race. But that is by no means true of life generally.

Nearly all living things have some kind of sexual process, but most of them have also sexless ways of increasing their kind. In biological language, reproduction is often asexual. Our own strict adherence to a single generative technique is in fact to be regarded as the exceptional thing.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 24.—For the first time in newspaper work I have seen a large and capable group of newspapermen face the problem of unemployment and emerge, to my notion, triumphantly. Until a few weeks ago there were 20 men for almost every job.

It is estimated that during February of this year more than 500 reporters, copy readers, sub-editors and special writers were off regular payrolls in the metropolitan area. All were men and women especially trained in editorial work and knew no other trade.

The skies have cleared, but for a period were dangerously black. Newspaper workers are notoriously improvident, and probably not more than 10 per cent of the unemployed had the equivalent of a month's salary for the proverbial rainy day. The general idleness lasted about four months.

Coupled with the temporary dearth of jobs, there was not the usual outlet among cheaper magazines and trade journals for "free lance" material which has often bridged over a period of slack for newspaper writers in other days. The entire publishing field was marking time.

During the hiatus, I talked to a number who almost over night had no idea where to turn in the emergency. They fought a hundred terrors without a single whine. There is one $150 a week reporter whose wife does not know today that he was off the payroll for seven weeks.

He worked as a cashier in an all-night restaurant for $27.50 a week. I heard of another who took an elevator job in an apartment building and a re-write man is reported back on the regular staff after serving as a time keeper for a construction company.

The silver lining to the cloud should be a new appreciation of thrift among men inclined to scoff at it, but the experience will not probably be heeded. Journalism, just as the stage, produces a phase of swaggering vagabondage not likely to die. It is a part of the credo.

In editorial shops the "shake-up" is inevitable. General demotions and promotions come with seasons. Most newspaper workers have a premonition of the falling ax. In the jargon they hear "the rattle of the ball and chain."

In fiction about journalism the Blue Envelope is mentioned with a shudder. The legend—its origin is obscure—is that newspaper workers receive discharges in blue envelopes. As one frequently fired—to be exact 14 times—in other days I never received nor do I know of others being so dismissed. My discharge was always a crisp announcement in this wise: "You are through Saturday." And sure enough, I was.

In my payroll days out in the briar patches the grand bounce did not mean a thing. An employe merely walked over to another shop, announced he was fired, and as a rule was told to hang up his hat. The only barrier was to be caught "faking."

It was Thomas Burke in Parliament who gave journalism the name of the Fourth Estate—adding it was the most powerful of all. Anyway its the grandest.

Vagrant thought: In all the years this chronicler has been dealing out free puffs he has found, strangely enough, people of the theatre are the least appreciative. And equally strange, the newspaperman is most appreciative of all.

"The Duke's evening shirt front gave out crepitant noises"—From a current novel. Among us common folk they merely pop like a new saddle.

"We have assigned 11 others their make-up for a surprise costume dinner party," writes Helen K. "but we can think of no one you could represent. You are so long and skinny."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

It is hard to become suspicious of people and be what is called hard-boiled.

Parents dread that condition for their children because the one who looks on fellow human beings with a degree of cautious fear is no longer childlike.

They want to keep their children trusting and simple as long as possible.

There is a happy medium between hard-boiled and the naive—teach that.

Do as the Kentuckians—treat everyone with courtesy and as a gentleman or a lady until they are proven otherwise.

But that does not mean swallow everything that is told you by your associates until it is proven.

What you are told by friends and acquaintances may be told with no intention of deceiving—possibly is as near the truth as the one who repeats stories is capable of telling, but it is not necessarily the actual facts.

There are too many persons who tell not more than half the truth because they are too heedless to learn more.

Many don't care to tell all the truth and so if you don't weigh their words you fail to get under just what is intended—to please you and not involve the one speaking.

It is hard for young folk not to believe that people are not always what they appear to be.
